Gen. Taylor Urges Stepped-Up Defense

Former Army Chief Favors Budget Boost

Criticism Of Ike's Policies Indicated By Veteran Soldier

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, until last year the Army's commander, declared Thursday that from 1961 on the military tide "will run against us —unless we take heroic measures now."

To pay for such measures, the retired Army chief of staff estimated the nation could stand a 50-billion to 55-billion-dollar annual military budget. That would be from 10 to 15 billion more than President Eisenhower has been asking.

"To change the trend will require men, money and sacrifice," the veteran soldier told the Senate Preparedness subcommittee and Space Committee.

"The alternative is military inferiority—and there is no living with communism as an inferior."

While Taylor was speaking in this vein, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke was telling a Senate Appropriations subcommittee U. S. armed might is growing ever more powerful.

Could Use More Subs

However, Burke, chief of naval operations, agreed with a Republican senator's suggestion that it would be wise to increase construction of missile-firing Polaris submarines until, as the senator put it, "we can close the gap" in missiles.

Nonetheless, Burke stressed "I support the President's budget" which allocates funds for fewer Polaris subs than the Navy asked —subs Burke claimed will be invulnerable to any surprise Soviet blow.

The 58-year-old Taylor, now a utility company executive in Mexico City, leveled no direct criticism at Eisenhower, under whom he served in World War II.

But there was indicated criticism in Taylor's statement that decisions on military strength are made in terms of their effect on the national budget.

In brief, he urged a complete reappraisal of both short-range and long-range U.S. military policy. In particular, he appealed for revamping of the high command and the creation of a single powerful chief of staff.

Taylor Views Challenged

Later some of Taylor's views were challenged by Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who succeeded him as Army Chief of Staff.

Defending the present command organization, Lemnitzer told the senators, "I think we have a decision-making mechanism that can work and does work."

The present Army chief also disputed Taylor's skepticism about U.S. ability to fight limited wars.

"There is no doubt we could do a very good job," Lemnitzer said, "although probably not to the degree some of us would like to do.

"We have a considerable capacity to fight a limited war even if there are some areas we would like to see bolstered up."

Although he seemed to be downrating the future of the manned bomber, Taylor endorsed the idea of an airborne alert for part of the nation's Strategic Air Command.

Gen. Thomas S. Power, SAC's commander, earned himself a rebuke from Eisenhower by publicly and repeatedly urging more funds for a constant airborne alert as soon as possible, to discourage the Russians from attacking when they get a big missile stockpile.

Derailment Spills Iron Ore

Iron ore destined for the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. plant in Pittsburgh was spilled over a wide area yesterday when 31 cars of a Pittsburgh & Lake Erie freight train were derailed within two blocks of the railroad's station. No one was injured. The 93-car train was transporting ore from Youngstown, Ohio. Both eastbound and westbound tracks were blocked. (AP Photofax)

Discoverer IX Fails To Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The Discoverer IX satellite rocket failed to reach orbital speed and fell back into the earth's atmosphere Thursday after a successful launch.

The Air Force said the rocket failed to achieve orbital velocity for reasons unknown. Officers said they did not know whether or not the second stage separated from the first—for lack of information.

First indication of trouble came about an hour after launch with the report that no radio transmission had been received.

The rocket was tracked by radar and this data was being analyzed to determine what went wrong.

This was the third of the nine Discoverers launched to date, which failed to achieve orbit. None has performed the main mission of the series: to eject a capsule so it can be recovered—pioneering a new way to return man from space.

The Air Force said it did not know why the communications system failed.

The 10:52 a.m. blastoff seemed perfect. The tall two-stage rocket, spurting orange flame, soared majestically through the overcast.

Like others in the trouble-plagued series, Discoverer IX carried an instrumented capsule designed to be ejected from the satellite—the entire second-stage vehicle—and snatched from the air by planes 26 hours after launch.

There were no animals in the 300-pound capsule carried aloft Thursday. If the recovery technique can be perfected, later shots in the Discoverer series are expected to carry monkeys to test the dangers man will meet when he first goes into orbit.

First-stage rockets in the Discoverer series are Douglas Thor ICBMs, the second stage Lockheed Agenas.

Red Allies Ask Nonaggression Pact, Troop Cut

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies called again Thursday night for a nonaggression pact with the West and a cut in armed forces by all nations.

The eight member countries signed a joint declaration saying they had in a conference here coordinated their future actions in foreign affairs and pushed ahead with preparations for the spring East-West summit meeting.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, reported the actions of the conference and the signing of the declaration.

The declaration was signed in the splendor of the Kremlin Palace's Catherine Room by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and the leaders of Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary, East Germany, Poland, Romania and Czechoslovakia.

Tass said the conference took up the important problems of the present international situation and exchanged opinions "on such major problems as a general and complete disarmament and the conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany."

The conference also decided, the declaration said, to proceed with consultations in preparation for the forthcoming Paris summit meeting.

Storm Ices Midwestern Roads, Spawns Tornado

By The Associated Press

A slashing storm charged across the Mississippi Valley, icing highways and spinning off at least one tornado Thursday night after paralyzing a five-state area with heavy snowdrifts.

Whipping winds left drifts as deep as 10 feet in parts of the snowbound Southern Plains and Rockies. Phone lines were down. Highways were blocked. Schools were closed.

One by one the human strays caught in the blizzard Wednesday were located by rescuers. A school bus driver and five children were snug in a ranch home near Dalhart, Tex., when located after an all-night effort. Three persons missing in the Boise City neighborhood of Oklahoma's Panhandle turned up in good condition.

The character of the storm, and the emphasis, shifted eastward and north Thursday. Most precipitation turned to rain. But in the northern part of the storm path, the cold formed a glaze which made traffic hazardous in parts of Illinois, Missouri and Iowa.

A twister was reported by the Weather Bureau to have raked a section near Pelahatchi, Miss., 20 miles east of Jackson, causing damage.

Rain and glaze extended northeastward from the Southern Plains storm. Freezing rain fell from central Kansas to northwestern Illinois. To the south, there was rain spreading eastward in Indiana and Kentucky.

Syrian-Israeli Flareup Erupts In Upper Galilee

JERUSALEM (AP) — Skirmishing broke out on a second sector of the Israeli-Syrian frontier Thursday. Syrians and Israelis exchanged fire near Shaar Yashuv, 25 miles north of the Tawafik battle zone.

Shaar Yashuv is a Jewish settlement in upper Galilee at the southwest foot of snowcapped Mt. Hermon. Isolated near the border, it held out against Arab attack throughout the Palestine war of 1948.

Syrian and Israeli accounts agreed the skirmish erupted at 12:30 p.m. Each side blamed the other.

The Israelis said one of their policemen was wounded earlier by Syrian gunfire across the demilitarized zone southeast of the Sea of Galilee, where the border crisis broke out last Friday. An Israeli spokesman reported the fire was not returned.

Action in that area has centered around Tawafik, an old Arab village wrecked by Israeli demolition crews Monday night on the ground the Arab farmers there were soldiers in disguise. About 30 mud huts were destroyed. Seven still stand.

A belief that the conflict is "gliding into a more quiet period" was expressed in New York by U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold who told a news conference the U.N. line must be the implementation of the armistice agreement of 1949 to demilitarize the zone.

A spokesman for the United Nations, Albert Grand, was optimistic that Syria and Israel would meet in the Syrian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission, which Israel has boycotted since 1957.

Israel was described at its Foreign Ministry as ready for direct talks with the Syrians provided the discussions cover steps to "prevent further border incursions and shootings," but not the status of the demilitarized zone. Israel claims the whole zone as Israeli property.

New Weapons Ready For Tests If Ban Ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is reported planning test explosions of three advanced types of nuclear weapons—if and when President Eisenhower orders a renewal of testing.

They include improved warheads for Polaris and Minuteman missiles, antimissile missiles, and small tactical bombs for battlefield use.

Some of Eisenhower's most influential advisers are said to feel the United States cannot continue its moratorium on nuclear weapons test explosions for many more months. They reportedly argue such action would amount to gambling on the chance that the Soviet Union through secret testing might overcome this country's assumed nuclear weapons lead.

Soustelle Due To Get Walking Papers Today

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle will announce Friday a new French cabinet to go along with his new iron-rule powers to crush Algerian crises. The somewhat tamed hothead Jacques Soustelle is expected to be dropped.

Dismissal of the one-time political lion of Algeria's rebellious French settlers would coincide with a current drive against right wingers and petty fascists.

De Gaulle and Premier Michel Debre talked for just over an hour Thursday night after Debre had spent several hours consulting Cabinet and government officials.

Word was passed after Soustelle saw De Gaulle and Debre Thursday that he would not attend Friday's Cabinet session, and the Paris press assumed that means he is out.

A spokesman at Soustelle's office said he would never resign, "but what might happen is that De Gaulle would fire him."

Algiers was the focus of the present drive against the right, some of whose more vociferous members are opposed to democracy outright. Between 30 and 40 rightists were caught there by police for questioning on the sources of last week's settlers' uprising, and unofficial reports said about 60 persons in France have been arrested or are being sought.

Soustelle was converted to the slogan "Algeria is French" during a term as governor general in Algeria under the old Fourth Republic. In the bloodless revolt of May, 13, 1958, he eluded guards and flew to Algiers. He is credited with being the political mastermind of that Algiers uprising that swept De Gaulle to power.

But his involvement in the May 13 revolt was an embarrassment to De Gaulle, who stood aloof from the events whirling about his head. Later he put Soustelle into the post of minister of information.

11 Swept Off U.S. Destroyer; Five Rescued

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Eleven men were washed overboard from the destroyer Daly Thursday when she rolled heavily during a full-power run about 200 miles off Cape Henry. Five of the men were rescued and the other six were missing, Atlantic Fleet Headquarters reported Thurday night.

The Daly plucked three men from the ocean and the merchant ship Alabama rescued two others.

Search for the six missing men was continued Thursday night by the Daly and two other destroyers, the Young and the Cotten. The Alabama proceeded toward Cape Henry.

One of the rescued men was reported injured seriously.

Polaris, Jupiter Shots Success

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A Jupiter blazed across the sky on its final development flight and a Polaris recorded its fifth straight success in a spectacular missile doubleheader Thursday night.

The 28-foot Polaris, trailing the characteristic plume of white smoke soared to its Atlantic target 900 miles away. The Navy announced all test objectives were met.

The success kept the Polaris record perfect for 1960 and moved it closer to the day when it will roam the oceans of the world aboard nuclear submarines.

Two hours later, a 60-foot, intermediate-range Jupiter roared aloft on a 1,500-mile flight to close out a remarkably successful 35-month test program for this liquid-fueled giant.

The Army later said the shot was successful. An announcement noted that the test series had been completed four months ahead of schedule.

Finch Says He Hired "Gigolo"

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Dr. R. Bernard Finch said Thursday he told his mistress, Carole Tregoff, to try to hire a "gigolo" to take out the doctor's wife so he would have divorce evidence against her.

The surgeon, on the witness stand a second day in his trial with Miss Tregoff for murder, admitted as women jurors gazed stonily at him, that he was trying to find some "gangster or hood" in Las Vegas, Nev., who would undertake such a job.

The state charges he hired convict John Patrick Cody — not to get divorce evidence but to kill Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch. When Cody backed out, the state says, Finch and Carole went to the West Covina, Calif., home July 18 and shot the wife to death.

The doctor's voice was growing sharper and his demeanor grimmer as he went further and further into his story that the shooting was accidental and that his affair with Carole began only after his wife rejected him.

Defense lawyer Grant Cooper touched for the first time on the Las Vegas "conspiracy" after Finch testified that private detectives in Los Angeles had failed to get evidence about any unfaithfulness on the part of Mrs. Finch.

The trial sounded like a script from "77 Sunset Strip" as Cooper read of private eyes in their strange terminology detailing how they trailed the subject and lost her twice. Finch became disgusted and fired them.

Carole by this time late in June had gone to Las Vegas and Finch said he went there and asked if perhaps she couldn't contact an investigator there.

"I said there were opportunities in Las Vegas to get somebody, but lots of people go to Las Vegas and Reno to get a divorce and

Excited Cubans, Led By Castro, Greet Mikoyan

HAVANA (AP) — Anastas I. Mikoyan, Soviet deputy premier, trade expert and traveling man, arrived Thursday for a closeup look at revolutionary Cuba. Prime Minister Fidel Castro was on hand to greet him.

The trip brought the highest Soviet dignitary ever to visit Cuba here at a time of extreme strain in Cuban-U.S. relations.

The announced purpose of the week-long visit is for Mikoyan to open a Soviet scientific, technical and cultural exhibit on Friday.

But U.S. officials in Washington expect a strong propaganda effort by the Soviet delegation. They also said Mikoyan may have brought with him various proposals for Russian-Cuban trade. Castro has indicated in the past he will deal with Moscow.

Another possibility raised by the U.S. officials was that Mikoyan may seek to restore diplomatic relations between the Soviet Union and Cuba. They were broken off in 1952 after the then dictator Fulgencio Batista accused the Russians of bringing in diplomatic pouches stuffed with propaganda material.

U.S., Russia In Wrangle Over Camp David Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—An argument flared up between the Soviet Embassy and the State Department Thursday over what was said at Camp David last September between President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The Soviets said the question of settling their lend lease debt was coupled at the Camp David talks with the removal of trade restrictions against their country. They also renewed a contention that the British received favored treatment, including a long term loan, when they settled their lend lease account.

State Department press officer Lincoln White denied that Eisenhower ever told Khrushchev that credits and trade could be tied in with a lend lease package settlement.

"On the contrary," White told a news conference, "Mr. Khrushchev said he didn't need any credit and didn't want any credit."

White said an American loan to Great Britain in 1946 came six months after the British settled their lend lease account, and was not part of the same transaction.

The exchange followed last week's collapse of negotiations on a settlement of Russia's lend lease debt. The United States offered to settle for 800 million dollars. The Russians, before they raised the trade-credit angle, had offered 300 million.

The embassy statement said the Soviet Union is ready to resume negotiations at any time "with simultaneous normalization of economic relations" with the United States.

$1.8 Billion Grant Plan Courts Veto

Vote Is 51 To 34; Teacher Salary Funds Included

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Thursday night passed a $1,834,000,000 public elementary and high school grant bill containing funds for teacher salaries and building construction.

The vote was 51-34.

Shortly before final passage, the Senate rejected on a 61-25 roll-call vote the administration program calling for federal payments over the next 30 years to help pay principal and interest on three billion dollars worth of bonds issued by needy school districts for construction.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate Republican leader and five other Republicans offered it as a substitute for the nearly two-billion-dollar federal grant measure.

Dirksen said it was designed to help states and local communities "carry on where there is an emergency need." He stressed it made no provision for teachers' salaries.

Sen. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio was the only Democrat to vote for the administration measure.

The grant measure now goes to the House where a $4,400,000,000 bill for the same purpose was cleared last year by the Education Committee. It since has been stuck in the Rules Committee.

Defeat For Eisenhower

The House has been the graveyard of education bills for years but Democratic leaders there have said they expect this year to get some sort of measure through.

The Senate outcome was a sharp defeat for President Eisenhower who for the past two years has opposed any big school grant bill. Senate Republican leaders indicated plainly they believed the measure which was passed would be vetoed.

The Senate passed the bill after two lengthy days of debate both running into late night sessions—unexpectedly fast time for one of the major issues of the 1960 session.

As it came to the floor, the bill carried 500 million dollars annually for the next two years for grants to the states for school construction only.

Compromise Approach

But a large group of Democrats was determined to bolster it and finally succeeded. They narrowly failed Wednesday night to boost the grant total to $1,100,000,000 a year indefinitely and add teacher salaries to the program; this lost on a 44-44 tie vote with Vice President Richard M. Nixon helping to nail down its defeat.

But Thursday a cut-down version of this proposal was substituted for the original measure by a 54-35 vote. The successful compromise, sponsored by Sens. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.), and Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.), provided for $916,880,000 a year in grants for each of the next two years.

The vote marked the first time since 1949 the Senate has passed a general school aid bill. It later died in the House.

The House debated a school construction bill in 1957 but it failed to pass by five votes. Congress has been struggling with the issue since 1871, almost a century.

Civil Rights Bill Hearings Begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of delay, the House Rules Committee opened public hearings Thursday on a civil rights bill.

Indications were that the hearings would be continued through most of next week at least, and that the bill eventually would be sent to the House floor under a rule allowing extended debate.

The strategy of opponents appeared to be to delay House action until after Feb. 15, when the Senate is due to start considering civil rights legislation.

Lack of a House bill could lead to a long delay in the Senate.

This could add to the difficulties of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who has promised passage this year of what he termed a meaningful civil rights bill.

The Israelis said one of their policemen was wounded earlier by Syrian gunfire across the demilitarized zone southeast of the Sea of Galilee, where the border crisis broke out last Friday. An Israeli spokesman reported the fire was not returned.

Action in that area has centered around Tawafik, an old Arab village wrecked by Israeli demolition crews Monday night on the ground the Arab farmers there were soldiers in disguise. About 30 mud huts were destroyed. Seven still stand.

A belief that the conflict is "gliding into a more quiet period" was expressed in New York by U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold who told a news conference the U.N. line must be the implementation of the armistice agreement of 1949 to demilitarize the zone.

A spokesman for the United Nations, Albert Grand, was optimistic that Syria and Israel would meet in the Syrian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission, which Israel has boycotted since 1957.

Israel was described at its Foreign Ministry as ready for direct talks with the Syrians provided the discussions cover steps to "prevent further border incursions and shootings," but not the status of the demilitarized zone. Israel claims the whole zone as Israeli property.

11 Swept Off U.S. Destroyer; Five Rescued

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Eleven men were washed overboard from the destroyer Daly Thursday when she rolled heavily during a full-power run about 200 miles off Cape Henry. Five of the men were rescued and the other six were missing, Atlantic Fleet Headquarters reported Thurday night.

The Daly plucked three men from the ocean and the merchant ship Alabama rescued two others.

Search for the six missing men was continued Thursday night by the Daly and two other destroyers, the Young and the Cotten.

The Alabama proceeded toward Cape Henry.

Finch Says He Hired "Gigolo"

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Dr. R. Bernard Finch said Thursday he told his mistress, Carole Tregoff, to try to hire a "gigolo" to take out the doctor's wife so he would have divorce evidence against her.

The surgeon, on the witness stand a second day in his trial with Miss Tregoff for murder, admitted as women jurors gazed stonily at him, that he was trying to find some "gangster or hood" in Las Vegas, Nev., who would undertake such a job.

The state charges he hired convict John Patrick Cody — not to get divorce evidence but to kill Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch. When Cody backed out, the state says, Finch and Carole went to the West Covina, Calif., home July 18 and shot the wife to death.

The doctor's voice was growing sharper and his demeanor grimmer as he went further and further into his story that the shooting was accidental and that his affair with Carole began only after his wife rejected him.

Defense lawyer Grant Cooper touched for the first time on the Las Vegas "conspiracy" after Finch testified that private detectives in Los Angeles had failed to get evidence about any unfaithfulness on the part of Mrs. Finch.

The trial sounded like a script from "77 Sunset Strip" as Cooper read of private eyes in their strange terminology detailing how they trailed the subject and lost her twice. Finch became disgusted and fired them.

Carole by this time late in June had gone to Las Vegas and Finch said he went there and asked if perhaps she couldn't contact an investigator there.

"I said there were opportunities in Las Vegas to get somebody, but lots of people go to Las Vegas and Reno to get a divorce and

Excited Cubans, Led By Castro, Greet Mikoyan

HAVANA (AP) — Anastas I. Mikoyan, Soviet deputy premier, trade expert and traveling man, arrived Thursday for a closeup look at revolutionary Cuba. Prime Minister Fidel Castro was on hand to greet him.

The trip brought the highest Soviet dignitary ever to visit Cuba here at a time of extreme strain in Cuban-U.S. relations.

The announced purpose of the week-long visit is for Mikoyan to open a Soviet scientific, technical and cultural exhibit on Friday.

But U.S. officials in Washington expect a strong propaganda effort by the Soviet delegation. They also said Mikoyan may have brought with him various proposals for Russian-Cuban trade. Castro has indicated in the past he will deal with Moscow.

Another possibility raised by the U.S. officials was that Mikoyan may seek to restore diplomatic relations between the Soviet Union and Cuba. They were broken off in 1952 after the then dictator Fulgencio Batista accused the Russians of bringing in diplomatic pouches stuffed with propaganda material.

Civil Rights Bill Hearings Begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of delay, the House Rules Committee opened public hearings Thursday on a civil rights bill.

Indications were that the hearings would be continued through most of next week at least, and that the bill eventually would be sent to the House floor under a rule allowing extended debate.

The strategy of opponents appeared to be to delay House action until after Feb. 15, when the Senate is due to start considering civil rights legislation.

Lack of a House bill could lead to a long delay in the Senate.

This could add to the difficulties of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who has promised passage this year of what he termed a meaningful civil rights bill.

Trujillo Aide Quits

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—The Dominican Republic's charge d'affaires, Alfredo Fernandez Simo, resigned Thursday saying he was "in complete disaccord" with dictator Rafael Trujillo.

Hundreds have been reported under arrest in the Dominican Republic in a Trujillo crackdown on opponents.

Storm Ices Midwestern Roads, Spawns Tornado

By The Associated Press

A slashing storm charged across the Mississippi Valley, icing highways and spinning off at least one tornado Thursday night after paralyzing a five-state area with heavy snowdrifts.

Whipping winds left drifts as deep as 10 feet in parts of the snowbound Southern Plains and Rockies. Phone lines were down. Highways were blocked. Schools were closed.

One by one the human strays caught in the blizzard Wednesday were located by rescuers. A school bus driver and five children were snug in a ranch home near Dalhart, Tex., when located after an all-night effort. Three persons missing in the Boise City neighborhood of Oklahoma's Panhandle turned up in good condition.

The character of the storm, and the emphasis, shifted eastward and north Thursday. Most precipitation turned to rain. But in the northern part of the storm path, the cold formed a glaze which made traffic hazardous in parts of Illinois, Missouri and Iowa.

A twister was reported by the Weather Bureau to have raked a section near Pelahatchi, Miss., 20 miles east of Jackson, causing damage.

Rain and glaze extended northeastward from the Southern Plains storm. Freezing rain fell from central Kansas to northwestern Illinois. To the south, there was rain spreading eastward in Indiana and Kentucky.

New Weapons Ready For Tests If Ban Ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is reported planning test explosions of three advanced types of nuclear weapons—if and when President Eisenhower orders a renewal of testing.

They include improved warheads for Polaris and Minuteman missiles, antimissile missiles, and small tactical bombs for battlefield use.

Some of Eisenhower's most influential advisers are said to feel the United States cannot continue its moratorium on nuclear weapons test explosions for many more months. They reportedly argue such action would amount to gambling on the chance that the Soviet Union through secret testing might overcome this country's assumed nuclear weapons lead.

Polaris, Jupiter Shots Success

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A Jupiter blazed across the sky on its final development flight and a Polaris recorded its fifth straight success in a spectacular missile doubleheader Thursday night.

The 28-foot Polaris, trailing the characteristic plume of white smoke soared to its Atlantic target 900 miles away. The Navy announced all test objectives were met.

The success kept the Polaris record perfect for 1960 and moved it closer to the day when it will roam the oceans of the world aboard nuclear submarines.

Two hours later, a 60-foot, intermediate-range Jupiter roared aloft on a 1,500-mile flight to close out a remarkably successful 35-month test program for this liquid-fueled giant.

The Army later said the shot was successful. An announcement noted that the test series had been completed four months ahead of schedule.

U.S., Russia In Wrangle Over Camp David Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—An argument flared up between the Soviet Embassy and the State Department Thursday over what was said at Camp David last September between President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The Soviets said the question of settling their lend lease debt was coupled at the Camp David talks with the removal of trade restrictions against their country. They also renewed a contention that the British received favored treatment, including a long term loan, when they settled their lend lease account.

State Department press officer Lincoln White denied that Eisenhower ever told Khrushchev that credits and trade could be tied in with a lend lease package settlement.

"On the contrary," White told a news conference, "Mr. Khrushchev said he didn't need any credit and didn't want any credit."

White said an American loan to Great Britain in 1946 came six months after the British settled their lend lease account, and was not part of the same transaction.

The exchange followed last week's collapse of negotiations on a settlement of Russia's lend lease debt. The United States offered to settle for 800 million dollars. The Russians, before they raised the trade-credit angle, had offered 300 million.

The embassy statement said the Soviet Union is ready to resume negotiations at any time "with simultaneous normalization of economic relations" with the United States.

Judge Turns Down Move To Set Aside Milk Market Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maryland - Delaware Eastern Shore dairymen renewed Thursday their efforts to overturn a federal milk marketing order in effect since Feb. 1.

In a separate action, by another group, a federal judge turned down a move by the state of Minnesota and several Maryland Eastern Shore dairymen to have the order nullified.

Judge Edward A. Tamm of U.S. District Court held that Minnesota had no status to sue in the case. In regard to the Eastern Shore parties, Tamm ruled that the secretary of agriculture acted properly and within his authority in issuing the marketing order for the Upper Chesapeake Bay area.

Minnesota, which said dairymen of that state ship to the Baltimore area, and the other parties to the court suit contended the manner of voting on the milk order excluded some of these shippers from participating in the referendum.

The Maryland-Delaware group in pursuing administrative remedy filed an amended petition Thursday with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

A hearing on the issue has been scheduled for Feb. 24 before an examiner of the Department of Agriculture.

The amended petition contended the order benefits no producer or handler outside of Baltimore.

"The only beneficiaries of restrictive trade barriers in Baltimore are the proponents and the Baltimore dairies," the petition said.

"No consumer is advantaged, and no producer or handler outside of Baltimore is advantaged," the petition added.

"To the contrary, the interests of all but the group protected by the trade barriers are deprived unfairly and discriminatorily of their rights.

"The decision and order, by systematically favoring the evidence of the beneficiaries of these restrictive trade practices, systematically suppressing the evidence of those outside the protection of the monopoly, necessarily embraces and strengthens the inequitous stranglehold this favored group has on the area's principal market."

The petition said designation of the marketing area as "the Upper Chesapeake Bay, Maryland, milk marketing area" instead of the "Baltimore marketing area" shows an intent to spread the regulation.

Porumbeanu's Wife Sues Him For Separation

NEW YORK (AP)—Andrei Porumbeanu's wife sued him for separation Thursday. She charged from a Staten Island hideout that he was a gay and practicing Lothario long before his runaway romance with heiress Gamble Benedict.

"He boasted to me of his conquests," Helma (Mady) Porumbeanu, 33, said in her surprise suit against the dashing Romanian-born ex-chauffeur. She labeled his liaison with Gamble a brazen affair.

As for her going into hiding with her 10-year-old daughter, Mrs. Porumbeanu said this was prompted not by the Benedict family—as Andrei had charged—but by her own refusal "to let the public make a Roman holiday of his conduct at our expense."

Mrs. Porumbeanu's picture of Andrei as a faithless husband was somewhat different than his own self-portrait. He has said he is the victim of an unhappy marriage, suddenly stricken with love for the 19-year-old Gamble. In pursuit of their romance, they ran away together to Paris.

Porumbeanu, 35, has let it be known that he wants a divorce from his wife so he can marry the teen-age Remington typewriter heiress.

A separation, however, is a big step short of divorce. It would thwart his expressed desires, since it bars either party from remarriage. At the same time it would force him to support his wife and daughter.

Gamble was brought back to New York by her family Jan. 23, charged in court as a wayward girl, and placed in the custody of her grandmother, Katherine Geddes Benedict. The girl agreed not to see Porumbeanu as long as he was married.

Dalai Lama Moved Gold Out Of Tibet

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The exiled Dalai Lama has deposited in Calcutta banks a sizable fortune in gold which he sent out of Tibet ahead of the Chinese Communists, authoritative sources said Thursday.

Several hundred mule-loads of gold bars were sent from Tibet when the Chinese invaded in 1951. The gold was hidden in the Gangtok mountaintop capital of Sikkim. The cache in that Indian protectorate state in the Himalayas has been a closely guarded secret.

Last month, the gold was moved out of Gangtok in the early hours of the morning by truck and flown at sunrise from a nearby airport to Calcutta.

Diana's Death Due To Alcohol And Pills

NEW YORK (AP)—A medical report Thursday blamed actress Diana Barrymore's death on the combined effect of alcohol and sleeping pills.

The 38 - year - old actress, her looks and talents devastated by years of dissipation, was found dead in bed in her apartment Jan. 25. A preliminary autopsy failed to disclose the cause of her death, although her own doctor thought a heart attack might be to blame.

Further chemical analysis of her vital organs led to Thursday's report from Chief Medical Examiner Milton Helpern.

Dr. Helpern said the analysis showed a small amount of barbitures — not enough in itself to cause death — combined with "a large amount of ethyl alcohol."

"Ladies' Man" Guilty Of Theft

BALTIMORE (AP) — According to the judge, William J. Darby's troubles resulted from "trying to keep in line three women who were in love with him at the same time."

The 30-year-old suspended fireman was convicted Thursday of stealing money from a firemen's "rainy day" fund and stealing rings from a widow.

According to testimony at the trial, the married defendant took the wedding and engagement rings from Mrs. Lucy E. Gerwig so he could measure new rings to be used at their wedding.

Then, it was testified, he gave the rings to Miss Barbara Black, 17, and stole $144 from the firemen's fund on the same day he left for New Orleans with Miss Black.

Jaccoud Guilty In Love Slaying

GENEVA (AP) — Pierre Jaccoud, a leading citizen of this staid commercial city, Thursday was sentenced to seven years in prison for a love triangle killing that shocked the Swiss.

A jury of seven men and five women convicted Jaccoud, 55, of fatally stabbing and shooting Charles Zumbach, a 62-year-old farm machinery salesman he hardly knew. Zumbach's son, Andre, succeeded Jaccoud for a time as the lover of 34-year-old Linda Baud, who had been Jaccoud's mistress for eight years.

Both love affairs already had broken up by the time of the killing on May 1, 1958. The reason for shooting the elder rather than the younger Zumbach was never clear, although police blamed it on Jaccoud's misdirected jealousy of the son.

Jaccoud, former president of the local bar association, municipal councillor and member of the city's high society, was a broken man by the end of the trial. Suffering from a serious circulatory ailment, the defendant fainted several times in court even though stretched out on a hospital chair.

Insurance 'Risk' Starts Long Walk

BALTIMORE (AP)—John Bangert, out to prove to the world that he is a health speciman, has started walking to New Orleans.

The 43-year - old Philadelphian left Baltimore Thursday for a jaunt that should take him down the East Coast to Florida and then to New Orleans and possibly the West Coast.

He explained that he was taking to the road to prove that he is fit and healthy. He was recently refused insurance and a job he wanted.

Apparently when he told them of 22 fractures he has suffered at various times they thought he was a poor risk.

Bangert has set a tremendous pace for himself—seven miles an hour. His stride is just one yard long he trots along at the rate of 120 steps a minute.

Traveling lightly, he is carrying only an extra pair of ripple-soled shoes in his pack. He plans to sleep in hotels or rooming houses and eat in restaurants.

His longest previous walk, he said, was from Philadelphia to Atlantic City. He walked the 60 miles in 7 hours and 56 minutes, wore out a pair of shoes and won a $50 bet.

HEART STOPPED—Deborah Lynn Woodard, 5, and her mother were having a gay time in her hospital room in Austin, Tex., yesterday, Tuesday, Deborah's heart stopped beating during a minor eye operation. The eye specialist sent for a surgeon who made an incision in the girl's chest, massaged the heart, and then it started beating normally enough to continue the eye operation. Mrs. F. A. Woodard, of Luling, Tex., said it was a "miracle" that the surgeon was nearby and acted when he did. (AP Photofax)

Man's Body Found In Harford County

CONOWINGO, Md. (AP) — The body of a veterans hospital patient was found near U.S. 1 and Poole Road in Harford County Thursday, State Police reported.

He was identified from papers in his pocket as Francis W. Gowen Jr., 42, of Philadelphia.

State Police at Conowingo Barracks said there was no sign of foul play and that Gowen apparently died from exposure. It was estimated he had been dead one week. A State Roads Commission worker came across the body.

Gowen was a mental patient at Perry Point (Md.) Veterans Hospital, where he had been since Sept. 15, 1955.

Dr. Gerald Palmer, Harford County medical examiner, scheduled an autopsy.

State Police at Conowingo Barracks said there was no sign of foul play and that Gowen apparently died from exposure. It was estimated he had been dead one week. A State Roads Commission worker came across the body.

Gowen was a mental patient at Perry Point (Md.) Veterans Hospital, where he had been since Sept. 15, 1955.

Dr. Gerald Palmer, Harford County medical examiner, scheduled an autopsy.

Era Of U.S. "Good Neighbor Policy" In Latin America Fast Nearing End

By FRANCIS L. McCARTHY

NEW YORK (UPI)—An end to the era of the "Good Neighbor Policy" in Latin America is just around the corner.

A continent-wide upsurge of nationalism, spurred by international Communism, has doomed the policy laid down by the late F.D.R. in the mid-thirties to supplant the "Dollar Diplomacy" days of U.S. Marine landings in Haiti, Nicaragua and the Dominican Republic.

The rising tide of nationalism throughout the hemisphere has served to distance the United States from its neighbors to the south. It spells an inevitable end to the Good Neighbor Policy which has governed U.S. relations with Latin America for more than two decades.

President Eisenhower's scheduled trip to South America later this month represents a foreign policy decision of the first order. It constitutes State Department recognition of the need for an urgent "re-appraisal" of U.S. policy toward Latin America.

Basic reason for the sudden spurt in nationalistic feeling throughout the hemisphere is the Cuban revolution. The success story of the bearded young revolutionary, Fidel Castro, who, with a handful of men in a remote mountain hideout, toppled a dictatorial regime has stirred the ever active Latin imagination.

Accompanying agrarian reform with what Latins regard as mainly defiance of the "Colossus to the North" has further thrilled susceptible Latins and sent their imaginations soaring.

A decade ago the political sports of the "have nots" was twisting the tail of the British lion. Today's diplomatic pastime within the hemisphere has been pulling the whiskers from Uncle Sam's beard.

President Eisenhower's forthcoming trip will furnish an accurate barometer as to the urgency of the need for formation of a new U.S. political attitude toward Latin America. If he is well received, as is generally expected, the policy-planners in Washington may proceed at comparative leisure. If his reception is lukewarm to cool, it will indicate the need for accelerated diplomatic remedial action.

Governments of the four countries to be visited by Eisenhower—Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Uruguay—already have served notice on the Communist elements in their national life that any unfriendly demonstrations during the visit will be sternly handled.

Reports from the capitals of those countries indicate, also, that identifiable radical elements will be rounded up in "preventive detention" prior to and during Eisenhower's visit. Presumably they will be released coincident with his departure.

One purpose of the recent trip to South America by James Hagerty, White House press secretary, was to consult with local authorities on security precautions being taken in those capitals. Authorities in such countries as Argentina, Brazil and Chile, with large local Communist affiliates, long have kept dossiers on the militant among the Reds. These presumably have been checked against Central Intelligence Agency master lists of known hemisphere agitators.

As a result of the preliminary measures being taken to safeguard Eisenhower, one fact emerges crystal-clear. That is, if any demonstrations are staged against the U.S. Chief Executive they will be preconceived and not spur-of-the-moment affairs.

NEW YORK (AP) — Science stocks, sometimes criticized as over-priced and erratic performers, came through the January market decline in quite good shape.

The financial analyst, Spear and Staff, Inc., Wednesday called the group's primary market position basically strong.

Spear's average of science stocks went down 5.7 per cent last month, compared with a .92 per cent drop for the Dow Jones industrial average. In the September-December advance, the science stock average doubled the gain made by the general market.

"Looking at the market over the near term," said Spear, "it is difficult to see a major decline developing for space age stocks.

"There is almost unanimous agreement that this strong growth trend will extend well into 161."

Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. said it believes that after some profit-taking "constructive forces will be able to maintain the upper hand" in the stock market.

"We could well make up one-third to two-thirds of the approximately 70-point decline in the Dow Jones industrial average," it said, "so that from a technical viewpoint an optimistic outlook is warranted for further recovery of stock prices."

TV To Hunt Miners

COALBROOK, South Africa (UPI) — Rescue workers hope Thursday to use closed - circuit television as a means of finding out whether any of the 440 miners trapped in Clydesdale Colliery two weeks ago are still alive.

Air pollution and water tests were being conducted before a television camera and microphone are lowered down a 500-foot shaft to the depth where many of the coal miners were last seen before the mine collapsed.

Traffic Tickets And Average Driver

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—If you're the average American motorist, every 9.2 years you're going to get a ticket for running a red light, for speeding, or for reckless driving.

Every 10 years you'll be involved in an accident in which the damage runs to $100 or more.

These statistics on the average driver were put out this week by the American Automobile Assn. They're based on a study by Ernest P. Davis, safety and traffic director of the Auto Club of Michigan.

Davis pored over accident and traffic ticket statistics from across the country and decided the average driver will also:

1. Have a moving violation ticket every 3.7 years. This merely means his vehicle will be moving at the time. It can be as simple as pulling out from the curb without signaling, or one-arm driving.

2. Find a parking ticket waiting for him every 2.8 years.

3. Get a reckless driving ticket every 69.5 years.

4. Get a speeding ticket for doing anything from a mile over the limit to up to as fast as the auto will run—every 15 years.

5. Drive 9,357 miles a year.

6. Pile up 1,400 miles on his vacation.

7. Ring up 500,000 miles in his lifetime of driving.

Many of us live in dread of having an accident in which someone is hurt. The average driver will have one such mishap every 68 years. Or, to put it another way, he is a little more likely to be in such an accident than he is to get a ticket for reckless driving, at 69.5 years.

The most unusual statistic, as well as the most senseless, is this: "The average driver gets a ticket for being under the influence of alcohol while driving 436 years."

This, of course, shows how foolish average statistics can become.

Do-It-Yourself Boat Builders Have Problem

ASHLAND, Ky. (UPI) — Building a 48-foot-paddle wheel steamboat in your backyard is one thing, but getting the craft to the water is an altogether different problem as two Ashland, Ky., brothers are finding out.

C. E. Montague Jr. and his brother Roland built the boat in their back yard here, more than a mile from the Ohio River.

The boat itself is made up of parts from some rather odd sources.

A ferryboat, the "Little Fred," which served for some time as a passenger ship at Greenup, Ky., donated the chain and gear driver.

The power plant and the steam boiler were acquired from a Connecticut cruiser and the whistle is from an old Chesapeake & Ohio steam locomotive. It was given to the Montagues by C&O president Walter Touhy.

The boat will sleep eight and has a galley, bath and roomy pilot house.

The boat is named "The Lucy Coles" which might stir memories among oldtimers familiar with river lore.

The Montague brothers said that years ago, before modernized coal delivery, the Ashland Coal & Iron Railway was forced to pay heavy tolls to cross a railroad bridge at Kenova, W. Va.

Rather than pay the high rate, a towing service was put into operation, using the steamer "The Lucy Coles."

British Face Strike

LONDON (UPI) — The British railway network and London's subway system are threatened with a new complete stoppage Feb. 15 unless railway union strike plans are changed before then.

The National Union of Railwaymen has threatened to call out 13,000 of Britain's 19,000 railroad employees, including about 85 per cent of the operating personnel of the London Transport System.

Approximately 40 per cent of the women listed in Who's Who have never been married.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — American home economists are joining hands with professional kin around the world in an effort to improve homelife and living standards on an international basis.

Olga P. Brucher, president of the American Home Economics Association, said in an interview that the global cooperation is "a model of international effort unhampered by politics."

The program for improving affairs of the hearth is based on mutual aid and on the continuing exchange of knowledge and special skills.

Miss Brucher, dean of the College of Home Economics at Rhode Island University, said "increased international understanding is a priceless by-product."

Members of the AHEA work closely with agencies of the United States government, the United Nations and the International Federation of Home Economics. The association maintains an international scholarship program.

Through the scholarship program, home economics students from other nations are brought to the U.S. to study at American colleges and universities.

Since the inception of the program, students from 38 countries have received special training aimed at helping them to develop programs to improve home and family life in their native lands.

Miss Brucher said students trained under the international scholarship program have returned to their own countries well equipped to adapt to the needs of their own people the skills they have learned as teachers of home economics.

When dealing with full-fledged home economists from around the world, Miss Brucher said members of the AHEA help to interpret American family life and home economics programs dealing with problems on the homefront.

She said members in their international dealings also try to learn of family life, cultural patterns and educational programs in other countries.

The result: international sharing of home economics knowledge.

Despite success achieved so far, Miss Brucher said, there are still difficult problems to be solved in the area of international home economics — just as there are in other international fields.

"Home economics," she said, "has an ever expanding role in the future of a troubled and discordant world. Working as it does, it deals with the basic foundational structure of world society—the well-being of home and family.

"By educating for better family living, we are educating for a better world."

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—If you're the average American motorist, every 9.2 years you're going to get a ticket for running a red light, for speeding, or for reckless driving.

Every 10 years you'll be involved in an accident in which the damage runs to $100 or more. These statistics on the average driver were put out this week by the American Automobile Assn. They're based on a study by Ernest P. Davis, safety and traffic director of the Auto Club of Michigan.

Davis pored over accident and traffic ticket statistics from across the country and decided the average driver will also:

1. Have a moving violation ticket every 3.7 years. This merely means his vehicle will be moving at the time. It can be as simple as pulling out from the curb without signaling, or one-arm driving.

2. Find a parking ticket waiting for him every 2.8 years.

3. Get a reckless driving ticket every 69.5 years.

4. Get a speeding ticket for doing anything from a mile over the limit to up to as fast as the auto will run—every 15 years.

5. Drive 9,357 miles a year.

6. Pile up 1,400 miles on his vacation.

7. Ring up 500,000 miles in his lifetime of driving.

Many of us live in dread of having an accident in which someone is hurt. The average driver will have one such mishap every 68 years. Or, to put it another way, he is a little more likely to be in such an accident than he is to get a ticket for reckless driving, at 69.5 years.

The fatal accident comes with 16,400,000 miles of driving.

The most unusual statistic, as well as the most senseless, is this: "The average driver gets a ticket for being under the influence of alcohol while driving 436 years."

Do-It-Yourself Boat Builders Have Problem

ASHLAND, Ky. (UPI) — Building a 48-foot-paddle wheel steamboat in your backyard is one thing, but getting the craft to the water is an altogether different problem as two Ashland, Ky., brothers are finding out.

C. E. Montague Jr. and his brother Roland built the boat in their back yard here, more than a mile from the Ohio River.

The boat itself is made up of parts from some rather odd sources.

A ferryboat, the "Little Fred," which served for some time as a passenger ship at Greenup, Ky., donated the chain and gear driver.

The power plant and the steam boiler were acquired from a Connecticut cruiser and the whistle is from an old Chesapeake & Ohio steam locomotive. It was given to the Montagues by C&O president Walter Touhy.

The boat will sleep eight and has a galley, bath and roomy pilot house.

The boat is named "The Lucy Coles" which might stir memories among oldtimers familiar with river lore.

The Montague brothers said that years ago, before modernized coal delivery, the Ashland Coal & Iron Railway was forced to pay heavy tolls to cross a railroad bridge at Kenova, W. Va.

Rather than pay the high rate, a towing service was put into operation, using the steamer "The Lucy Coles."

British Face Strike

LONDON (UPI) — The British railway network and London's subway system are threatened with a new complete stoppage Feb. 15 unless railway union strike plans are changed before then.

The National Union of Railwaymen has threatened to call out 13,000 of Britain's 19,000 railroad employees, including about 85 per cent of the operating personnel of the London Transport System.

Approximately 40 per cent of the women listed in Who's Who have never been married.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — American home economists are joining hands with professional kin around the world in an effort to improve homelife and living standards on an international basis.

Olga P. Brucher, president of the American Home Economics Association, said in an interview that the global cooperation is "a model of international effort unhampered by politics."

The program for improving affairs of the hearth is based on mutual aid and on the continuing exchange of knowledge and special skills.

Miss Brucher, dean of the College of Home Economics at Rhode Island University, said "increased international understanding is a priceless by-product."

Members of the AHEA work closely with agencies of the United States government, the United Nations and the International Federation of Home Economics. The association maintains an international scholarship program.

Through the scholarship program, home economics students from other nations are brought to the U.S. to study at American colleges and universities.

Since the inception of the program, students from 38 countries have received special training aimed at helping them to develop programs to improve home and family life in their native lands.

Miss Brucher said students trained under the international scholarship program have returned to their own countries well equipped to adapt to the needs of their own people the skills they have learned as teachers of home economics.

When dealing with full-fledged home economists from around the world, Miss Brucher said members of the AHEA help to interpret American family life and home economics programs dealing with problems on the homefront.

She said members in their international dealings also try to learn of family life, cultural patterns and educational programs in other countries.

The result: international sharing of home economics knowledge.

Despite success achieved so far, Miss Brucher said, there are still difficult problems to be solved in the area of international home economics — just as there are in other international fields.

"Home economics," she said, "has an ever expanding role in the future of a troubled and discordant world. Working as it does, it deals with the basic foundational structure of world society—the well-being of home and family.

"By educating for better family living, we are educating for a better world."

Legislature Sidelights

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A bill to reduce the length and number of terms which may be served by University of Maryland regents was introduced by Sen. Mary L. Nock (D-Wicomico).

The measure would reduce the length of each term from nine years to seven and would restrict each regent to no more than two terms on the university board.

Sen. Robert P. Dean (D-Queen Annes) would require the appointment of at least one farmer to three-member property review boards which help settle disputes over the value of land condemned by the State Roads Commission. Dean introduced a bill which makes the appointment of a farmer to such boards mandatory. The make-up of the boards must now include at least one lawyer and background.

Legislation introduced by Sen. Della (D-Balto 6th) would remove the $250 state license fee requirement for motion picture theaters. Della said the measure would mean the loss of about $28,000 in state money, much of which is returned to the local subdivisions where it is collected.

He added that his bill would not affect the right of local governments to continue taxing movie houses.

Another bill by Della would extend the deadline for the new development Credit Corp. to begin operations. The corporation was created by a 1959 act to make loans available to industries or businesses in economically depressed areas when such enterprises could not obtain loans from banks or other lending institutions.

The original measure required the corporation to begin operating by April or close shop, but supporters of the plan say legal red tape has retarded development of the project. Della's measure would extend the deadline to October.

Bathyscaph Window Cracked During Dive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The world's two deepest sea divers disclosed Thursday a plexiglass window in their Navy bathyscaph cracked with a rifle-like report during their record-breaking descent into the Pacific last month.

They also discounted a theory that radioactive wastes could be safely disposed of by sinking them into deep ocean trenches.

The President also honored Dr. Andreas B. Rechnitzer of the naval electronics laboratory and Navy Lt. Lawrence A. Shumaker, surface crew for the 37,800-foot dive on Jan. 23.

Minister's Pray For Slot Ban

WALDORF, Md. (AP)—Charles County clergymen and other church leaders Wednesday night appealed for Divine aid in ridding Southern Maryland of slot machines.

About a dozen ministers were among the approximately 140 persons who attended an interdenominational meeting sponsored by the Charles County Ministerial Assn.

The Rev. Andrew L. Gunn, association president, asked for Divine intercession in the group's efforts and outlined the association's objectives.

The first step, he said, is to seek an investigation by the General Assembly of the slot machine situation.

The second, he said, is to obtain 5,000 signatures on a petition that will call for elimination of the machines.

The association has scheduled another meeting for Sunday and a third meeting for the first week in March.

Kennedy And Humphrey To Clash In West Virginia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota Thursday settled on West Virginia for a new clash in their campaigns for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Kennedy announced he will go into the May 10 West Virginia presidential primary, and also the one in Indiana May 3. He challenged Humphrey and all other Democratic presidential aspirants to meet him in Indiana and elsewhere.

Humphrey, through an aide he sent to Charleston, put up the $1,000 fee for filing in West Virginia. The primary outcome will not be binding on the state's delegates, who will have 25 votes in the national nominating convention at Los Angeles in July.

Indiana will have 34 votes in the convention. The outcome of the primary will be binding on the Hoosier delegates for at least the first ballot at Los Angeles.

Kennedy told a Washington news conference that with his West Virginia and Indiana entries, he will have completed — as of now — the list of states in which he plans to enter primaries.

He said California might yet be a possibility, but he won't decide on that primary until sometime in March. He told a questioner he regards Gov. Edmund G. Brown as a legitimate favorite-son candidate in California.

Kennedy, Humphrey and Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon are the only candidates for the Democratic nomination who have formally declared their intentions and have entered any state primaries.

Humphrey is offering himself to primary voters in Wisconsin, West Virginia, the District of Columbia, Oregon and South Dakota. He has not decided on Nebraska or Indiana, but plans to act shortly on Nebraska.

Kennedy is either in, or planning to be in, primaries in Wisconsin, West Virginia, Oregon, Nebraska, Indiana, New Hampshire, Ohio and Maryland.

Singer Tommy Sands Has Draft Board Date

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Tommy Sands, Houston's contribution to rock 'n' roll, has a date with his draft board.

The 22-year-old singer was scheduled to report Wednesday for a preinduction physical, but has not reported.

"Out of town registrants have five days in which to contact the board," said Judy Dickson, board No. 61 clerk.

Provided he passes the physical, Sands would have at least 21 days before being inducted.

Service Group Volunteers For Work, Hears Talk

An appeal for volunteer workers and announcement of a card party were made at the meeting of the Community Service Group of the Women's Civic Club yesterday at the club house. Members signed a petition to be sent to the County Commissioners, favoring a county library. Volunteers were asked to help with office work at the library and to work with the Red Cross Motors Corps.

Mrs. Emmett Jones announced that the Woman's Civic Club will hold a Mad Hatters card party earily in April. It is to raise funds for the Girls Scouts and Frostburg State Teachers College.

The vast difference between Russia and her satellite countries was stressed by Mrs. John Hafer Sr., in speaking of her trip by jet to Central Europe and to Israel. She said that even though all are under Communist rule, it is easy to see that the satellites have known something better, while the Russians never have. Speaking of Prague, she said the people have better food and clothing than she had seen in Russia. There is no lighting at night except the very little in the cities, which are not kept up. With one exception, Russia has built large stadiums and war memorials depicting how she had saved the country from being overrun by the Germans, in each large satellite city.

The lack of free enterprise was noticeable, Mrs. Hafer said, as there were no billboards, for everything is sold by the state. She found everyone "scared to death" to talk."

Speaking of Vienna, she said it was wonderful to get there, the opera house is beautiful, the food excellent, especially the coffee, and there are lovely shops there, which one does not see in the satellite cities. She also touched on the fascination between the old and new.

"Perfectly beautiful" was Mrs. Hafer's description of Istanbul. She touched on the mosques, and how one could see the difference in the mosaics of the Christian era and now under the Moslems, the former being covered with curtains and the altars changed to face Mecca. The speaker explained that the "Call to Prayer" is made five times a day, and her impression that the Moslem kneels to prayer wherever he is is no longer true, for they know the time and try to be near a mosque at that time. She said the women no longer are veiled; the streets are very narrow, some even too narrow for small cars, and that the Moslems are not afraid of Communist infiltration for they believe in fate.

What the Jewish people have done in Isreal is wonderful, the speaker declared, and said she continually thought of the passage in the Bible that everything would be cultivated again together. She also told how they have removed the sand, which has piled up for years over the fertile soil, and used it to build roads. To conquer the water problem, modern plants have been built. A Red Cross blood bank offers blood to both Jew and Arab; and the white trucks, ambulances and station wagons donated by Hadassah societies from the United States inscribe in red letters the name of the city or state of the society. There is an orphanage, with each story for an age group for children from all over the world.

The luncheon committee was composed of Mrs. William Fridinger, chairman; Mrs. Eric Gibbs, Mrs. Albert Darby Jr., and Mrs. W. Elmo Channell.

Associate Judge Neil C. Fraley will hear arguments today in Garrett County Circuit Court in the case involving the estate o. an Oakland man who died February 15, 1959 as the result o an auto accident.

Judge Fraley, who will also receive briefs from the attorneys in the case, heard testimony several weeks ago in the dispute.

Letters of administration on the estate of Richard S. Browning, who was 84 at the time of his death, were obtained in Orphans Court in Oakland by Robert E. Browning, son of the deceased.

Mrs. Helen Elizabeth (Pratt) Shafer Browning, 56, of Deer Park, reported second wife of the deceased, came into Orphans Court and asked for letters of administration on the estate. The estate includes some valuable property on Deep Creek Lake, according to court attaches.

The Orphans Court submitted the matter to Judge Fraley for a decision on the issue: "Who is the lawful wife?"

Attorneys for the administrator of the estate, Louis R. and E. Ray Jones, told the court that the deceased had been married in 1912 at Spokane, Wash., to Margaret Lewis. She still lives and resides in White Plains, N. Y., with a daughter.

The reported second wife was married to Browning shortly after the couple obtained a wedding license at the Court House in Cumberland on January 14, 1959. The ceremony was performed by a minister in Frostburg.

Horace P. Whitworth Jr., is attorney for the second wife.

Dress For Your Double Life

A woman and her dress lead a double life. She must choose her costumes to wear well in all her worlds . . . home and community, business and social.

Just as all her worlds are one, no one woman can be identified by one "uniform" that tells her trade. The homemaker mustn't let rolled-up jeans and her husband's old shirt, tails out, shriek Housework! The secretary mustn't imitate the stark tailoring of a steel file cabinet from 9 to 5, especially if she has a dinner date at 6.

Both women want clothes that are functional . . . but fun to wear!

For the career girl, accessories are the answer. In fact, some dresses and suits are accessories in themselves, designed for a double life. Like the scoop-necked sheath dress, masked modestly by day by a matching dressmaker jacket . . . probably the greatest boon to the working girl since the power sewing machine, the electric typewriter and the telescope umbrella!

Accessories to "carry along" run the gamut of costume-gems, from dangling earrings and sparkling combs to jeweled clips for plain suede pumps. And all the little-hats, those veiled and bedecked headbands, are an easy style-secret to transport to the office. If the hat is simple, she can dress up her hair with a wisp of a wig . . . tiny caps of extra hair, clusters of curls, to pin where she will for a festive after-5 coiffure.

If she wears a spotless prim white dickey with her suit for desk duty, she can whip out pearls to replace the dickey after 5. And has she practiced the dramatic effects possible with swishing scarves or glamorous belts and sashes?

One elegant accessory can solve the luggage problem on dress-up days — the convertible carry-all. Not quite a purse, not exactly a jewel case, not merely a make-up box . . . it's a handsome container of wood or tooled leather with strong hinges and a long loop of leather for holding. It's neater to pack than an overcrowded pocketbook, smaller and less obvious than a suitcase, hat box or shopping bag. And it's a conversation-piece in itself.

There are endless possibilities to explore for the career girl who wants to be efficient . . . and feminine, too.

Annual Recreation Report Is Submitted To City Council

The eleventh annual report of the city Recreation Department is being distributed to the Mayor and Council, other department heads and interested city groups, C. Eugene Mason, director, said yesterday.

The indexed, blue and white report covers 10 pages. Mason said the program has made tremendous strides since its beginning. At the start it had but a few playgrounds and ballfields. Today, he added, there are 14 supervised playgrounds with a registration of more than 3,000 youngsters and a broad, varied program for all age levels.

Expressing gratitude and thanks to those who have assisted in the work, Mason paid tribute to local organizations, business establishments, contractors, educators, city departments and individuals.

In addition to Mason, the department staff includes Mrs. Eva M. Hogan, assistant director, Mrs. Helen Carroll Leo, secretary, and Carl Wolfe, maintenance chief.

In its spring-summer rec program, the department said 260 participated in Dapper Dan Little League baseball play; 144 in Hot Stove League and 70 in the High School League. Eight hundred participated in an Easter Play Day and 2,000 in a department-sponsored marbles elimination and a resulting playoff sponsored by the Lions Club which sent the winner to the national finals at Asbury Park, N. J.

During the summer, 13,902 youngsters took advantage of facilities at the Constitution Park swimming pool and 80 participated in Junior and Senior Lifesaving courses. The department also sponsored tennis instruction with 500 taking part.

Sixteen leaders of playgrounds attended a training institute and supervised play during the season for the 3,255 registered at the 14 playgrounds for the five-day a week program. Attendance and participation in various special events sponsored under the playground program exceeded 8,500.

Adults activities included bridge playing group, men's recreation softball league with 299 participants; and swimming and classes which attracted 10,301. Ten tennis courts were available during the season.

As many thousands participated in the winter program which is still in progress. It included youth activities such as babysitters classes, sub-deb classes, ice skating, basketball league and Coin Club.

Adult activities included badminton, basketball (men and women), beginners bridge and a bridge-playing group, Coin Club, ice skating, Senior Citizens Club, and the Women's Recreation Association.

Department services include distribution of babysitter lists and picnic booklets with 9,000 benefitting from the latter service; loaning of equipment for games, picnics, movies and the like; and conducting a consultant service.

FCC Will Seek Anti-Deception Radio-TV Laws

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission Thursday announced it is drawing up proposed legislation to punish deceptions on the air such as those involved in the TV quiz show and disc jockey payola scandals.

The commission also said it intends to tighten its own rules covering the responsibility of individual broadcast stations, especially with respects to programs produced by "outsiders," such as was the case with quiz show presentations.

New laws in the broadcast deception field were suggested in a report submitted to the White House by Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers in late December. The commission said that other recommendations in that report were under consideration.

The FCC noted that under present law, neither outside program producers nor disc jockeys are subject to FCC regulation, and that the commission cannot act against any specific program unless it violates a specific law, such as the prohibition against obscenity and lottery advetisements.

"Making reprehensible practices definite violations of the law would permit the commission to apply to the court upon a proper allegation of fact for a temporary injunction or restraining order pending a public hearing," the commission said.

Meanwhile, the Health Department, which is to occupy the vacated space, is getting bids for minor remodeling work needed before it can leave rented quarters on the second floor of the Public Safety Building.

Judge Reverses

Judge Harris noted that the State Health Department filed a letter in this cause that Mr. Dougherty has conducted his garage and warehouse business for garbage trucks at his present location on Wineow Street so that there were no health hazards, that his equipment meets Health Department regulations and there has been no cause for complaint.

His opinion further states, as follows:

"The appellant approached the purchase of this lot in a careful, conservative and orderly manner. The city engineer advised him that the location of the land he desired to purchase for use as a truck garage was in an area where such use was permitted and not in violation of the zoning regulations. On the strength of this information he invested $3,000 in land and building material. If this procedure were followed no one would ever know what his rights were.

"The purpose of zoning law is, of course, to devote general areas or districts to selected uses. The whole value of zoning lies in the establishment of more or less permanent districts well planned and arranged . . . .

"In the instant case there was no attempt to go back and amend the ordinance but here the action taken by the Board of Zoning Appeals was capricious, arbitrary and unreasonable. So long as the district in question is zoned "business" it must be dealt with as a business district and people are entitled to rely on the zoning and conduct their business accordingly as the appellant did in the present case.

"For the reasons heretofore set forth the decision of the Board of Zoning Appeals denying the building and occupancy permit for the lots in question for the purposes heretofore stated, is declared to be arbitrary, capricious and discriminatory, and the decision is hereby reversed."

FCC Will Seek Anti-Deception Radio-TV Laws

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission Thursday announced it is drawing up proposed legislation to punish deceptions on the air such as those involved in the TV quiz show and disc jockey payola scandals.

The commission also said it intends to tighten its own rules covering the responsibility of individual broadcast stations, especially with respects to programs produced by "outsiders," such as was the case with quiz show presentations.

New laws in the broadcast deception field were suggested in a report submitted to the White House by Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers in late December. The commission said that other recommendations in that report were under consideration.

The FCC noted that under present law, neither outside program producers nor disc jockeys are subject to FCC regulation, and that the commission cannot act against any specific program unless it violates a specific law, such as the prohibition against obscenity and lottery advetisements.

"Making reprehensible practices definite violations of the law would permit the commission to apply to the court upon a proper allegation of fact for a temporary injunction or restraining order pending a public hearing," the commission said.

Meanwhile, the Health Department, which is to occupy the vacated space, is getting bids for minor remodeling work needed before it can leave rented quarters on the second floor of the Public Safety Building.

Judge Reverses

the trucks are to be cleansed thoroughly with water and sprayed with a disinfectant.

Judge Harris noted that the State Health Department filed a letter in this cause that Mr. Dougherty has conducted his garage and warehouse business for garbage trucks at his present location on Wineow Street so that there were no health hazards, that his equipment meets Health Department regulations and there has been no cause for complaint.

His opinion further states, as follows:

"The appellant approached the purchase of this lot in a careful, conservative and orderly manner. The city engineer advised him that the location of the land he desired to purchase for use as a truck garage was in an area where such use was permitted and not in violation of the zoning regulations. On the strength of this information he invested $3,000 in land and building material. If this procedure were followed no one would ever know what his rights were.

"The purpose of zoning law is, of course, to devote general areas or districts to selected uses. The whole value of zoning lies in the establishment of more or less permanent districts well planned and arranged . . . .

"In the instant case there was no attempt to go back and amend the ordinance but here the action taken by the Board of Zoning Appeals was capricious, arbitrary and unreasonable. So long as the district in question is zoned "business" it must be dealt with as a business district and people are entitled to rely on the zoning and conduct their business accordingly as the appellant did in the present case.

"For the reasons heretofore set forth the decision of the Board of Zoning Appeals denying the building and occupancy permit for the lots in question for the purposes heretofore stated, is declared to be arbitrary, capricious and discriminatory, and the decision is hereby reversed."

School Board Buys Flintstone Tract

The Allegany County Board of Education has acquired more than 46 acres in the vicinity of the Flintstone School, according to a deed recorded in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court.

Federal tax stamps affixed to the deed indicated that the purchase price was about $14,500. Three tracts are involved. The sellers were listed as Katie B. Oster, widow; Paul W. Oster and Hazel F. Oster, his wife, all of Allegany County, and Leota O. Tyler and Clayton M. Tyler, her husband, both of Prince George's County. The property is located on the south side of old U. S. Route 40.

Barton To Use Old Strip Mine For Garbage Pit

The Town of Barton will inaugurate a new method of garbage disposal today when it begins use of a sanitary landfill on Laurel Hill in the wake of a strip mining operation.

Town officials point out that a sanitary landfill is considered the safest and most practical method of garbage disposal, and that the Barton operation is the first of its kind in Allegany County.

The plan, first suggested by Town Commissioner James O'Rourke, was worked out with the assistance of the Maryland Bureau of Mines and the Allegany County Health Department.

Mayor Ernest Poland said the Barton Town Council has negotiated a contract with Lloyd Shaw, owner of the Laurel Hill site, and Randall Robertson, who has leased the land for strip mining.

Under the agreement, Robertson will prepare trenches at sites where his strip mining operation is completed, and after the garbage is placed in the trenches, will compact it with a bulldozer and then cover it with earth.

As explained, this method of disposal eliminates odors, unsightly conditions and a rat problem that is common at other types of dumps. James Close, district inspector for the Bureau of Mines, also points out that utilizing strip mining areas will eliminate long-standing hazards of fire and acid sulphur drainage.

Street Commissioner John Bradley said all types of refuse will be accepted, with the stipulation that garbage and ashes must be placed in cans that are not to exceed 40 pounds in weight.

Commissioner Bradley said a charge of $1.25 a month will be made for each patron for the service, which will be available also to residents of adjoining Dogwood Flat, nearby Pekin and Moscow.

Contractors for the hauling service are Lionel Clark, a member of the Town Council, and Thomas Footen. Commissioner Clark said pickup service will be made each Friday until it is determined if more than once-a-week service is deemed necessary.

In connection wtih announcement of the garbage disposal plan, spokesmen for the County Health Department said state health regulations prohibit dumping of refuse and garbage in other than approved dumps and disposal areas.

A $50 minimum fine will be assessed each person found guilty of violating the state health regulations, it was stated, the Health Department spokesmen adding that the regulations will be strictly enforced.

Vets' Pension Law To Change On July 1

Maryland widows or orphans of World War II and Korean war veterans who are ineligible for pension payments under present law should look into the possibility that they may become eligible on July 1, under the new law, Samuel Weston, local Veterans Administration representative, said yesterday.

F. E. Quinn, manager of the Baltimore Regional VA office, pointed out, Weston said, that a new pension act passed by Congress in 1959 becomes effective July 1. This new law does not require that a veteran have a service connected disability for his dependents to be eligible following his death.

The new law requires only that the deceased veteran must have a record of a minimum of 90 days' active service, at least part of it during wartime, and that he was discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.

However, the new pension system has annual income limitations, and sets up specific definition of a widow for pension purposes.

Veterans, their widows, orphans or representatives are urged to contact the local VA office, third floor Post Office Building to determine if they are eligible under the new law.

Tavern On Route 28 Destroyed By Fire

The R & R Tavern, a mile south of Ridgeley on West Virginia Route 28, was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning.

Fire Chief W. W. Lindsay of the Wiley Ford Volunteer Fire Company said the structure was engulfed in flames when the firefighters arrived at the scene about 1:30 a. m.

The cause of the fire was undetermined, according to Chief Lindsay, who said the establishment was operated by Peter Iser of Ridgeley.

Firemen from Ridgeley also responded and both companies kept the flames from spreading.

Romney Grower Talks To Horticultural Society

"The four-state Appalachian area apple industry suffers from 'salesman-itis'," the West Virginia State Horticultural Society convention was told yesterday at Martinsburg.

R. L. (Bud) Sumner, manager o. Mountain Fruit Sales, Inc., of Romney, a grower-owned sales agency, emphasized the need of streamlining marketing facilities at shipping point and explained that "salesmanship-itis" is simply a case of too many salesmen.

He said "It is an ailment wherein numerous vendors deluge a single buyer with quotations, symptoms of which imbue the buyer with the idea that apples are in abundant supply, are plenty cheap, and he might as well wait until tomorrow to buy —they'll be cheaper then." At the same time he suggested another symptom—empty grower pocketbooks.

Dubbing the Appalachian area a "buyers' paradise in many respects," Sumner pointed out that there are "an estimated two hundred firms or individuals within its borders doing their own selling—200 sources of supply for buyers to choose from."

This is an especially unfavorable setup today when buyers are becoming fewer as mergers take place among the chain-store trade which is the principal outlet for apples, it was said.

"Buying is concentrated in a relatively few hands," Sumner asserted, "while the selling is still being done by practically the same larger number of agencies and growers. The result is a highly-competitive situation among shipping-point salesmen—in short, we're fighting one another here with 'sharp' quotations as we vie for the buyers' patronage. Too often, the growers can't pay their bills on the net returns."

He criticized consignments of apples to commission merchants as a market-wrecking practice, likening it to a "cancerous condition—a slow way to demise, financially speaking."

Paraphrasing a familiar World War II cry, the speaker said, "Never have so many salesmen done so much for so few buyers."

By way of comparison, Sumner remarked that, while Appalachian has some 200 salesmen channelling 12 to 15 million bushels of apples to market annually, Washington State, with double the tonnage sold in fresh form, has just 137 sales agencies on the job.

Suggesting the reduction in the sales force to a maximum of 50 for the four states, Sumner also advocated the pooling of grower resources to the end that centralized packing houses could be established to provide consistent packs of high quality apples, in volume. He added that "the average good buyer is seeking out dependable sources of supply just as much as the salesmen are looking for him."

Sumner concluded with a brief history of his own firm which he helped establish in 1947.

The 67th annual convention will end today. It is being held in the Martinsburg Armory with Douglas W. Miller, of Gerardstown, W. Va., who is rounding out a two-year term as president, presiding.

Displays and exhibits have been set up in the Armory.

The usual separate session of peach-growers which has annually followed the apple meeting was omitted this year. R. Sam Dillon Jr., of Hancock, is president of the Peach Council and it was explained members are being asked to attend the annual session of the National Peach Council in Washington February 22-24.

Vets' Pension Law To Change On July 1

Maryland widows or orphans of World War II and Korean war veterans who are ineligible for pension payments under present law should look into the possibility that they may become eligible on July 1, under the new law, Samuel Weston, local Veterans Administration representative, said yesterday.

F. E. Quinn, manager of the Baltimore Regional VA office, pointed out, Weston said, that a new pension act passed by Congress in 1959 becomes effective July 1. This new law does not require that a veteran have a service connected disability for his dependents to be eligible following his death.

The new law requires only that the deceased veteran must have a record of a minimum of 90 days' active service, at least part of it during wartime, and that he was discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.

However, the new pension system has annual income limitations, and sets up specific definition of a widow for pension purposes.

Veterans, their widows, orphans or representatives are urged to contact the local VA office, third floor Post Office Building to determine if they are eligible under the new law.

Tavern On Route 28 Destroyed By Fire

The R & R Tavern, a mile south of Ridgeley on West Virginia Route 28, was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning.

Fire Chief W. W. Lindsay of the Wiley Ford Volunteer Fire Company said the structure was engulfed in flames when the firefighters arrived at the scene about 1:30 a. m.

The cause of the fire was undetermined, according to Chief Lindsay, who said the establishment was operated by Peter Iser of Ridgeley.

Firemen from Ridgeley also responded and both companies kept the flames from spreading.

Romney Grower Talks To Horticultural Society

"The four-state Appalachian area apple industry suffers from 'salesman-itis'," the West Virginia State Horticultural Society convention was told yesterday at Martinsburg.

R. L. (Bud) Sumner, manager of Mountain Fruit Sales, Inc., of Romney, a grower-owned sales agency, emphasized the need of streamlining marketing facilities at shipping point and explained that "salesmanship-itis" is simply a case of too many salesmen.

He said "It is an ailment wherein numerous vendors deluge a single buyer with quotations, symptoms of which imbue the buyer with the idea that apples are in abundant supply, are plenty cheap, and he might as well wait until tomorrow to buy—they'll be cheaper then." At the same time he suggested another symptom—empty grower pocketbooks.

Dubbing the Appalachian area a "buyers' paradise in many respects," Sumner pointed out that there are "an estimated two hundred firms or individuals within its borders doing their own selling—200 sources of supply for buyers to choose from."

This is an especially unfavorable setup today when buyers are becoming fewer as mergers take place among the chain-store trade which is the principal outlet for apples, it was said.

"Buying is concentrated in a relatively few hands," Sumner asserted, "while the selling is still being done by practically the same larger number of agencies and growers. The result is a highly-competitive situation among shipping-point salesmen—in short, we're fighting one another here with 'sharp' quotations as we vie for the buyers' patronage. Too often, the growers can't pay their bills on the net returns."

He criticized consignments of apples to commission merchants as a market-wrecking practice, likening it to a "cancerous condition—a slow way to demise, financially speaking."

Group To Present Sacred Concert

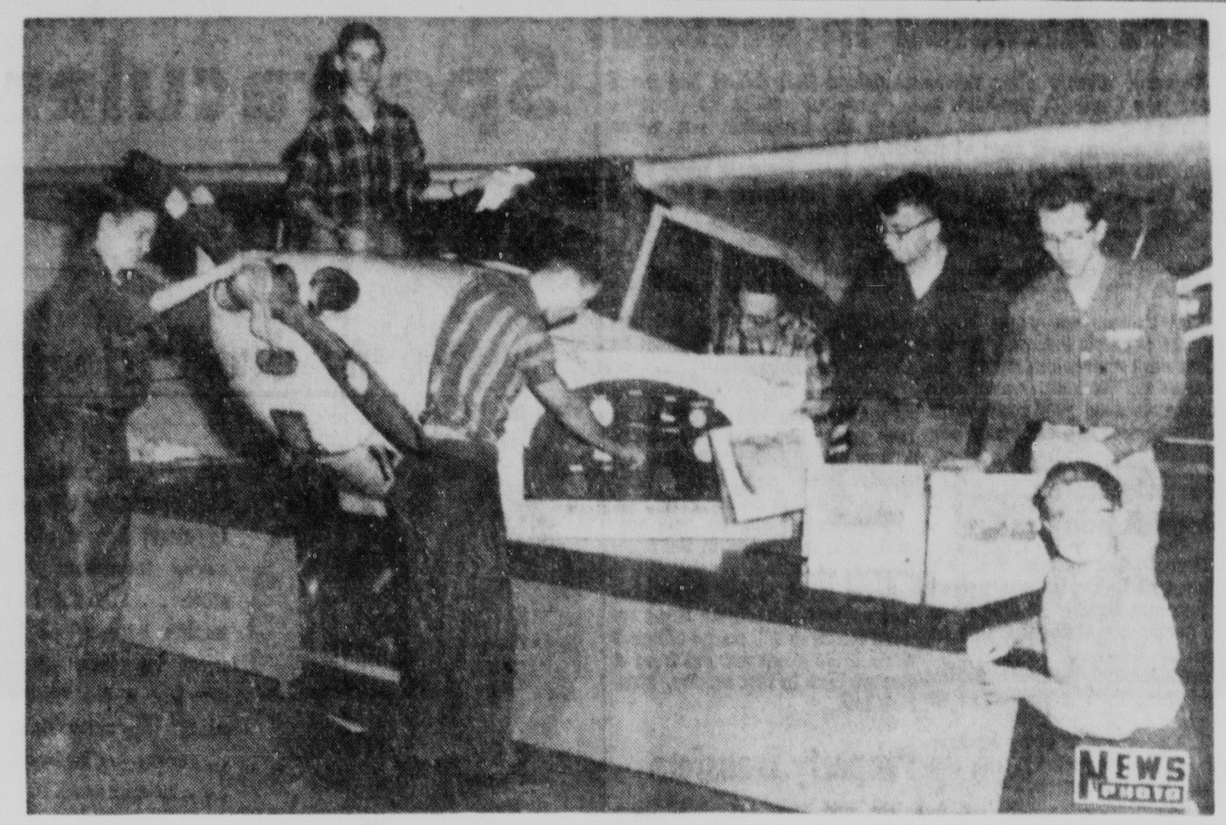
A concert of sacred music will be presented Sunday at 7 p.m. at Trinity Methodist Church, according to Rev. Louis L. Emerick, pastor.

The concert will be given by "The Gospel Comforters," and will include a program of Gospel hymns and Negro spirituals.

The headquarters for the singing group is Baltimore, and the singers travel throughout the eastern part of the country to present religious concerts.

Miss Valiere Saultus is pianist for the group, and officers include Wilbur Fuller, president; Alexander Barnes, vice president, and Theodore R. Cotton, secretary.

Rev. Emerick said the public is invited to the concert and there will not be an admission charge.



Ready For Scout Exposition

Members of Air Scout Squadron 42, Boy Scouts of America, assemble their Aeronca Chief airplane at the National Guard Armory on South Water Street in Frostburg in preparation for the Boy Scout Exposition which opens today. Nearly 50 units spent several hours last night assembling booths to tell the Scouting story from the Cub program through Explorer work. Left to right above are Gerald Ward, Ronald Lucas, Wayne Lewis, Robert Walker, Rex Lease, Ronald Ward and Donald Carpenter. The unit is sponsored by First Methodist Church, Frostburg.

Revival Opens

Rev. T. J. Kerfoot, pastor of the Assembly of God Church of Oldtown, said a three-day revival will begin at the church tonight at 7:45. Rev. Frank Mays of Winchester, Va., is guest speaker.

Meetings will be held tomorrow and Sunday nights at the same hour.

To Attend Meeting

Louis L. Klepitch, 103 Washington Street, local sales representative for the Philip Carey Manufacturing Company, will attend the company's national sales meeting next week in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Area Students Receive Degrees

Several area students were among the 22 mid-semester graduates who received degrees this month at Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, W. Va.

The students and their respective degrees are:

W. Merle Cornelius Jr., Ridgeley, bachelor of arts, elementary; Paul L. Cook, Keyser, bachelor of arts, secondary, general and biological science; Victor J. Marsh, Keyser, bachelor of arts, secondary, English and social studies; and Matthew B. Stieringer, Bayard, W. Va., bachelor of arts, secondary, social studies and physical education.

Local Guard Units Have Vacancies

Local and area men who are interested in joining the Maryland National Guard here are being reminded that vacancies now exist in Headquarters Company as well as Company C of the First Medium Tank Battalion of the 115th Armor of the 29th Infantry Division.

Major Paul B. Lord, battalion executive officer, said Headquarters Company has openings for about 25 enlisted men and eight officers.

Captain Eugene M. Light, commanding officer of Company C, said that due to an increase in organizational personnel the strength of the company has been boosted 10 per cent, or six additional enlisted men.

Veterans or men without military experience are eligible to join the National Guard. Non-veterans may enlist for three years during which time six months' active training must be taken at Fort Knox, Ky.

After their enlistment is up they may re-enlist in the Guard or the Reserve in order to fulfill their military obligations.

High school seniors may enlist now and begin active training after they get out of school this June.

Veterans with previous military service may enlist in the Guard with their former rank and maintain longevity and pay status, said Captain Light.

Company C's most recent enlistee, Sgt. Stewart E. Burcaw, Cresap Park, with four years' military service, has been assigned as an assistant tank commander and will continue to work with radios used in a tank platoon. While in the Air Force he was a communications instructor.

Further information on enlisting in the local Guard units may be obtained at the State Armory on South Centre Street.

Firemen Called At Westernport

Westernport firemen were summoned last evening at 5:15 to the home of Leroy House, a paper mill worker, at 109 First Street, Westernport.

Fire Chief Paul Michael said 11 men and two trucks responded to the alarm and extinguished a fire in the kitchen of the dwelling. The fire had been caused by grease igniting on a cooking stove.

Delaware Institution Escapees Arrested In Bedford

The men left a trail of stolen cars in their wake before being picked up.

Police said the men stole an automobile after escaping from the mental institution Tuesday night. The vehicle was abandoned in York, Pa., and another car taken there was later located in Breezewood. The escapees stole another automobile in that community and drove to Somerset, Pa., before abandoning it and taking another to drive to Bedford.

Authorities identified the men as Paul L. Cahall, 24, of Wilmington; Franklin Lee Manor, 24, Clifton Park Manor, Del., and Charles H. Reynolds, 29, Wilmington.

The men were among four who escaped from Delaware State Hospital, Wilmington, after overpowering two attendants. The quartet, one of whom was picked up shortly after the escape, used the attendants' keys to unlock doors and posed as guards at various check points while making their way to freedom.

Dr. L. A. Tarulianz, superintendent of the institution, said the four men threw a mattress across an electrified barbed wire fence to get out.

Captured shortly after the escape was Lewis T. Goodwin, 24, of Wilmington.

Dr. Tarulianz said none of the men was considered dangerous, and that in his opinion Cahall was the leader of the group. He explained that Cahall had made a previous successful escape from the institution but voluntarily returned.

The three escapees were being held for the arrival of Delaware authorities.

Cresaptown To Shut Water Off Saturday

The Cresaptown water supply will be shut off Saturday from 9 a. m. until approximately 5 p. m., Joseph G. Wenrich, water commissioner, said yesterday.

The shutoff had originally been scheduled last Tuesday but was cancelled because of the effect on Cresaptown School.

Saturday's shutoff is necessary to make a tap into a new eight-inch main line that will supply a new line being installed on Brady Road and Valley View Drive, Wenrich said. Five new fire hydrants will be installed, making a total of 16 in the community, he added.

Brant Road, Lone Oak Road and part of Winchester Road toward Route 40 will not be affected since these areas are fed from a storage tank in that section, Wenrich said.

Gospel Chorus Sings Sunday

Gospel Comforters Religious Chorus of Baltimore will present a program Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at Centenary Methodist Church, Bedford Road.

Rev. E. Kyle Sawyers, pastor, said the public is invited to attend.

Delaware Institution Escapees Arrested In Bedford

The men left a trail of stolen cars in their wake before being picked up.

Police said the men stole an automobile after escaping from the mental institution Tuesday night. The vehicle was abandoned in York, Pa., and another car taken there was later located in Breezewood. The escapees stole another automobile in that community and drove to Somerset, Pa., before abandoning it and taking another to drive to Bedford.

Authorities identified the men as Paul L. Cahall, 24, of Wilmington; Franklin Lee Manor, 24, Clifton Park Manor, Del., and Charles H. Reynolds, 29, Wilmington.

The men were among four who escaped from Delaware State Hospital, Wilmington, after overpowering two attendants. The quartet, one of whom was picked up shortly after the escape, used the attendants' keys to unlock doors and posed as guards at various check points while making their way to freedom.

Dr. L. A. Tarulianz, superintendent of the institution, said the four men threw a mattress across an electrified barbed wire fence to get out.

Captured shortly after the escape was Lewis T. Goodwin, 24, of Wilmington.

Dr. Tarulianz said none of the men was considered dangerous, and that in his opinion Cahall was the leader of the group. He explained that Cahall had made a previous successful escape from the institution but voluntarily returned.

The three escapees were being held for the arrival of Delaware authorities.

Cresaptown To Shut Water Off Saturday

The Cresaptown water supply will be shut off Saturday from 9 a. m. until approximately 5 p. m., Joseph G. Wenrich, water commissioner, said yesterday.

The shutoff had originally been scheduled last Tuesday but was cancelled because of the effect on Cresaptown School.

Saturday's shutoff is necessary to make a tap into a new eight-inch main line that will supply a new line being installed on Brady Road and Valley View Drive, Wenrich said. Five new fire hydrants will be installed, making a total of 16 in the community, he added.

Brant Road, Lone Oak Road and part of Winchester Road toward Route 40 will not be affected since these areas are fed from a storage tank in that section, Wenrich said.

Will Russia Gain By Gronchi Visit?

Italian President Giovanni Gronchi's five-day state visit to Russia beginning tomorrow is one of the dividends Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has gained through an easing of Cold War tensions. Gronchi, a stalwart friend of the United States and NATO, is not likely to be swayed by the Soviet overtures, but there is a real risk that the visit may open the way to Communist gains in the important city hall elections throughout Italy this spring.

The Italian Communist Party's membership is the largest of any country in Western Europe —about 1,800,000. This is some 345,000 fewer than in 1956, but a new membership drive is under way.

Gronchi's Soviet visit was opposed by Roman Catholic politicians, who changed their minds only after being assured that a return visit to Italy would be made by Soviet President Voroshilov, not Khrushchev. Feeling still is running high in Italy over Khrushchev's recent threat to put rocket bases "able to cover all of Italy" in Albania if the NATO country permitted construction of U.S. missile bases on its territory.

Khrushchev clearly considers Italy a ripe target for his policy of using parliamentary institutions to achieve power. His peace offensive also has economic aspects: a Soviet-Italian trade pact signed in Rome last December 22 provides for $200 million worth of commodity exchanges during 1960, 40 per cent more than in 1959.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

A New Labor Doctrine

Usually the purpose of a picket line is to keep people out of a place because the workers are on strike. Many people will not cross a picket line. This is an abnegation of reason to mass pressure.

The Stork Club in New York, a famous restaurant and saloon, has been picketed since January 8, 1957. I occasionally go to this place and cross the picket line because nobody is going to make decisions for me. I have, on several occasions, asked a picket what it is all about but never received an intelligent answer, perhaps the union or the police forbidding prolonged conversatoins between pickets and customers.

I resent being told what to do by a fellow whose mumblings do not represent a high degree of intelligence. Now I am altogether confused. The case came into court before Judge Archie O. Dawson, a very able federal judge. On the witness stand was Arduilio Susi, president of Local 89, Chefs, Cooks, Pastry Cooks and Assistants Union. Susi has been an official of that union for 21 years. Susi said the Stork Club strike was originally called "that the employer should recognize these people and the union as the collective bargaining agent for these people so that we can establish wages and conditions which are prevailing throughout the city. I think that is all."

However, since the passage of the Landrum-Griffin Bill, the unions have decided that they should not picket for union recognition. Susi testified:

"We were advised that under the law we are not permitted to continue to picket the same way as we had done in the past. We did not ask for recognition any longer because it was against the law, and we were advised that in order to lawfully continue to picket, we were told that this is the only way we can do it.

"Q. Were you told that you had to withdraw your demand for recognition and bargaining?

"A. Correct, sir, and make a statement of the fact. We sent one to the National Labor Relations Board and one to (Sherman) Billingsley that we do not seek recognition."

This colloquy occurred which tells what is likely to happen all over the country:

"The court: One of these picket signs says, 'The Stork Club does not have a contract with the Chefs, Cooks, Pastry Cooks and Assistants Union.'

"Why should the public be informed of that unless you want a contract? Do you want to have a contract with him?

"The witness: No, sir, we want him to pay the wages, and have the same protections and same benefits.

"The court: In order to do that, you want the employes to enter into a contract with the union?

"The witness: No, sir.

"The court: Why does it make any difference to the people whether they have a contract or not?

"The witness: To notify the public that that house is not a union house.

"The court: What is a union house?

"The witness: A union house is where the wages and conditions are prevailing.

"The court: And are fixed by contract, is that right, by the union?

"The witness: That is right.

"The court: You want to tell the public that they don't have a contract with the union?

"The witness: That is correct.

"The court: One of the things you want them to do is make a contract, isn't it, so that you would prevail?

"The witness: No, sir, we are not permitted under the law to sign a contract, so we are picketing to inform the public that this house has no contract with the local union and they are not a fair employer and whatever he wants to do he can do it . . .

"The court: . . . Why do you say the employes don't have a contract on the picket sign unless you want them to get a contract?

"The witness: No.

"The court: You don't want them to get a contract?

"The witness: No, sir."

This goes on for pages of testimony. It is apparent from this that the settlement of a strike now becomes increasingly difficult. The union dares not say that it desires a new contract and is striking for it; the employer has to guess what the union really wants.

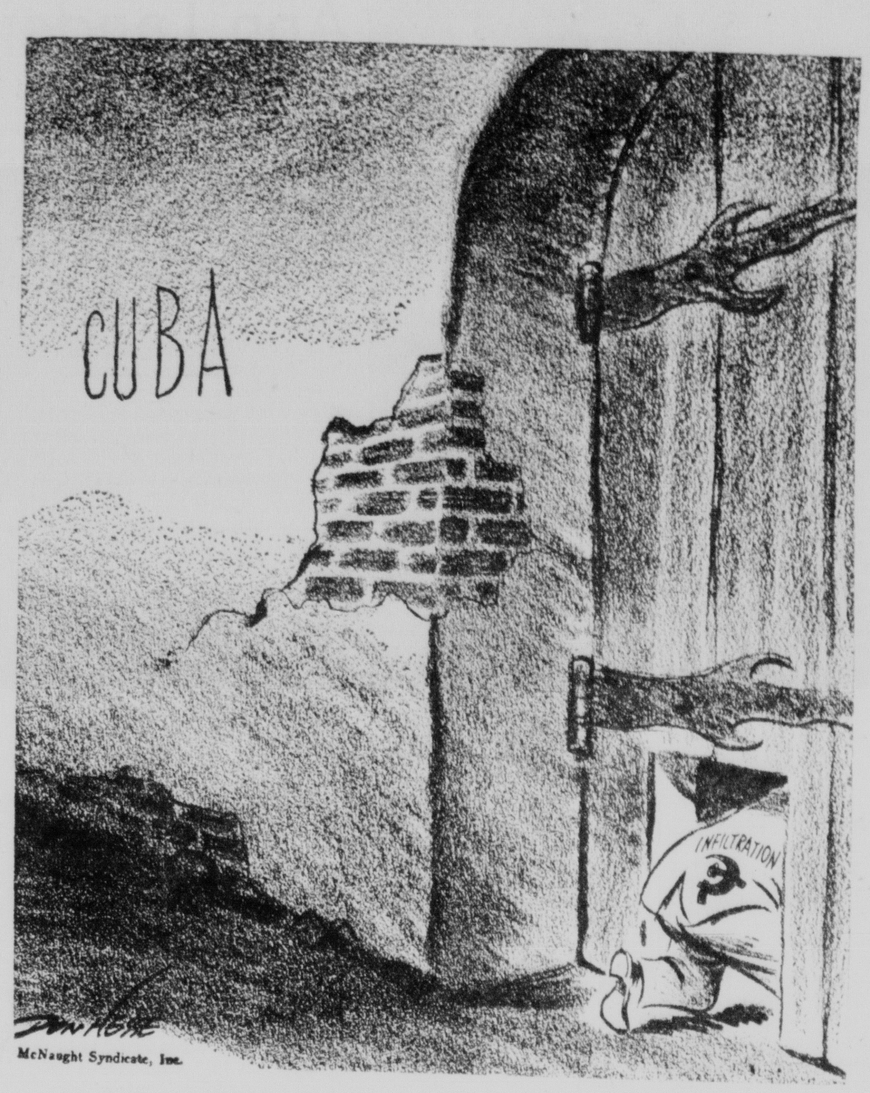
Open Door Policy



Partisan Politics Hurting U.S. In Cold War

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The United States is having a hard time fighting the "cold war" nowadays because, when it does gather secret information as to a potential enemy's intentions or planning, there are members of Congress who insist on having it revealed in some form.

Allen W. Dulles, who is director of the Central Intelligence Agency, is repeatedly called before Congress to tell what his agents and representatives behind the Iron Curtain have found out. Naturally, the Soviets are interested. For it has an important bearing on their own plans —to learn how much America knows about them.

What Mr. Dulles says behind the closed doors of the Congressional committees is, of course, not made public, but as the members go forth they are met by the press. The members then give their "impressions" of the testimony. These might be partisan interpretations designed to discredit the administration as not being efficient in its planning, but the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency is unable to point out in rebuttal wherein wrong inferences are being drawn. To do so is to tell the Soviets exactly what the Central Intelligence Agency really knows of Soviet planning.

So there is resort to generalities, and it is in this area that the politically-minded take advantage of the necessarily vague statements that have been made. Allen Dulles, emphasizing some of the difficulties, said in a speech in New York last week:

"In our estimates we generally stress capabilities in the early stages of Soviet weapons development, and then, as more hard facts are available, we estimate their probable programming, sometimes referred to as intentions . . . .

"The fact that in the later years of development we can crank into our estimates more of the elements of programming and future intentions that we can at the beginning does not indicate any change in the intelligence approach to the problem . . .

"There is no tendency in the intelligence community to underestimate Soviet sophistication in any phase of the missile field, or the progress they have been making in developing their long-range missile system. We have not downgraded this system this year as contrasted with last year.

"However, it would be just as wrong to let the Soviet talk the world into believing that the ICBM (intercontinental ballistic missile), powerful as it is, constitutes the only armament with which a country should equip itself. I believe that the Soviets are trying to take advantage of the publicity they have achieved with respect to both missile and space programs in order to make the unsophisticated believe that these achievements mean overall superiority in the military field. Such superiority, in the opinion of more qualified experts than I, does not exist."

Yet the newspapers are filled with partisan claims which are designed for the American audience, but which nevertheless tell the Soviets that they are superior, that they can destroy us and we can't retaliate effectively, and that the "gap" is a matter of grave danger to our safety today.

The Secretary of Defense, Thomas S. Gates, on the other hand, keeps on giving assurances to the country that the United States has effective power to deter a war, but this is promptly called "rosy" by Democratic leaders. Day after day Mr. Gates testifies before different committees and repeats in explicit terms the basis of America's confidence in her deterrent power, but all this is brushed aside as Senators or Representatives emerge from committee sessions telling the world that what they have heard "confirms" their "impressions." Mr. Gates, in his latest statement to the Senate Subcommittee on Appropriations on Monday, said:

"Our retaliatory forces are capable of carrying out their assigned missions. Manned bombers are still, for both ourselves and the USSR, the primary means of delivering heavy nuclear weapons in the volume and with the accuracy needed to strike a decisive blow. In this category the United States far excels the USSR . . .

"On the basis of all present indications, however, the advantage they (the Soviets) might attain in numbers of long-range missiles would fall far short of providing rational support for a decision to attack. He would simply be inviting his own destruction . . .

"In short, because of the versatilly and strength of our overall retaliatory capability, the numerical advantage that the Soviet Union may attain in long-range missiles—which is likely to be greatest in 1962—will not produce a gap in our deterrent power. This is not my view only; it is the view of our principal military and scientific advisers."

General Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, also told the same committee that our military chiefs "do not do strategic planning in an intelligence vacuum."

But how effective can such statements be as long as the partisans think they can gain votes by scaring the American people into a belief that our defenses have been bungled? It means, to be sure, telling the Soviets that we are weaker than we really are. Partisan politics has reached a new low in American history.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BUDGET SURPLUS? — The betting is ten to one on Capitol Hill that President Eisenhower will not come out with a budget surplus anywhere near the size he forecast in his message to Congress.

But political observers believe he has given Republican candidates the opportunity to cash in on the issue of government economy. GOP candidates this fall will be able to blame the shrinkage in the projected surplus on the Democratic majorities that control both houses of Congress.

Doubts that Eisenhower can realize his projected $4.2 billion surplus stem from simple arithmetic. He anticipates revenues of about $1,250 million from sources which the Congress has no desire to approve.

One source is continuation of the tax on telephone use which is scheduled to expire June 30 and which produces some $700 million a year in revenue. Another is an increase in postal rates which would add about $550 millions to revenues next year.

There are serious doubts that Congress will approve either of these sources of revenue. Likewise, the President's request for a ½ cent a gallon increase in the gasoline tax and a federal levy on airplane jet fuels, most probably will be rejected by the legislators.

On these items alone, prospects are that the President's planned surplus will be reduced to something under $3 billions. But this isn't the end. The Congress has shown a pressing desire to increase proposed federal spending in some categories — particularly in defense and in space exploration.

Assuming that the Congress does up spending by $1 billion — a conservative estimate — the surplus will be further reduced to somewhat under $2 billions.

And that, according to Washington insiders, is the real prospect. The figure can be affected further either way by a change in national business conditions.

Oldsters Can Be Productive If Healthy

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Older persons are healthier in body and mind than they used to be and life has been added to their years. These advances should continue so that most of us can plan for an enjoyable future. But everyone must realize that health and happiness do not come automatically with age. It takes preparation, beginning in midlife.

The elderly man or woman must have something to do and it must be real. No one can be happy unless he is active. The inclination to slow down must be resisted so that it won't deteriorate into just sitting and waiting for death. Age slows us up whether we like it or not but there is plenty to do even though a walking instead of a running pace must be adopted.

Our senior citizens want the same things their children and grandchildren want — happiness and a fair measure of security. But each to his own, because no one prescription will satisfy every personality.

Experience throughout the ages has shown that most humans are not contented unless they have a useful activity and take pride in being able to stand on their own feet without depending on someone else.

Some men are tired of the routine of the job and count the years until they are retired. What a rude awakening they get when the time comes and they enter a new world of nothingness.

They wasted time prior to retirement daydreaming instead of planning. Teen-agers may "loaf content with opiate dreams of future accomplishments," but for oldsters it is later than they think. They are confronted with the realities, so well exemplified in the September Song. But if they are able to, oldsters should remain productive until the end of the chapter.

TOMORROW: Meaningful baby sounds.

NEUSEA FROM VITAMINS

W. C. writes: No matter what vitamin capsules my doctor prescribes, I can't take them because they make me sick. My medicine cabinet has an expensive collection of these unusable products. Do you know why they cause distress?

REPLY

Vitamin tablets are distasteful and nauseating to some persons. These lucky people must resort to a balanced diet, as nature intended.

ALLERGIC INHERITANCE

L. A. writes: Is asthma hereditary?

REPLY

The allergic tendency is inherited but the child of an asthmatic may develop hay fever or hives instead of asthma.

LADY WRESTLERS

A. A. B. writes: Do professional female wrestlers have children during their years in the ring?

REPLY

They could but shouldn't wrestle during pregnancy. But who would dare tell a lady wrestler what to do?

IMPROVE YOUR POSTURE

G. F. writes: Will shoulder braces help a round shouldered woman of 65?

REPLY

Not if the shoulders are so rigid they cannot be thrown back. At this age, it is better to practice good posture by holding the head high. Avoid fatigue, which encourages drooping shoulders.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Joining the James Micheners, Herman Wouks and Moss Harts on best-seller lists is a 78-year-old country doctor named D. C. Jarvis. For years Dr. Jarvis has been prescribing for his patients in Vermont a reasonably unpleasant tasting potion consisting of a couple of teaspoons of cider vinegar and honey diluted in a glass of water. Finally, he enlarged on the magic possibilities of this cure in a book called "Folk Medicine"—and is it selling!

I haven't met another doctor yet who'll say more than, "I don't believe it can harm anybody," but you show the American public a way to "get cured fast" and well, "Folk Medicine" is over the 300,000-mark, and the publishers think it's barely started!

Paul Getty, reputedly the richest man in America, reluctantly admitted to a financial writer that his personal fortune exceeds a billion dollars. "You must remember, however," he added with a note of bitterness in his voice, "that a billion dollars today doesn't go as far as it used to!"

Lyndon Johnson Expected To Toss A 'Qualified' Hat Into The Ring

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — At Albuquerque, New Mexico, today, Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas is expected to make a qualified announcement of his availability for the Democratic nomination.

Though most people consider Johnson a candidate, inside fact is that even to his close friend, Speaker Sam Rayburn, Lyndon has not confided his definite intentions. Nor has he to his good friend, former Sen. Earl Clements of Kentucky, who already has pledged about 400 delegates for the tall Texan.

Lyndon's predicament is that if he becomes a candidate he can't very well remain in Washington to handle his duties as Senate majority leader. And whether you agree with Johnson or not this is something he takes very seriously. He takes pride in the job and works at it about 18 hours a day.

If he becomes an announced candidate he'll have to leave the exacting grind of the Senate to make a series of speeches all over the country. Most people don't realize it, but Sen. Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts is almost never in the Senate any more, and won't be until after the presidential primaries. Johnson doesn't want to be in a similar position. That's why only a "qualified" hat will be tossed in the ring.

More TV Payola

There's a new type of TV payola which may come in for Congressional scrutiny. It's the practice of paying live artists to appear on TV, then having them kick back their pay.

The practice is especially prevalent among aspiring young artists eager to crash into show business who are anxious for personal appearances. They need the money sometimes desperately, but they need the buildup even more. So they kick back their pay checks just for the privilege of making a personal appearance. The practice is most prevalent on daytime dance shows which play records for teen-agers to dance to.

Sometimes artists will appear live, to mouth the words of their records as they are played, a technique known in the trade as "lip sync" or synchronization of the lips with the record.

For their live appearance, they supposedly collect the minimum union-scale fee. Then, because they are anxious to be seen on television, many performers kick back their fee.

"Red" Quinlan, manager of WBKB-TV in Chicago, explained to this column that the daytime dance show doesn't have a big enough budget to pay for live performers. The record companies are so anxious to get records plugged that they offer to pay the recording artists for "lip sync" performances.

"We may have unwittingly caused this kickback practice," said Quinlan. "We found out these kids were not being paid. We simply refused to put a performer on until the record company sent us a check. Then we issued our own check to the performer. We insisted that he get the check. We mailed it to his home or AFTRA (American Federation of Television and Radio Artists). But some record companies have forced their performers to kick back the amount of the checks."

Quinlan denied that his station received payola for plugging records, beyond what is needed to pay for "talent cost."

Pressure From Home

Inside reason why dairyman-Congressman Howard Smith of Virginia suddenly announced that he would not "dilly, dally, or delay" regarding the civil rights bill was quite simple: too many Congressmen were hearing from voters back home.

The League of Women Voters, labor unions, and other groups had been pouring the heat on such key Republican Congressmen as Leo Allen of Illinois, Clarence Brown of Ohio, and even GOP leader Charlie Halleck of Indiana. The first two let it be known in backstage GOP councils that they were ready to join northern Democrats in signing the discharge petition to force the civil rights bill out of the Rules Committee where Congressman Smith had blocked it.

And Charlie Halleck complained angrily, though privately, about "all this pressure they are exerting on us."

So dairyman - Congressman Smith, who once spent five days incommunicado with his cows rather than unfreeze legislation for housing, sewage disposal, slum clearance, and TVA, decided to act. He knew that if he was forced to unfreeze the civil rights bill by discharge petition he would not be able to water it down on the House floor. If he passes it through his Rules Committee he can move to cut out the heart of it in subsequent debate on the House floor.

Abe Lincoln's Shadow

What caused some Republicans to worry about the civil rights bill was the shadow of Abe Lincoln and the fact that next week they would have to go home to make Lincoln Day speeches regarding the Republican president who freed the slaves, while they balked 100 years later at giving Negroes voting rights.

Caustic Congressman Ray Madden, Indiana Democrat, rubbed this in on them at a secret session of the Rules Committee, leading this fight for civil rights. He would be one of the first to sign the discharge petition, instead of trying to discourage colleagues from signing it, like our friend Charlie Halleck.

"I can understand the position of the two principal Democratic foes of the bill — our chairman, Mr. Smith of Virginia, and Mr. Colmer of Mississippi. They are openly against the legislation and have talked against it all the time. But for the life of me I cannot understand how some of our Republican colleagues can talk in favor of civil rights but do nothing to help enactment."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The reporter is a callous creature, a faceless man with a police card, a pencil and some folded paper. He sees all, tells all, feels nothing. He is out to indict, knife and hang. He is chronically suspicious of all politicians and his wife. He is a seedy dresser, a cadger of drinks, a man who cannot speak without snarling. He has a tongue that drips sarcasm. He believes in nothing, not even himself.

This is the portrait I see in motion pictures, in books, and magazine stories. Never have so many been maligned by so few incompetents. I've been a reporter for 31 years and there is no such thing as a median average. I have known reporters of all sizes and shapes; some were dandies; some were sloppy dressers. Some were sentimental slobs; some were as coolly objective as a falling bomb. Some had families; some were bachelors.

There were bright and retarded ones; men of ethics; men who gave, men who took; some were on the secret payrolls of politicians; some had a sneering contempt for public seravnts. In all the years I've been around, I knew but two who enjoyed knifing the subjects of their stories. One is dead. One is still peddling the stuff.

In any business that thrives on tension (newspapers and police work are examples) there is more drinking than would be found among, let us say, plumbers and interior decorators. Booze has been called an occupational hazard of reporting. Maybe it is. It is also a hazard of police departments.

However, the educational level in both fields has gone up in the past quarter century, and the new reporters and new policemen are able to cope with tension without resorting to the bottle. In my time, any kid with a grammar school education and a flair for news could, with application, become a reporter. Under today's standards, I could not make the grade.

Good reporters are masters at masking their feelings. They hide them, even when the story they are covering hits them between the horns. I saw George Kivel, an Easter egg of a man, covering his 15th Sing Sing execution and, just before the van started for the Death House, he had to take four drinks of rye to get up the nerve to see what he was paid to see.

Later, when he phoned his story to the city desk, his voice was gravelly and tough as he described the writhing of the man who died and the blue smoke curling up from the hands. Still later, I drove back to New York with George, and he was a nervous wreck.

Once, when I covered a fire at Lincoln Square, a father was held by two policemen as he listened to the screams of his wife and two children inside a flame-yellowed window on the top floor. The sounds that came from his throat sounded like an animal, and spit bubbled on his lips. In my presence, two reporters turned away in tears, could not take it.

In my case, the story that affected me the most still hits me. It was a snowy day in Brooklyn and the flakes slanted on an east wind. A girl took her baby sister, five years of age, to school for the first time. The big girl, about 8, held the little one by the hand.

They crossed one of the main streets and, out of the blizzard, a trolley came. It hit the big girl and knocked her aside. It dropped the little one onto the tracks and severed both legs across the thighs. The car stopped with the little one beneath it.

She was conscious and she had about three minutes to live. She did not feel any pain, but she complained that she could not see. In the snow, a crowd collected and men yelled to each other to get a policeman, to phone for an ambulance. In the confusion, the little girl began to speak.

She was saying over and over: "I want my mommy. I want my mommy. I want my mommy." The men did not know what to do. They pressed around her in a little knot, looking down at the dying face, helpless to help.

The tiny voice was polite but insistent: "I want my mommy." Through the crowd, a woman came. She elbowed the men aside. She was stout and wore a fur coat. In the snow, she knelt beside the little girl and noted that the child could not see.

She took off the coat, bunched it up, and lifted the little head and placed it on the fur. She stroked the child's face softly and murmured: "Here's your mommy."

I wasn't there. The story was phoned to me at the office. I listened to Feeney tell the story and reported to the desk that I could not write it. That was 25 years ago.

I can write it now. I'm old and callous. . .

Will Russia Gain By Gronchi Visit?

Italian President Giovanni Gronchi's five-day state visit to Russia beginning tomorrow is one of the dividends Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has gained through an easing of Cold War tensions. Gronchi, a stalwart friend of the United States and NATO, is not likely to be swayed by the Soviet overtures, but there is a real risk that the visit may open the way to Communist gains in the important city hall elections throughout Italy this spring.

The Italian Communist Party's membership is the largest of any country in Western Europe —about 1,800,000. This is some 345,000 fewer than in 1956, but a new membership drive is under way.

Gronchi's Soviet visit was opposed by Roman Catholic politicians, who changed their minds only after being assured that a return visit to Italy would be made by Soviet President Voroshilov, not Khrushchev. Feeling still is running high in Italy over Khrushchev's recent threat to put rocket bases "able to cover all of Italy" in Albania if the NATO country permitted construction of U.S. missile bases on its territory.

Khrushchev clearly considers Italy a ripe target for his policy of using parliamentary institutions to achieve power. His peace offensive also has economic aspects: a Soviet-Italian trade pact signed in Rome last December 22 provides for $200 million worth of commodity exchanges during 1960, 40 per cent more than in 1959.

These Days

A New Labor Doctrine

Usually the purpose of a picket line is to keep people out of a place because the workers are on strike. Many people will not cross a picket line. This is an abnegation of reason to mass pressure.

The Stork Club in New York, a famous restaurant and saloon, has been picketed since January 8, 1957. I occasionally go to this place and cross the picket line because nobody is going to make decisions for me. I have, on several occasions, asked a picket what it is all about but never received an intelligent answer, perhaps the union or the police forbidding prolonged conversatoins between pickets and customers.

I resent being told what to do by a fellow whose mumblings do not represent a high degree of intelligence. Now I am altogether confused. The case came into court before Judge Archie O. Dawson, a very able federal judge. On the witness stand was Arduilio Susi, president of Local 89, Chefs, Cooks, Pastry Cooks and Assistants Union. Susi has been an official of that union for 21 years. Susi said the Stork Club strike was originally called "that the employer should recognize these people and the union as the collective bargaining agent for these people so that we can establish wages and conditions which are prevailing throughout the city. I think that is all."

However, since the passage of the Landrum-Griffin Bill, the unions have decided that they should not picket for union recognition. Susi testified:

"We were advised that under the law we are not permitted to continue to picket the same way as we had done in the past. We did not ask for recognition any longer because it was against the law, and we were advised that in order to lawfully continue to picket, we were told that this is the only way we can do it.

"Q. Were you told that you had to withdraw your demand for recognition and bargaining?

"A. Correct, sir, and make a statement of the fact. We sent one to the National Labor Relations Board and one to (Sherman) Billingsley that we do not seek recognition."

This colloquy occurred which tells what is likely to happen all over the country:

"The court: One of these picket signs says, 'The Stork Club does not have a contract with the Chefs, Cooks, Pastry Cooks and Assistants Union.'

"Why should the public be informed of that unless you want a contract? Do you want to have a contract with him?

"The witness: No, sir, we want him to pay the wages, and have the same protections and same benefits.

"The court: In order to do that, you want the employes to enter into a contract with the union?

"The witness: No, sir.

"The court: Why does it make any difference to the people whether they have a contract or not?

"The witness: To notify the public that that house is not a union house.

"The court: What is a union house?

"The witness: A union house is where the wages and conditions are prevailing.

"The court: And are fixed by contract, is that right, by the union?

"The witness: That is right.

"The court: You want to tell the public that they don't have a contract with the union?

"The witness: That is correct.

"The court: One of the things you want them to do is make a contract, isn't it, so that you would prevail?

"The witness: No, sir, we are not permitted under the law to sign a contract, so we are picketing to inform the public that this house has no contract with the local union and they are not a fair employer and whatever he wants to do he can do it . . .

"The court: . . . Why do you say the employes don't have a contract on the picket sign unless you want them to get a contract?

"The witness: No.

"The court: You don't want them to get a contract?

"The witness: No, sir."

This goes on for pages of testimony. It is apparent from this that the settlement of a strike now becomes increasingly difficult. The union dares not say that it desires a new contract and is striking for it; the employer has to guess what the union really wants.

Partisan Politics Hurting U.S. In Cold War

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The United States is having a hard time fighting the "cold war" nowadays because, when it does gather secret information as to a potential enemy's intentions or planning, there are members of Congress who insist on having it revealed in some form.

Allen W. Dulles, who is director of the Central Intelligence Agency, is repeatedly called before Congress to tell what his agents and representatives behind the Iron Curtain have found out. Naturally, the Soviets are interested. For it has an important bearing on their own plans —to learn how much America knows about them.

What Mr. Dulles says behind the closed doors of the Congressional committees is, of course, not made public, but as the members go forth they are met by the press. The members then give their "impressions" of the testimony. These might be partisan interpretations designed to discredit the administration as not being efficient in its planning, but the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency is unable to point out in rebuttal wherein wrong inferences are being drawn. To do so is to tell the Soviets exactly what the Central Intelligence Agency really knows of Soviet planning.

So there is resort to generalities, and it is in this area that the politically-minded take advantage of the necessarily vague statements that have been made. Allen Dulles, emphasizing some of the difficulties, said in a speech in New York last week:

"In our estimates we generally stress capabilities in the early stages of Soviet weapons development, and then, as more hard facts are available, we estimate their probable programming, sometimes referred to as intentions . . . .

"The fact that in the later years of development we can crank into our estimates more of the elements of programming and future intentions that we can at the beginning does not indicate any change in the intelligence approach to the problem . . .

"There is no tendency in the intelligence community to underestimate Soviet sophistication in any phase of the missile field, or the progress they have been making in developing their long-range missile system. We have not downgraded this system this year as contrasted with last year.

"However, it would be just as wrong to let the Soviet talk the world into believing that the ICBM (intercontinental ballistic missile), powerful as it is, constitutes the only armament with which a country should equip itself. I believe that the Soviets are trying to take advantage of the publicity they have achieved with respect to both missile and space programs in order to make the unsophisticated believe that these achievements mean overall superiority in the military field. Such superiority, in the opinion of more qualified experts than I, does not exist."

Yet the newspapers are filled with partisan claims which are designed for the American audience, but which nevertheless tell the Soviets that they are superior, that they can destroy us and we can't retaliate effectively, and that the "gap" is a matter of grave danger to our safety today.

The Secretary of Defense, Thomas S. Gates, on the other hand, keeps on giving assurances to the country that the United States has effective power to deter a war, but this is promptly called "rosy" by Democratic leaders. Day after day Mr. Gates testifies before different committees and repeats in explicit terms the basis of America's confidence in her deterrent power, but all this is brushed aside as Senators or Representatives emerge from committee sessions telling the world that what they have heard "confirms" their "impressions." Mr. Gates, in his latest statement to the Senate Subcommittee on Appropriations on Monday, said:

"Our retaliatory forces are capable of carrying out their assigned missions. Manned bombers are still, for both ourselves and the USSR, the primary means of delivering heavy nuclear weapons in the volume and with the accuracy needed to strike a decisive blow. In this category the United States far excels the USSR . . .

"On the basis of all present indications, however, the advantage they (the Soviets) might attain in numbers of long-range missiles would fall far short of providing rational support for a decision to attack. He would simply be inviting his own destruction . . .

"In short, because of the versatility and strength of our overall retaliatory capability, the numerical advantage that the Soviet Union may attain in long-range missiles—which is likely to be greatest in 1962—will not produce a gap in our deterrent power. This is not my view only; it is the view of our principal military and scientific advisers."

General Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, also told the same committee that our military chiefs "do not do strategic planning in an intelligence vacuum."

But how effective can such statements be as long as the partisans think they can gain votes by scaring the American people into a belief that our defenses have been bungled? It means, to be sure, telling the Soviets that we are weaker than we really are. Partisan politics has reached a new low in American history.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BUDGET SURPLUS? — The betting is ten to one on Capitol Hill that President Eisenhower will not come out with a budget surplus anywhere near the size he forecast in his message to Congress.

But political observers believe he has given Republican candidates the opportunity to cash in on the issue of government economy. GOP candidates this fall will be able to blame the shrinkage in the projected surplus on the Democratic majorities that control both houses of Congress.

Doubts that Eisenhower can realize his projected $4.2 billion surplus stem from simple arithmetic. He anticipates revenues of about $1,250 million from sources which the Congress has no desire to approve.

One source is continuation of the tax on telephone use which is scheduled to expire June 30 and which produces some $700 million a year in revenue. Another is an increase in postal rates which would add about $550 millions to revenues next year.

There are serious doubts that Congress will approve either of these sources of revenue. Likewise, the President's request for a ½ cent a gallon increase in the gasoline tax and a federal levy on airplane jet fuels, most probably will be rejected by the legislators.

On these items alone, prospects are that the President's planned surplus will be reduced to something under $3 billions. But this isn't the end. The Congress has shown a pressing desire to increase proposed federal spending in some categories — particularly in defense and in space exploration.

Assuming that the Congress does up spending by $1 billion — a conservative estimate — the surplus will be further reduced to somewhat under $2 billions.

And that, according to Washington insiders, is the real prospect. The figure can be affected further either way by a change in national business conditions.

Lyndon Johnson Expected To Toss A 'Qualified' Hat Into The Ring

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — At Albuquerque, New Mexico, today, Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas is expected to make a qualified announcement of his availability for the Democratic nomination.

Though most people consider Johnson a candidate, inside fact is that even to his close friend, Speaker Sam Rayburn, Lyndon has not confided his definite intentions. Nor has he to his good friend, former Sen. Earl Clements of Kentucky, who already has pledged about 400 delegates for the tall Texan.

Lyndon's predicament is that if he becomes a candidate he can't very well remain in Washington to handle his duties as Senate majority leader. And whether you agree with Johnson or not this is something he takes very seriously. He takes pride in the job and works at it about 18 hours a day.

If he becomes an announced candidate he'll have to leave the exacting grind of the Senate to make a series of speeches all over the country. Most people don't realize it, but Sen. Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts is almost never in the Senate any more, and won't be until after the presidential primaries. Johnson doesn't want to be in a similar position. That's why only a "qualified" hat will be tossed in the ring.

More TV Payola

There's a new type of TV payola which may come in for Congressional scrutiny. It's the practice of paying live artists to appear on TV, then having them kick back their pay.

The practice is especially prevalent among aspiring young artists eager to crash into show business who are anxious for personal appearances. They need the money sometimes desperately, but they need the buildup even more. So they kick back their pay checks just for the privilege of making a personal appearance. The practice is most prevalent on daytime dance shows which play records for teen-agers to dance to.

Sometimes artists will appear live, to mouth the words of their records as they are played, a technique known in the trade as "lip sync" or synchronization of the lips with the record.

For their live appearance, they supposedly collect the minimum union-scale fee. Then, because they are anxious to be seen on television, many performers kick back their fee.

"Red" Quinlan, manager of WBKB-TV in Chicago, explained to this column that the daytime dance show doesn't have a big enough budget to pay for live performers. The record companies are so anxious to get records plugged that they offer to pay the recording artists for "lip sync" performances.

"We may have unwittingly caused this kickback practice," said Quinlan. "We found out these kids were not being paid. We simply refused to put a performer on until the record company sent us a check. Then we issued our own check to the performer. We insisted that he get the check. We mailed it to his home or AFTRA (American Federation of Television and Radio Artists). But some record companies have forced their performers to kick back the amount of the checks."

Quinlan denied that his station received payola for plugging records, beyond what is needed to pay for "talent cost."

Pressure From Home

Inside reason why dairyman-Congressman Howard Smith of Virginia suddenly announced that he would not "dilly, dally, or delay" regarding the civil rights bill was quite simple: too many Congressmen were hearing from voters back home.

The League of Women Voters, labor unions, and other groups had been pouring the heat on such key Republican Congressmen as Leo Allen of Illinois, Clarence Brown of Ohio, and even GOP leader Charlie Halleck of Indiana. The first two let it be known in backstage GOP councils that they were ready to join northern Democrats in signing the discharge petition to force the civil rights bill out of the Rules Committee where Congressman Smith had blocked it.

And Charlie Halleck complained angrily, though privately, about "all this pressure they are exerting on us."

So dairyman - Congressman Smith, who once spent five days incommunicado with his cows rather than unfreeze legislation for housing, sewage disposal, slum clearance, and TVA, decided to act. He knew that if he was forced to unfreeze the civil rights bill by discharge petition he would not be able to water it down on the House floor. If he passes it through his Rules Committee he can move to cut out the heart of it in subsequent debate on the House floor.

Abe Lincoln's Shadow

What caused some Republicans to worry about the civil rights bill was the shadow of Abe Lincoln and the fact that next week they would have to go home to make Lincoln Day speeches regarding the Republican president who freed the slaves, while they balked 100 years later at giving Negroes voting rights.

Caustic Congressman Ray Madden, Indiana Democrat, rubbed this in on them at a secret session of the Rules Committee, leading this fight for civil rights. He would be one of the first to sign the discharge petition, instead of trying to discourage colleagues from signing it, like our friend Charlie Halleck.

"I can understand the position of the two principal Democratic foes of the bill — our chairman, Mr. Smith of Virginia, and Mr. Colmer of Mississippi. They are openly against the legislation and have talked against it all the time. But for the life of me I cannot understand how some of our Republican colleagues can talk in favor of civil rights but do nothing to help enactment."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The reporter is a callous creature, a faceless man with a police card, a pencil and some folded paper. He sees all, tells all, feels nothing. He is out to indict, knife and hang. He is chronically suspicious of all politicians and his wife. He is a seedy dresser, a cadger of drinks, a man who cannot speak without snarling. He has a tongue that drips sarcasm. Oldsters Can Be Productive If Healthy

Older persons are healthier in body and mind than they used to be and life has been added to their years. These advances should continue so that most of us can plan for an enjoyable future. But everyone must realize that health and happiness do not come automatically with age. It takes preparation, beginning in midlife.

The elderly man or woman must have something to do and it must be real. No one can be happy unless he is active. The inclination to slow down must be resisted so that it won't deteriorate into just sitting and waiting for death. Age slows us up whether we like it or not but there is plenty to do even though a walking instead of a running pace must be adopted.

Our senior citizens want the same things their children and grandchildren want — happiness and a fair measure of security. But each to his own, because no one prescription will satisfy every personality.

Experience throughout the ages has shown that most humans are not contented unless they have a useful activity and take pride in being able to stand on their own feet without depending on someone else.

Some men are tired of the routine of the job and count the years until they are retired. What a rude awakening they get when the time comes and they enter a new world of nothingness.

They wasted time prior to retirement daydreaming instead of planning. Teen-agers may "loaf content with opiate dreams of future accomplishments," but for oldsters it is later than they think. They are confronted with the realities, so well exemplified in the September Song. But if they are able to, oldsters should remain productive until the end of the chapter.

TOMORROW: Meaningful baby sounds.

NEUSEA FROM VITAMINS

W. C. writes: No matter what vitamin capsules my doctor prescribes, I can't take them because they make me sick. My medicine cabinet has an expensive collection of these unusable products. Do you know why they cause distress?

REPLY

Vitamin tablets are distasteful and nauseating to some persons. These lucky people must resort to a balanced diet, as nature intended.

ALLERGIC INHERITANCE

L. A. writes: Is asthma hereditary?

REPLY

The allergic tendency is inherited but the child of an asthmatic may develop hay fever or hives instead of asthma.

LADY WRESTLERS

A. A. B. writes: Do professional female wrestlers have children during their years in the ring?

REPLY

IMPROVE YOUR POSTURE

G. F. writes: Will shoulder braces help a round shouldered woman of 65?

REPLY

Not if the shoulders are so rigid they cannot be thrown back. At this age, it is better to practice good posture by holding the head high. Avoid fatigue, which encourages drooping shoulders.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Joining the James Micheners, Herman Wouks and Moss Harts on best-seller lists is a 78-year-old country doctor named D. C. Jarvis. For years Dr. Jarvis has been prescribing for his patients in Vermont a reasonably unpleasant tasting potion consisting of a couple of teaspoons of cider vinegar and honey diluted in a glass of water. Finally, he enlarged on the magic possibilities of this cure in a book called "Folk Medicine"—and is it selling!

I haven't met another doctor yet who'll say more than, "I don't believe it can harm anybody," but you show the American public a way to "get cured fast" and well, "Folk Medicine" is over the 300,000-mark, and the publishers think it's barely started!

Paul Getty, reputedly the richest man in America, reluctantly admitted to a financial writer that his personal fortune exceeds a billion dollars. "You must remember, however," he added with a note of bitterness in his voice, "that a billion dollars today doesn't go as far as it used to!"

Pineapple-Cherry Ham

Individual Pineapple-Cherry Ham Oatmeal Loaves are a novel variation of the perennial favorite ham loaf. Rolled oats not only speed up preparation time, but improve the flavor, texture, and add protein, valuable B vitamins, essential minerals, and food energy at low cost.

Last minute preparations can be minimized with this recipe. It can be prepared ahead and frozen in the cooked or uncooked state. Prepared cherry pie filling is used for the cherry sauce — merely add a dash of cloves and heat before pouring over the ham loaves.

Suggested Buffet Menu: Hot vegetable juice with cereal snack mix, pineapple-cherry ham oatmeal loaves, candied sweet potatoes, broccoli, mixed relishes, bran muffins, sherbet, and cookies.

Individual Pineapple-Cherry Ham Oatmeal Loaves

- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 cup rolled oats, quick or regular, uncooked
- 1½ pounds ground smoked ham
- ½ pound ground fresh pork
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon liquid smoke (optional)
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1½ cups water
- 1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) sliced pineapple, drained
- 1 can (1 lb. 6 oz.) cherry pie filling
- Dash of cloves

Thoroughly mix all ingredients except the last three. Grease 8 5-ounce baking cups. Fit a pineapple slice into bottom of each cup, cutting a small wedge from each slice to make it fit into bottom of the cup. Place pineapple wedge removed in center hole. Fill cup with ham mix, pressing it down firmly into cup. Arrange cups on large flat baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour. Remove meat from cups and arrange on serving platter. Drizzle cherry pie filling, that has been heated with a dash of cloves, over ham loaves just before serving. If desired loaves may be served atop an additional heated pineapple slice. Yield: 8 servings.

For lunch on a school day, how about big bowls of soup such as this green pea soup? Blend, a little at a time, an equal amount of apple juice with a can of condensed green pea soup. Heat and serve with crackers.

Top broiled pineapple slices, peaches and pears with elderberry or currant jelly.

Here's a hearty casserole that will pep up menus and satisfy cold weather appetites in a flash. Lean pork and tasty vegetables sauced with sour cream and onion are topped with tender corn bread topping made with an oh-so-easy mix.

Pork Casserole

Makes 6 servings

- 1½ lb. lean pork, cut in ¾-inch cubes

- ½ cup milk
- Caraway seed

Brown pork in its own fat. Add water; season with 1 teaspoon salt and the pepper. Cover and simmer until tender, about 35 minutes. Blend together sour cream, flour, onion flakes and ½ teaspoon salt. Stir into pork cubes. Combine meat mixture, carrots and beans in 2½-qt. casserole.

For topping, add egg and milk to bag of corn bread mix. Squeeze upper part of bag to force air out. Close top of bag by holding tightly between thumb and index finger. With bag resting on table, mix by working bag vigorously with fingers. (Mix about 40 seconds or until egg is completely blended.)

Squeeze bag to empty batter over top of casserole. Spread batter lightly with spatula. Sprinkle with a few caraway seeds. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) about 20 minutes.

Lily Chipwiches

Combine and work to a paste:

- 2 packages cream cheese (6 ozs.)
- 2 tblsp. (or more) cream
- ¼ tsp. paprika
- ½ cup crushed potato chips

Cut very thinly

20 slices bread—remove crusts.

Spread the bread with cheese and chip mixture. Roll into cornucopia shape by bringing 2 straight edges together and letting them overlap. Hold edges together with additional cheeses. Press gently, or use toothpick to hold firmly.

You may substitute for the bread Swedish wafers steamed in a double boiler until pliable. Roll and chill before spreading or filling.

Insert into each lily formed:

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What can I do about a husband who is basically a very nice person but in the morning is so mean it's impossible to get a civil word out of him?

I've made a special effort before breakfast to be sweet and considerate. I've cautioned the children not to get in his way or bother him with foolish questions. I've forced myself to be cheerful even when I felt rotten.

I've tried pampering, cajoling, humoring and even scolding, but have had no success whatever. Any suggestions? — BATTING ZERO

DEAR BATTING: You may as well bat your head against the wall.

Some people are sullen, uncommunicative and just plain ornery in the morning and the only thing that helps is time — like about two hours.

Nothing is so irritating to a morning sourpuss as a patronizing, chirping wife. Ignore him.

DEAR ANN: How strong is the heredity factor between mother and daughter? What I'm trying to say is, what are the chances for a girl turning out to be just like her mother?

I've been going with a girl whose mother is of poor moral character. She's a vicious gossip, lowbrow in her manner of speaking and a habitual liar. She's the type who will borrow money then go across the street to avoid looking a person in the eye.

I keep wondering if any of her traits will crop out in the daughter later on. Once in a while the girl will take on a certain look that resembles her mother to a T and I get very upset. In many ways the girl is pleasant and good company. What do you say? —C.T.S.

DEAR C.T.S.: Character traits are not inherited in the same way we inherit blue eyes or curly hair. But environment plays a large part in shaping basic values. The heredity versus environment battle has been going on since the Kallikaks and the Jukes. There have been so many notable exceptions on both sides that the jury is still out.

In your case I'd advise you to find another girl. Even though this one may be a gem you'd constantly be examining her for mama's traits and this would eventually put the dead hand on any marriage.

DEAR ANN: I know this is a foolish question but I don't know who else to ask.

I had a date with a very nice gentleman last evening and he took me to a fancy place for dinner. (We are both middle-aged people, not teen-age kids.)

The first course was a large fruit cup with a sweet wine poured over it. I was shocked when he picked up his fork instead of his spoon. He finished the fruit cocktail with the fork although I used the proper utensil. This bothered me all evening. Should I have mentioned it to him or did I do right to ignore it? — AUNT E.P.H.

DEAR AUNT: If he is a new acquaintance it was best to ignore it. If you've been out with him several times you might have said, "Think I'll start with the fork, too, even though it's not proper. It's easier to spear the grapefruit."

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Pineapple-Cherry Ham

Individual Pineapple-Cherry Ham Oatmeal Loaves are a novel variation of the perennial favorite ham loaf. Rolled oats not only speed up preparation time, but improve the flavor, texture, and add protein, valuable B vitamins, essential minerals, and food energy at low cost.

Last minute preparations can be minimized with this recipe. It can be prepared ahead and frozen in the cooked or uncooked state. Prepared cherry pie filling is used for the cherry sauce — merely add a dash of cloves and heat before pouring over the ham loaves.

Suggested Buffet Menu: Hot vegetable juice with cereal snack mix, pineapple-cherry ham oatmeal loaves, candied sweet potatoes, broccoli, mixed relishes, bran muffins, sherbet, and cookies.

Individual Pineapple-Cherry Ham Oatmeal Loaves

- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 cup rolled oats, quick or regular, uncooked
- 1½ pounds ground smoked ham
- ½ pound ground fresh pork
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon liquid smoke (optional)
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1½ cups water
- 1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) sliced pineapple, drained
- 1 can (1 lb. 6 oz.) cherry pie filling
- Dash of cloves

Thoroughly mix all ingredients except the last three. Grease 8 5-ounce baking cups. Fit a pineapple slice into bottom of each cup, cutting a small wedge from each slice to make it fit into bottom of the cup. Place pineapple wedge removed in center hole. Fill cup with ham mix, pressing it down firmly into cup. Arrange cups on large flat baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour. Remove meat from cups and arrange on serving platter. Drizzle cherry pie filling, that has been heated with a dash of cloves, over ham loaves just before serving. If desired loaves may be served atop an additional heated pineapple slice. Yield: 8 servings.

For lunch on a school day, how about big bowls of soup such as this green pea soup? Blend, a little at a time, an equal amount of apple juice with a can of condensed green pea soup. Heat and serve with crackers.

Top broiled pineapple slices, peaches and pears with elderberry or currant jelly.

Cold Weather Casserole

Here's a hearty casserole that will pep up menus and satisfy cold weather appetites in a flash. Lean pork and tasty vegetables sauced with sour cream and onion are topped with tender corn bread topping made with an oh-so-easy mix.

Pork Casserole

Makes 6 servings

- 1½ lb. lean pork, cut in ¾-inch cubes
- ¾ cup water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup cultured sour cream
- ⅓ cup flour
- 2 tablespoons dry onion flakes
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup sliced carrots, cooked until almost tender
- 1 cup French-style green beans, cooked until almost tender

Topping:

- One pkg. corn bread easy mix
- 1 egg, unbeaten
- ½ cup milk
- Caraway seed

Brown pork in its own fat. Add water; season with 1 teaspoon salt and the pepper. Cover and simmer until tender, about 35 minutes. Blend together sour cream, flour, onion flakes and ½ teaspoon salt. Stir into pork cubes. Combine meat mixture, carrots and beans in 2½-qt. casserole.

For topping, add egg and milk to bag of corn bread mix. Squeeze upper part of bag to force air out. Close top of bag by holding tightly between thumb and index finger. With bag resting on table, mix by working bag vigorously with fingers. (Mix about 40 seconds or until egg is completely blended.)

Squeeze bag to empty batter over top of casserole. Spread batter lightly with spatula. Sprinkle with a few caraway seeds. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) about 20 minutes.

Lily Chipwiches

Combine and work to a paste:

- 2 packages cream cheese (6 ozs.)
- 2 tblsp. (or more) cream
- ¼ tsp. paprika
- ½ cup crushed potato chips

20 slices bread—remove crusts.

Spread the bread with cheese and chip mixture. Roll into cornucopia shape by bringing 2 straight edges together and letting them overlap. Hold edges together with additional cheeses. Press gently, or use toothpick to hold firmly.

You may substitute for the bread Swedish wafers steamed in a double boiler until pliable. Roll and chill before spreading or filling.

Insert into each lily formed:

Valentine's Day Cookies

Hearts, flowers and sweet treats! What more could you ask for on St. Valentine's Day?

These little heart-shaped cookies carry an "I love you" message in a special way. They're rolled cookies made with oats so have that extra nut-rich flavor. Frost each one to perfection, arrange them in a pretty dish and present them to your family with love.

Valentine Hearts

(Makes 4 dozen cookies)

1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
1 egg
½ cup crushed peppermint candy
2 cups sifted enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
Pink confectioners' sugar frosting
Red sugar

Heat oven to moderate (375° F.). Beat butter until creamy; add sugar and beat until fluffy. Beat in egg and peppermint candy until well mixed. Sift together flour and salt; add to creamed mixture, blending thoroughly. Stir in rolled oats. (Dough will be quite stiff.) Chill dough.

Roll out on lightly floured board or canvas to about ⅛-inch thickness. Cut with heart-shaped cookie cutter; place on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in preheated oven (375°F.) 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from cookie sheets immediately; cool.

Lemon Juice Plays Lead In Barbecue

In this barbecue recipe, spareribs take on a new flavor as well as color. The typical spicy red barbecue complement steps aside for a sauce or marinade featuring lemon juice, soy sauce, oil and garlic.

Appropriately enough this recipe is called Lemon Barbecued Spareribs. You might get the idea that this is an Oriental version of our so-called American barbecue but actually the soy sauce is not intended to convey that thought.

The spareribs should be allowed to marinate in this lemon juice, soy sauce and oil mixture for 2 to 3 hours. They can then bake for 1½ to 2 hours in a moderate oven (350° F.). The spareribs should be turned just once during the baking period.

2 racks or 4 to 6 pounds of spareribs are called for in this recipe. To make carving easier after the cooking, have the spareribs sawed across the rib bones.

A note worth remembering . . . a rack of spareribs will weigh between 2 and 3 pounds.

Lemon Barbecued Spareribs

4 to 6 pounds spareribs (2 racks)
⅔ cup soy sauce
⅔ cup oil
½ cup lemon juice
1 clove garlic

Have spareribs sawed across rib bones so individual servings may be carved easily after cooking. Combine soy sauce, oil and lemon juice. Cut garlic clove in half and add to marinade. Place spareribs in shallow pan. Pour marinade over ribs and allow to marinate 2 to 3 hours, turning occasionally. Place spareribs on rack in an open pan. Bake uncovered in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 1½ to 2 hours, or until done. Turn once during baking and brush with remaining marinade. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Cheese And Bacon Chipwich

Cut rounds of bread. Toast on one side. Place on the untoasted sides, thick slices of tomato, sprinkled with salt and pepper, minced onion and green pepper, crushed potato chips, brown sugar, 1 tablespoon grated cheese and a slice of bacon. Place the chipwich on the bottom shelf of the broiler. Serve when tomatoes are soft, the cheese is melted and the bacon is crisp.

Congressional Viewpoint

by Sen. John M. Butler

WASHINGTON — After ten months, $200,000, testimony from over 100 expert witnesses and the preparation of 23 study papers by outside consultants, the Democratic majority of the Joint Economic Committee concluded in a just-published report that the United States, in the past six years, "has failed to realize" a high and stable rate of employment, growth in the national output and productive capacity, and stability in the general level of prices.

There are so many half-truths, misinterpretations and basic economic fallacies in the Majority report that, as a minority member of the Joint Economic Committee, I felt it imperative to rebute and refute its findings in a 41-page individual opinion.

First, in the field of employment, there are six million more people employed today than there were back in 1952. Second, in the field of national production, the country's income has increased $106.1 billion in the past seven years. Third, in the field of prices, the consumer price index has risen only 11 percent in the past seven years as contrasted with the 48 percent rise during the seven years of the Truman Administration. If all this be "failure," the American people, it would seem, have made the most of it to their delight and benefit.

Furthermore, the report neglects certain very important economic yardsticks. For instance, per capita disposable income, that is, income after taxes and in constant dollars, rose from $1,520 in 1952 to $1,891 in 1959, an increase of 24.4 percent, which is more than 3 percent compounded annually, a higher rate of growth than was previously accepted as normal in President Truman's 1950 Economic Report. Time and again, the Majority bewails the sluggish performance of the last several years, a performance that was not dreamed of as possible under the previous Democratic Administration.

The Majority report is also guilty of limiting its analysis to the last six years when the Committee was directed by resolution to conduct an "historical" study of unemployment, production and prices. Contrary to the implication of the partisan authors of the Majority's report, America's economic history did not begin in 1954.

There are many more facts and figures which could be cited, but the several mentioned have demonstrated, I believe, that the Democratic majority of the Joint Economic Committee selected politics rather than prosperity as its main theme and struck almost nothing but false notes.

Here's Party Excitement

What gay party fare can be concocted with a little imagination right in your own kitchen! Here is a party tray that will draw oh's and ah's from your guests. It's easy and quick to make to put just the right note of gaiety on your table when snacks are the order of the day.

Many people shy from making canapes because their tiny beauty hints of hours and hours of effort. Not so, these. The row of crackers in the foreground hold a simply delicious Guacamole spread you make yourself (recipe below) topped by a spicy cocktail onion.

Guacamole

1 cup avocado, mashed
1 onion, finely chopped
Dash Worcestershire sauce
Lime juice, salt and pepper to taste

Blend to smooth consistency in electric blender.

Delicious, also, as a dip or with vegetable relish tray or as salad dressing.

In the second row, crackers are topped with cream cheese mixed with finely chopped onion. Small bits of caviar or olive slices add the finishing touch.

Valentine's Day Cookies

Hearts, flowers and sweet treats! What more could you ask for on St. Valentine's Day?

These little heart-shaped cookies carry an "I love you" message in a special way. They're rolled cookies made with oats so have that extra nut-rich flavor. Frost each one to perfection, arrange them in a pretty dish and present them to your family with love.

Valentine Hearts

(Makes 4 dozen cookies)
- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- 1 egg
- ½ cup crushed peppermint candy
- 2 cups sifted enriched flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
- Pink confectioners' sugar frosting
- Red sugar

Heat oven to moderate (375° F.). Beat butter until creamy; add sugar and beat until fluffy. Beat in egg and peppermint candy until well mixed. Sift together flour and salt; add to creamed mixture, blending thoroughly. Stir in rolled oats. (Dough will be quite stiff.) Chill dough.

Roll out on lightly floured board or canvas to about ⅛-inch thickness. Cut with heart-shaped cookie cutter; place on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in preheated oven (375°F.) 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from cookie sheets immediately; cool.

Pipe pink confectioners' sugar frosting around edge of each cookie. Sprinkle center with red sugar.

Lemon Juice Plays Lead In Barbecue

A Home Version Of A Popular Italian Specialty

Cheese, in infinite variety, is an important ingredient in Italian cookery. If the cheese is not cooked into the dish, it may be sprinkled over the top when served. And many Italian dishes combine two or more kinds of cheese to enrich the flavor of this world renown cuisine.

In Veal Parmigiana, two kinds of Italian-type cheese are used to give the dish its distinctive character. Grated sharp Parmesan is mixed with the breading which coats the meat, and slices of mild, smooth Mozzarella are melted over the top of the meat after cooking. This recipe for the dish which is a favorite in Italian restaurants, will prove a delight to the home cook too. Use it as the main course for an Italian dinner.

Veal Parmigiana

⅓ cup butter
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup finely crushed corn flakes
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 pounds veal cutlets or veal steak, cut into 6 serving pieces
2 cans (8 ounce) tomato sauce
2 teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon onion salt
½ teaspoon sugar
6 slices (3 inches square) Mozzarella cheese

Measure butter into large flat baking dish (13½ x 8¾ x 1¾ inches). Place in hot oven, 400°, to melt butter. Blend together salt, pepper, cereal crumbs and Parmesan cheese. Dip each piece of meat into egg then crumbs, then egg and crumbs again. Place meat in butter in baking dish; return to oven at 400° and bake 20 minutes. Turn meat and make it until tender, about 20 minutes longer. Mix tomato sauce, oregano, onion salt and sugar, and heat. Pour sauce into pan around meat and top each piece of meat with a slice of Mozzarella cheese. Return to oven to melt cheese slightly, about 3 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Cranberries Impart Flavor

How do you add color and flavor to your favorite meat cuts? Well, if you haven't thought of it before, let cranberries do the work for you.

Spareribs with Cranberry Stuffing is a delightful combination. The stuffing, composed of cranberry sauce, chopped raw apple, orange rind, chopped celery and dry bread crumbs, is made into 6 dressing balls. The spareribs are cut into serving size pieces so they will be easier to handle and serve. Initially, the ribs are cooked covered on a rack in an open roasting pan for 1 hour. The fruit flavored stuffing balls are then placed in the roasting pan along with the ribs and returned to a moderate oven (350° F.) to roast for 30 to 45 minutes until ribs are done.

Spareribs with Cranberry Stuffing

3 pounds spareribs
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup whole cranberry sauce
1 cup chopped raw apple
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup finely chopped celery
2 cups coarse dry bread crumbs

Cut meat into serving size pieces of approximately 3 ribs each. Season with salt and pepper. Place spareribs on rack in roasting pan. Cover and bake for 1 hour in a moderate oven (350°F.) Pour off drippings. Combine cranberry sauce, apple, orange rind, celery and bread crumbs. Shape mixture into 6 stuffing balls and place on rack. Continue cooking uncovered for 30 to 45 minutes or until meat is done. Yield: 6 servings.

Senate Cloakroom

WORLD RULERS VISIT US—Last year set a record for visits from heads of state and heads of government. Seventeen top-drawer foreign dignitaries spent a total of 197 days in the United States. The list included: a queen, two kings, a crown princess, a crown prince, a royal duke, six presidents, three prime ministers, and two first deputy prime ministers!

THE GOOD LIFE!—Individual incomes are breaking all records. The average family's income, after taxes, is now just under $6,000 — an increase of 24 per cent in ten years. Wage earners in factories now get an average hourly wage of $2.22, as compared with $1.71 ten years ago—a gain of 41 cents an hour. The buying power of the people has reached 311 billion dollars a year. At the same time, people are saving more than ever before; savings and other financial assets of individuals have grown to 956 billion dollars — more than double what it was ten years ago. Twelve and half million American workers are now stockholders in American corporations.

Three out of five families own their own homes. Three out of four families own at least one automobile. Two-car families have increased from 2 million to 8 million in ten years' time. There are now refrigerators in 50 million homes, washing machines in 47 million, television sets in 45 million, and air conditioners in 7 million.

During the last ten years, the number of visitors to national parks has doubled, and the number of hunting and fishing licenses has tripled. In 1959, American workers took vacations totaling 78 million weeks. The Good Life! And time to enjoy it!

DON'T DEGRADE U.S.A. CAPABILITIES — General Nathan Twining, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said last week to a Congressional committee:

"Today we hear and read much material comparing the strength of the United States with that of the Soviet Union. All too often the writers and commentators are inclined to degrade the capabilities of the American people. At the same time, the efforts of the Soviet Union are reported in glowing terms. The plain and unadulterated truth of the matter is that the moral, military, physical and economic strengths of our people have been adequate to resist and deter Communist aggression. I am confident that this will continue to be the case."

NEW MISSILE-SPOTTING RADAR — A new radar system which can "see" over the horizon to detect missiles and airplanes far beyond the range of existing radars is under current development, the Naval Research Laboratory has disclosed. Called Project Madre, the new radar has spotted electrified clouds 2,600 miles away and missile launchings at Cape Canaveral, Florida, 600 miles distant. It works by bouncing radar signals off the charged layer of air in the upper atmosphere known as the ionosphere.

STATES' RIGHTS? NO TAKERS — We hear a lot about "States' Rights" — but do the States want their "rights"? This is a fundamental issue in government. When President Eisenhower asked the Governors of the States if they wouldn't like to take back from the Federal government some of the "States' rights" which have been usurped by Washington, the offer had no takers. Why? Probably the major answer is that in fields where the Federal government has taken on powers involving public works and costly social insurance, the return of these "rights" to the States would be accompanied by such a staggering return of responsibility that very few Governors or their legislatures would seriously consider it.

A SILLY SYSTEM—If someone came up to you and said that the Government should buy up the goods small grocers cannot sell each year, you'd tell him he was crazy. You'd point out that this couldn't be done without purchasing also the surplus stock of chain grocers at a cost of some hundreds of millions of dollars. You would say that the idea was silly, that the American people would never stand for it.

But they are standing for something very similar. This is the price support program under which the Government acquires farm surpluses. The present Administration inherited this program and has been unable to get rid of it, due to the numerical strength of the farm-support bloc in Congress. Secretary of Agriculture Benson has administered the program according to law, but he has done it under protest. He feels, and President Eisenhower feels, that the cure for the farm problem is not found in Federal handouts to farmers or in the buying up and storing of farm surpluses.

Those favoring the present program say they want to help "the needy farmer." However, most of the surplus crop comes from the larger and more efficient producers, who do not need Federal aid. Some of the big farmers get subsidies of from $100,000 to $1,000,000 apiece every year. The small farmers who need aid get trifling amounts. To continue such a program, with its monstrous build-up of surpluses and its terrific cost, on the excuse that it is to help needy farmers is like using a steam shovel to fill a teacup.

CULTURE ONCE A WEEK — Slowly, too slowly, the massive apparatus called the TV broadcasting industry is climbing toward better programming. Once a week, the two big networks are going to crowd into one or the other of their schedules one hour of "culture". They'll take turns at this "sacrifice."

What the networks do is everybody's business because the "air waves" belong to everybody. The owners of the "air waves" have some complaints — and these have nothing to do with the recently exposed rigged quiz programs and payola from inferior music recorders.

A network executive once told me that TV programs are aimed at the 12-year-old mind, as the broadcasters consider that the average mentality of TV viewers. If that theory holds throughout the industry, the networks have a lot to learn. They say they show Westerns in such great number because that is what the public wants. When movies first came in, the producers thought that the public wanted to see cowboys and Indians, and so, all the movies were about cowboys and Indians, but after a while movies grew up. Perhaps TV too will grow up.

We are told that TV broadcasting is a very profitable business—that sometimes an advertiser will pay out several hundred thousand dollars on a single program — that $64,000, the top prize in a recent quiz show, is "peanuts" to TV people.

With that as a basis, we would suggest that networks could cut down on the number of commercials and still make money. There are too many commercials. When the break in a program comes for a commercial — and that is all too frequent — there are two or three, or even four commercials, one right on top of another.

And what commercials! Those who view TV around dinner time are often given a view of the insides of a person, accompanied by sickening details — on behalf of some patent medicine of questionable value. Apparently, the networks have taken no steps to "police" their commercials, as further evidenced by the fact that many brands of cigarets claim to be the "fastest growing," and at least half-a-dozen claim the distinction of having the least tars and nicotine.

To offset the numerous evils of TV, the networks will have to do more than squeeze in one hour of "culture" once a week.

Serve damson plum or currant jelly with roast turkey and dressing — you'll love the flavor! Or garnish each plate with a peach half filled with jelly.

A Real Family Favorite

Stuffed onion casserole a la Gourmet is an easy-to-prepare, surprise-type dish that is a rare compliment to any meal — even when company comes. And how pretty it looks on the table! Here is a particularly appetizing dish to serve with fowl or roasts . . . at any time of the year. Just wait till you hear your family and friends rave for more.

6 large, white or yellow onions
1½ cups grated cheese
Salt and pepper

Peel onions. Cut a slice from the top of each and parboil for 10 minutes. Scoop out the center, leaving a ½ inch thick shell. Chop centers, adding the cheese seasoned with salt and pepper. Pack the stuffing into the onion shells. Dot top with butter. Place in baking dish with water to just cover the bottom. Bake, covered, in 350-degree oven for 1 hour or until tender. Uncover dish and bake 5 minutes more to slightly brown tops. Garnish with parsley and serve.

Increase recipe as required for number served—and allow plenty, because with this favorite you'll find folks wanting "seconds." A feature of this particular recipe is its economy. At this time of year onions are one of the best "budget buys" available. Your favorite produce market has a wide selection of varieties for every use and packaged to meet the quantity requirements of every family.

Sophisticated tastes take to blue cheese. One novel way to use it calls for a tablespoon . . . crumbled into 1 can (10¾ ounces) spaghetti sauce with meat . . . in a saucepan. When this is heated you'll find it enough for 2 generous servings of hot cooked spaghetti.

Canned apple slices with a sprinkling of thyme make a flavorsome accompaniment for broiled chicken, roast veal or lamb.

A beautiful glaze for baked ham is done with currant jelly. About ½ hour before the ham is done, score fat surface with a sharp knife. Spread ham with jelly and stud with cloves. Return it to the oven and spread with more jelly two or three times during the last ½ hour of baking.

A Home Version Of A Popular Italian Specialty

Cheese, in infinite variety, is an important ingredient in Italian cookery. If the cheese is not cooked into the dish, it may be sprinkled over the top when served. And many Italian dishes combine two or more kinds of cheese to enrich the flavor of this world renown cuisine.

In Veal Parmigiana, two kinds of Italian-type cheese are used to give the dish its distinctive character. Grated sharp Parmesan is mixed with the breading which coats the meat, and slices of mild, smooth Mozzarella are melted over the top of the meat after cooking. This recipe for the dish which is a favorite in Italian restaurants, will prove a delight to the home cook too. Use it as the main course for an Italian dinner.

Veal Parmigiana

⅓ cup butter
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup finely crushed corn flakes
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 pounds veal cutlets or veal steak, cut into 6 serving pieces
2 cans (8 ounce) tomato sauce
2 teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon onion salt
½ teaspoon sugar
6 slices (3 inches square) Mozzarella cheese

Measure butter into large flat baking dish (13½ x 8¾ x 1¾ inches). Place in hot oven, 400°, to melt butter. Blend together salt, pepper, cereal crumbs and Parmesan cheese. Dip each piece of meat into egg then crumbs, then egg and crumbs again. Place meat in butter in baking dish; return to oven at 400° and bake 20 minutes. Turn meat and make it until tender, about 20 minutes longer. Mix tomato sauce, oregano, onion salt and sugar, and heat. Pour sauce into pan around meat and top each piece of meat with a slice of Mozzarella cheese. Return to oven to melt cheese slightly, about 3 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Cranberries Impart Flavor

How do you add color and flavor to your favorite meat cuts? Well, if you haven't thought of it before, let cranberries do the work for you.

Spareribs with Cranberry Stuffing is a delightful combination. The stuffing, composed of cranberry sauce, chopped raw apple, orange rind, chopped celery and dry bread crumbs, is made into 6 dressing balls. The spareribs are cut into serving size pieces so they will be easier to handle and serve. Initially, the ribs are cooked covered on a rack in an open roasting pan for 1 hour. The fruit flavored stuffing balls are then placed in the roasting pan along with the ribs and returned to a moderate oven (350° F.) to roast for 30 to 45 minutes until ribs are done.

Spareribs with Cranberry Stuffing

3 pounds spareribs
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup whole cranberry sauce
1 cup chopped raw apple
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup finely chopped celery
2 cups coarse dry bread crumbs

Cut meat into serving size pieces of approximately 3 ribs each. Season with salt and pepper. Place spareribs on rack in roasting pan. Cover and bake for 1 hour in a moderate oven (350°F.) Pour off drippings. Combine cranberry sauce, apple, orange rind, celery and bread crumbs. Shape mixture into 6 stuffing balls and place on rack. Continue cooking uncovered for 30 to 45 minutes or until meat is done. Yield: 6 servings.

WORLD RULERS VISIT US—Last year set a record for visits from heads of state and heads of government. Seventeen top-drawer foreign dignitaries spent a total of 197 days in the United States. The list included: a queen, two kings, a crown princess, a crown prince, a royal duke, six presidents, three prime ministers, and two first deputy prime ministers!

THE GOOD LIFE!—Individual incomes are breaking all records. The average family's income, after taxes, is now just under $6,000 — an increase of 24 per cent in ten years. Wage earners in factories now get an average hourly wage of $2.22, as compared with $1.71 ten years ago—a gain of 41 cents an hour. The buying power of the people has reached 311 billion dollars a year. At the same time, people are saving more than ever before; savings and other financial assets of individuals have grown to 956 billion dollars — more than double what it was ten years ago. Twelve and half million American workers are now stockholders in American corporations.

Three out of five families own their own homes. Three out of four families own at least one automobile. Two-car families have increased from 2 million to 8 million in ten years' time. There are now refrigerators in 50 million homes, washing machines in 47 million, television sets in 45 million, and air conditioners in 7 million.

During the last ten years, the number of visitors to national parks has doubled, and the number of hunting and fishing licenses has tripled. In 1959, American workers took vacations totaling 78 million weeks. The Good Life! And time to enjoy it!

DON'T DEGRADE U.S.A. CAPABILITIES — General Nathan Twining, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said last week to a Congressional committee:

"Today we hear and read much material comparing the strength of the United States with that of the Soviet Union. All too often the writers and commentators are inclined to degrade the capabilities of the American people. At the same time, the efforts of the Soviet Union are reported in glowing terms. The plain and unadulterated truth of the matter is that the moral, military, physical and economic strengths of our people have been adequate to resist and deter Communist aggression. I am confident that this will continue to be the case."

W.Va. Senate Defeats Bill On Licensing Physicians

Property Assessment Measure Makes Mandatory Appraisals Of 50 Per Cent

By CARLO J. SALZANO
United Press International

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Senate's only medical doctor led a successful floor fight Thursday to defeat 19-12 a bill that would have relaxed regulations governing the licensing of foreign-trained physicians in West Virginia.

Democratic Sen. Ward Wylie of Mullens, a surgeon and hospital operator, got some help from a dentist, Sen. Raymond Vassar, Preston Republican, who charged the bill "would flood our state with foreigners who can't even speak the English language."

In other legislation action:

—The House Judiciary Committee killed a "food - stamp" program to provide a diet supplement for unemployed persons without relief benefits.

—The Senate passed 30-0 a bill to ensure that all counties will receive their share of state school aid, with county courts being held responsible for seeing that property assessments are at required levels. The bill was amended to relieve 10 counties from possible penalties this year.

—The House Finance Committee added a proposed beer tax increase to revenue measures totaling some $21,000,000 it has axed in two days.

Termed "Preposterous"

During a 10 - minute floor speech, the stocky, red - faced Wylie said the foreign doctor bill was "preposterous" and charged it was only introduced as a result of a recent case in Logan County. In that controversial case the license of a Portugese doctor was revoked by the State Medical Licensing Board but later reinstated.

"If this is democracy, I will resign from this Senate as of this minute," Wylie said.

Vassar said if the Senate passed the bill "in two years, medical students graduating from West Virginia University would leave the state."

Seven Republicans lined up with 12 Democrats to defeat the bill. The action just about kills any further action on a similar bill in the House where it was held in committee pending the Senate vote.

During its longest meeting of the session, the Senate went into an executive session to discuss a property appraisal bill before that is tied to school aid. It then amended the bill and passed it.

Subject To Dismissal

The bill makes assessors subject to dismissal if they do not raise property values to at least 50 per cent of the new appraisal. Beginning next July 1, there would be no such thing as penalties because county courts would have to make up the difference between assessments and the 50 per cent level set up by the bill.

A bill requiring the State Road Commission to fill its labor force vacancies from unemployed lists in counties where work is being done passed 21-10. It drew some floor opposition, mainly from Senate Minority Leader John Carrigan (R-Marshall). Carrigan said the bill was confusing in that another measure passed Wednesday set up the Department of Public Assistance as the screening agency for hiring public works employes.

Vassar charged the bill was introduced "for political reasons only." He said it is designed "to help my good friend from Hardy County (Senate President Ralph J. Bean) get elected governor of West Virginia."

The death blow on the "food stamp" program left in the air what form the Democrats' scaled-down $4,000,000 unemployment would take. The food stamp plan was part of the package agreed to by Senate and House Democrats earlier in the session.

Kingwood Osteopath Sues For Right To Use Hospital

Dr. Frank A. Wallington Names Preston Memorial Board Of Trustees

KINGWOOD, W. Va. (UPI)—A Kingwood osteopath brought suit Thursday to force Preston Memorial Hospital to allow him to practice there. Outcome of the case could have far-reaching effects in the state.

Dr. Frank A. Wallington filed the action in Preston County Circuit Court, naming as respondents the hospital's board of trustees and the national Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, Chicago.

In the action, Wallington maintains what doctors of osteopathy have argued for years — that they are licensed by the state as are medical doctors, and that they should not be denied the right to practice in hospitals operated with public funds.

The board last Nov. 20 granted him permission to practice in the hospital, as a result of a policy statement adopted by the American Hospital Assn. (AHA) saying it would be permissable for a hospital to have one osteopathic physician.

However, when the hospital informed the commission — composed of representatives of the AHA, the American Medical Assn., The American College of Surgeons and the American College of Physicians — of the action with regards to Wallington, the commission abruptly withdrew its accreditation.

If Wallington should win this case, all hospitals operated with public funds in the state would be obligated to admit osteopaths. And the accreditation commission, unless it changes its policy, would refuse to accredit any of them.

No hospitals in the state now admit osteopaths to practice. However, in several other states, including Ohio, osteopaths practice in hospitals other than their own. None are accredited.

Even though Preston Memorial rescinded Wallington's privileges, the commission refused to reinstate the hospital. The board was informed that it will be eligible for surveying for accreditation some time this year.

Wallington, only osteopath in this area, was directed by the board to cease practice in the hospital as of Feb. 6, Saturday.

It was learned that medical doctors on the staff of the hospital threatened to resign if Wallington's privilege was not withdrawn.

18 Students Use Loan Fund

KEYSER — John Raschella, financial secretary of Potomac State College, reports the college has received a total allotment of $7,500 from the Federal Loan Fund under provisions of the National Defense Act. The amount has been loaned to 18 students attending the college this year.

Raschella said the number of students is steady since the allotment is given on the basis of total registration at the school, and that no more than 18 students can be granted loans under the program unless there is an increase in registration.

Raschella added some students have dropped out of school and other students have been assigned loan funds. The Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare alloted $6,750 to the program with the stipulation that the college raise the total to $7,500. The $750 was raised through the cooperation of the Keyser Chamber of Commerce.

Two-thirds of the money was alloted during the first semester by the government, and the remaining one-third at the beginning of the second semester. As students request loans, they are placed on a waiting list. The loans are granted on the basis of need and on a first-come first-served basis.

W.Va. Senate Defeats Bill On Licensing Physicians

Property Assessment Measure Makes Mandatory Appraisals Of 50 Per Cent

By CARLO J. SALZANO
United Press International

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Senate's only medical doctor led a successful floor fight Thursday to defeat 19-12 a bill that would have relaxed regulations governing the licensing of foreign-trained physicians in West Virginia.

Democratic Sen. Ward Wylie of Mullens, a surgeon and hospital operator, got some help from a dentist, Sen. Raymond Vassar, Preston Republican, who charged the bill "would flood our state with foreigners who can't even speak the English language."

In other legislation action:

—The House Judiciary Committee killed a "food - stamp" program to provide a diet supplement for unemployed persons without relief benefits.

—The Senate passed 30-0 a bill to ensure that all counties will receive their share of state school aid, with county courts being held responsible for seeing that property assessments are at required levels. The bill was amended to relieve 10 counties from possible penalties this year.

—The House Finance Committee added a proposed beer tax increase to revenue measures totaling some $21,000,000 it has axed in two days.

Termed "Preposterous"

During a 10 - minute floor speech, the stocky, red - faced Wylie said the foreign doctor bill was "preposterous" and charged it was only introduced as a result of a recent case in Logan County. In that controversial case the license of a Portugese doctor was revoked by the State Medical Licensing Board but later reinstated.

"If this is democracy, I will resign from this Senate as of this minute," Wylie said.

Vassar said if the Senate passed the bill "in two years, medical students graduating from West Virginia University would leave the state."

Seven Republicans lined up with 12 Democrats to defeat the bill. The action just about kills any further action on a similar bill in the House where it was held in committee pending the Senate vote.

During its longest meeting of the session, the Senate went into an executive session to discuss a property appraisal bill before that is tied to school aid. It then amended the bill and passed it.

Subject To Dismissal

The bill makes assessors subject to dismissal if they do not raise property values to at least 50 per cent of the new appraisal. Beginning next July 1, there would be no such thing as penalties because county courts would have to make up the difference between assessments and the 50 per cent level set up by the bill.

A bill requiring the State Road Commission to fill its labor force vacancies from unemployed lists in counties where work is being done passed 21-10. It drew some floor opposition, mainly from Senate Minority Leader John Carrigan (R-Marshall). Carrigan said the bill was confusing in that another measure passed Wednesday set up the Department of Public Assistance as the screening agency for hiring public works employes.

Vassar charged the bill was introduced "for political reasons only." He said it is designed "to help my good friend from Hardy County (Senate President Ralph J. Bean) get elected governor of West Virginia."

The death blow on the "food stamp" program left in the air what form the Democrats' scaled-down $4,000,000 unemployment would take. The food stamp plan was part of the package agreed to by Senate and House Democrats earlier in the session.

Kingwood Osteopath Sues For Right To Use Hospital

Dr. Frank A. Wallington Names Preston Memorial Board Of Trustees

KINGWOOD, W. Va. (UPI)—A Kingwood osteopath brought suit Thursday to force Preston Memorial Hospital to allow him to practice there. Outcome of the case could have far-reaching effects in the state.

Dr. Frank A. Wallington filed the action in Preston County Circuit Court, naming as respondents the hospital's board of trustees and the national Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, Chicago.

In the action, Wallington maintains what doctors of osteopathy have argued for years — that they are licensed by the state as are medical doctors, and that they should not be denied the right to practice in hospitals operated with public funds.

The board last Nov. 20 granted him permission to practice in the hospital, as a result of a policy statement adopted by the American Hospital Assn. (AHA) saying it would be permissable for a hospital to have one osteopathic physician.

However, when the hospital informed the commission — composed of representatives of the AHA, the American Medical Assn., The American College of Surgeons and the American College of Physicians — of the action with regards to Wallington, the commission abruptly withdrew its accreditation.

If Wallington should win this case, all hospitals operated with public funds in the state would be obligated to admit osteopaths. And the accreditation commission, unless it changes its policy, would refuse to accredit any of them.

No hospitals in the state now admit osteopaths to practice. However, in several other states, including Ohio, osteopaths practice in hospitals other than their own. None are accredited.

Even though Preston Memorial rescinded Wallington's privileges, the commission refused to reinstate the hospital. The board was informed that it will be eligible for surveying for accreditation some time this year.

Wallington, only osteopath in this area, was directed by the board to cease practice in the hospital as of Feb. 6, Saturday.

It was learned that medical doctors on the staff of the hospital threatened to resign if Wallington's privilege was not withdrawn.

18 Students Use Loan Fund

KEYSER — John Raschella, financial secretary of Potomac State College, reports the college has received a total allotment of $7,500 from the Federal Loan Fund under provisions of the National Defense Act. The amount has been loaned to 18 students attending the college this year.

Raschella said the number of students is steady since the allotment is given on the basis of total registration at the school, and that no more than 18 students can be granted loans under the program unless there is an increase in registration.

Raschella added some students have dropped out of school and other students have been assigned loan funds. The Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare alloted $6,750 to the program with the stipulation that the college raise the total to $7,500. The $750 was raised through the cooperation of the Keyser Chamber of Commerce.

Pat Rankin Files For GOP Judge In 21st District

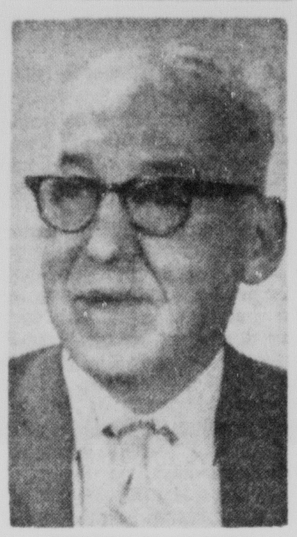
A local resident since 1911 and a practicing attorney since 1926, Rankin has tried cases in most of the circuit courts in West Virginia, as well as a number in Maryland, Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania.



VERNON E. RANKIN

His experience in the legal profession also includes cases before the State Supreme Court of Appeals, and the federal courts in the Northern District of West Virginia.

Worked With B&O

Born at Berkeley Springs, Morgan county, he attended public schools there before moving to Keyser for employment with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

Rankin attended the Keyser Prep (now Potomac State College) while working for the railroad, graduating in 1916. Rankin joined the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen during his tenure with the B&O, and has retained membership in the union.

He enlisted in the armed forces during World War I and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the field artillery.

Rankin began his studies at West Virginia University after completing military service, and continued to work for the B&O during vacations and holidays in order to finance his way through school. He was graduated from West Virginia University Law School in 1923 and entered the office of the late Charles N. Finnell to begin his practice of law.

Wife Is Attorney

Rankin is married to the former Kathryn V. Jenkins, of Morgantown, who also is an attorney at law, having graduated from the WVU Law School in 1924. The fourth requirement, enclosed stairways, does not apply to the grade school since it is a one-story structure.

The movie of the Chicago school fire, where 92 persons died, was shown to parents and teachers present.

Other business conducted by the PTA included presentation of life-time membership to the West Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers to Homer K. Loy, principal.

PSC Housing Problem Has Improved

See Increased Need This Fall

KEYSER — The housing situation at Potomac State College is improved due to the drop in registration for the second semester which began last Thursday.

Mrs. Gertrude Stanhagen, who handles the distribution of rooms in residence halls on the campus, said a few vacancies exist in both Reynolds Hall, the women's residence, and Davis Hall, one of the two men's residence dormitories. Memorial Hall is reported full.

"The situation developed due to delinquent students who, knowing that they were not returning for the second semester, did not cancel room reservations," Mrs. Stanhagen stated. She is secretary to President E. E. Church.

The registration figure for day students the second semester is 540 students. The normal capacity for residence halls is 181 in the men's dorm and 60 in the women's. Other students are either residents of Keyser, live in private homes here or commute from nearby homes.

Mrs. Stanhagen said that since some students made their own arrangements for rooming in town, it is not possible to estimate the number of out-of-town students living in private homes. In stressing the importance of on-campus students making their deposits to hold rooms now, she said the deadline for deposits has been moved back to one week following Easter vacation to enable those who are not sure of returning time to decide, and to get the money necessary for their deposit.

An anticipated large enrollment of freshmen for the fall semester of 1960 has been cited as the reason for the closing of room holding reservations to on-campus students. "We cannot hold rooms for the on-campus students after the first week following Easter vacation in order to give new students ample opportunity to obtain rooms," Mrs. Stanhagen said.

During the first semester conditions were serious because of the large enrollment of 606 students, and also due to the unavailability of private rooms in the city.

Two-Week W.Va. Deer Season Is Proposed

1959 Is Termed Best In Six Years

ROMNEY—The Game Division of the West Virginia Conservation Commission cites figures and findings to fortify its proposed two-week deer season for 1960, as well as its stand on the much-discussed hunter's choice season.

Past investigations prove that hunting pressure drops rapidly after the first two days of the season. Hence the belief that a longer season will not harm the deer herd.

The 1959 deer harvest of 19,588 has gone down in the books as the most successful season since 1953.

The sex ratio of deer killed in "any deer" counties showed a harvest of 102 bucks for each 100 does during the first four days of the season. The six-day kill in the same counties was 113 bucks for each 100 does. Fifty-five per cent of the state kill were bucks.

The commission feels that the fact that the kill has held to a reasonably steady figure since the hunter's choice season was instigated gives evidence of the healthy condition of the herd.

Enforcement officers in District 2, which comprises the Eastern Panhandle counties, state that the most serious threat to the herd in this area is from spotlighters who are taking a heavy toll of the herd.

With a lack of manpower in the Law Enforcement Division, officers can apprehend only a few of the violators who stalk the animals at night and make illegal kills.

Mineral County Health Report For 1959 Filed

KEYSER — The Mineral County Health Department announced the following service given during the year of 1959.

There were 172 school visits made; 350 nurse-teacher conferences held regarding pupils; and 3,040 pupils were screened for defects in tonsils, teeth, vision, heights and weights. Of this number 437 were given referral slips to take to their parents suggesting a visit to their doctor or dentist for advice regarding what should be done to correct the existing defect. In behalf of the school child, 331 home visits were made by the nurses. This resulted in 237 having the defect, minor or major, corrected.

There were 24 pre-school clinics held at the different schools in the county for those children whose ages range from three months to school age. Clinics were held at the Health Department office on 47 Saturday mornings at which time 2,565 were given immunizations; 12 poliomyelitis vaccine clinics were held resulting in 3,929 immunizations of Salk Polio vaccine being given, 17 typhoid Vaccine Clinics were also held with 1,520 attending.

The Mobile Chest X-Ray Unit visited Mineral County in August. It accounted for 1,794 chests being x-rayed. There were four visits of the Diagnostic X-Ray Unit. This x-ray service is designed to help the doctor with diagnosis and to have followups for known cases of Tuberculosis as well as for contacts and suspects.

These services are offered through the cooperation of the State Department of Health and the local Tuberculosis Association. During 1959, 222 attended these clinics. Seven Tuberculin Skin Testing Clinics were held with 53 positive reactors being followed by a chest x-ray.

Two-Week W.Va. Deer Season Is Proposed

1959 Is Termed Best In Six Years

ROMNEY—The Game Division of the West Virginia Conservation Commission cites figures and findings to fortify its proposed two-week deer season for 1960, as well as its stand on the much-discussed hunter's choice season.

Past investigations prove that hunting pressure drops rapidly after the first two days of the season. Hence the belief that a longer season will not harm the deer herd.

The 1959 deer harvest of 19,588 has gone down in the books as the most successful season since 1953.

The sex ratio of deer killed in "any deer" counties showed a harvest of 102 bucks for each 100 does during the first four days of the season. The six-day kill in the same counties was 113 bucks for each 100 does. Fifty-five per cent of the state kill were bucks.

The commission feels that the fact that the kill has held to a reasonably steady figure since the hunter's choice season was instigated gives evidence of the healthy condition of the herd.

Enforcement officers in District 2, which comprises the Eastern Panhandle counties, state that the most serious threat to the herd in this area is from spotlighters who are taking a heavy toll of the herd.

With a lack of manpower in the Law Enforcement Division, officers can apprehend only a few of the violators who stalk the animals at night and make illegal kills.

Mineral County Health Report For 1959 Filed

KEYSER — The Mineral County Health Department announced the following service given during the year of 1959.

There were 172 school visits made; 350 nurse-teacher conferences held regarding pupils; and 3,040 pupils were screened for defects in tonsils, teeth, vision, heights and weights. Of this number 437 were given referral slips to take to their parents suggesting a visit to their doctor or dentist for advice regarding what should be done to correct the existing defect. In behalf of the school child, 331 home visits were made by the nurses. This resulted in 237 having the defect, minor or major, corrected.

There were 24 pre-school clinics held at the different schools in the county for those children whose ages range from three months to school age. Clinics were held at the Health Department office on 47 Saturday mornings at which time 2,565 were given immunizations; 12 poliomyelitis vaccine clinics were held resulting in 3,929 immunizations of Salk Polio vaccine being given, 17 typhoid Vaccine Clinics were also held with 1,520 attending.

The Mobile Chest X-Ray Unit visited Mineral County in August. It accounted for 1,794 chests being x-rayed. There were four visits of the Diagnostic X-Ray Unit. This x-ray service is designed to help the doctor with diagnosis and to have followups for known cases of Tuberculosis as well as for contacts and suspects.

These services are offered through the cooperation of the State Department of Health and the local Tuberculosis Association. During 1959, 222 attended these clinics. Seven Tuberculin Skin Testing Clinics were held with 53 positive reactors being followed by a chest x-ray.

New Dial Phone Plan Will Be Installed Sunday

FRANKLIN, W. Va.—The job of changing the Brandywine and Franklin areas from their present telephone numbering plan to the new two-letter, five-numeral plan is moving ahead on schedule, according to Boyd J. Hiser, local manager for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of West Virginia.

"It is essential that each and every telephone in Franklin and Brandywine be equipped with a dial that has both letters and numbers," Hiser said. It will be impossible to dial EL-8 or CH-9 unless there are letters on your dial plate.

Although the old type dial plates have been changed on sight over the past six months, and involved 800 telephones, the job is about complete. Hiser requested that any telephone customer in the Franklin or Brandywine areas, having the old type dial without letters, contact Elkins Repair Service so that the proper type plate can be mounted on their telephone.

As announced previously, the changeover will occur Sunday at 2 a. m. Since every telephone number in the Franklin and Brandywine areas will change at that time, telephone users are urged to consult their new telephone directory before dialing any calls.

The director said that much interest has been expressed in the program since the community Christmas concert was suspended last December.

New Dial Phone Plan Will Be Installed Sunday

FRANKLIN, W. Va.—The job of changing the Brandywine and Franklin areas from their present telephone numbering plan to the new two-letter, five-numeral plan is moving ahead on schedule, according to Boyd J. Hiser, local manager for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of West Virginia.

"It is essential that each and every telephone in Franklin and Brandywine be equipped with a dial that has both letters and numbers," Hiser said. It will be impossible to dial EL-8 or CH-9 unless there are letters on your dial plate.

Although the old type dial plates have been changed on sight over the past six months, and involved 800 telephones, the job is about complete. Hiser requested that any telephone customer in the Franklin or Brandywine areas, having the old type dial without letters, contact Elkins Repair Service so that the proper type plate can be mounted on their telephone.

As announced previously, the changeover will occur Sunday at 2 a. m. Since every telephone number in the Franklin and Brandywine areas will change at that time, telephone users are urged to consult their new telephone directory before dialing any calls.

Keyser Choirs Will Combine For Easter

KEYSER—Various choirs of the City of Keyser will combine their voices Sunday, April 2, to present an Easter program under the direction of Mrs. E. E. Church.

The singers will present an oratorio, "The Seven Last Words of Christ." Soloists will be announced later.

Mrs. Church said that any persons interested in singing with the chorus are invited to do so, whether they are affiliated with a regular church choir or not. Rehearsals are expected to get under way the first Sunday in March.

The director said that much interest has been expressed in the program since the community Christmas concert was suspended last December.

Jets File Suit To Nullify Felix, Garmaker Trade

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A suit was filed in Federal Court Thursday to nullify the recent trade of Ray Felix of the New York Knickerbockers for Dick Garmaker of the Minneapolis Lakers.

The Allentown (Pa.) Jets of the Eastern Basketball League claimed that Felix, after being dropped by New York, signed a contract with them for exclusive right to his basketball services. The Jets also said the contract gave them an option on Felix' future services.

The Allentown club asked U. S. District Judge Thomas C. Egan to keep the Lakers from using the services of Felix. He set next Tuesday to hear argument on the petition.

Final Rites Held For Mary Casey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The widow of baseball's "Mighty Casey at the Bat" was buried Thursday.

Mrs. Mary E. Casey, 96, was interred in a nearby Maryland suburb following funeral services here. She died Monday of pneumonia.

In 1897, Mrs. Casey celebrated her 24th birthday on the legendary day that her husband Daniel M. Casey a long-ago pitcher for the Philadelphia Phillies, struck out with two on and two out in the ninth inning of a battle with the New York Giants.

It was this that prompted sportswriter Ernest L. Thayer to immortalize Casey with a poem that ended:

"But there is no joy in Mudville
"Mighty Casey has struck out."

Casey died in 1943, after the couple moved from Binghamton, N. Y., to Takoma Park, Md.

NEW YORK (AP)—Dayton, Villanova and Detroit will play in the 12-team National Invitation Tournament in Madison Square Garden starting March 10.

The selection of Dayton and Villanova, the first two schools named, was announced Thursday by Ken Norton, chairman of the selection committee.

In Detroit, John Mulroy, vice president in charge of athletics, said the Titans had accepted a bid to the Garden tourney.

Norton said that more than a dozen other colleges were under consideration. He listed either Bradley or Cincinnati from the Missouri Valley Conference, Utah or Utah State from the Skyline Conference, Depaul, Holy Cross, Memphis State, Miami, Fla., and Toledo.

Dayton has won 16 and lost 3. Villanova is 14-1 and Detroit 15-2.

Cobey, Faber Terp Athletic Leaders, Fined

Used Live Birds As Geese Decoys

BALTIMORE (AP) — Two University of Maryland athletic officials were fined $25 and costs in Federal District Court Thursday for violating federal game laws.

William W. Cobey, 51, athletic director, and John E. (Jack) Faber, 57, lacrosse coach, were fined by Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen after pleading guilty to the charges.

They were accused of using live birds as decoys to hunt geese.

The two men told Judge Thomsen they did not put five white Muscovy ducks in a pond near where they were shooting near Cambridge in Dorchester County last Nov. 10. They said they did not know the birds were in the pond.

William F. Chew, Owings Mills contractor, host for the hunting party, was fined $125 on similar charges.

Ginsberg, Rookies Signed By Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Veteran Joe Ginsberg and rookies Fred Valentine and Bob Saverine have signed contracts for the 1960 baseball season, the Baltimore Orioles said Thursday.

Ginsberg, 33-year-old catcher, joined the Birds in the latter part of the 1956 season. He hit only .181 last year.

Saverine, from Norwalk, Conn., signed a Miami contract last June. A switch-hitter, the 19-year-old rookie plays both at shortstop and centerfield. While playing with Bluefield in the Appalachian League last summer he led the circuit in hitting, with a .353 average.

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Army added a 10th game to its 1960 football schedule Thursday, booking a game with the University of Buffalo to open the season here Sept. 17.

It will be the first football meeting between the two schools. Buffalo, playing only occasionally against opponents of major college ranking, has won eight games and lost one in each of its last two seasons.

Shepherd Faces Cats, Winners Of 14 Games In Row

Ancient rivals will tangle tonight when the clawing Catamounts of Potomac State, winners of 14 consecutive games, will attempt to add Shepherd College to their growing list of victims for the second time this season.

Coach "Horse" Lough's team has won 16 out of 20 games and has not tasted defeat since December 12 when Wheeling College won, 68-67. The Catamounts have scored 100 or more points in five games and own a record of 5-2 in the West Virginia Conference. The Rams, beaten earlier in the campaign by Potomac, 79-78, are 0-10 in the WVC and 2-13 overall.

Tonight's game is the third this week for Potomac State.

Wesley College of Dover, Del., will be met in Keyser Saturday night when the Cats will ring down the curtain on their Tri-State Junior College Conference schedule. Potomac is 8-0 in the Tri-State and can close the season with a perfect record by winning on Saturday. The Loughmen will vie in the Tri-State Tournament at Suitland (Md.) High School, February 19-20.

Ellis Paces Palm Springs Golf Tourney

Texan Holds Stroke Lead With 135 Total

By JAMES BACON

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Wes Ellis Jr., poker faced Texan, Thursday scored a sizzling 65 over the tough Tamarisk course to grab an early second round lead in the world's richest golf tournament.

Ellis, winner of the 1958 Canadian Open and the 1959 Texas Open, coupled his 65 with a first round 70 for 135, one stroke better than John McMullin of Fair-Oaks, Calif., and Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah.

The 28-year-old Ellis has signed as resident pro at West Caldwell N.J., a job that probably will take him off the tour. His 65 is the lowest card yet in the $100,000 Palm Springs Desert Classic.

McMullin shot his second 68 in a row.

Their total of 136 put them one stroke ahead of Al Besselink, rangy pro from Grossinger, N.Y., who shot a 69 to go with a first round 68.

Dutch Harrison shot a sizzling 32 on his first nine Thursday but bogeyed himself into a 38 for the back nine. His 70, coupled with a 68 Wednesday, gave him a 36-hole total of 138.

Bunched at 139 were Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., whose first-round 67 made him one of five opening day leaders; Earl Stewart Jr., of Dallas, 68-71; and Tommy Jacobs of Palm Springs, 71-68.

All the pros were firing away for that $50,000 hole-in-one money.

The 132 pros are teamed with 396 amateurs for the first four rounds of the 90-hole tournament.

Intramural Games Nearing Finals

The winners are: seventh grade, 7-5; eighth grade, 8-4; and the ninth grade, 9-3.

Friday at 3:10 the 7-5 team will play the 8-4 basketball team in the first championship game.

Seventh and eighth grade cheerleaders will be cheering at this girls intramural playoff game after school on February 5.

McMillan Signs

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—Cincinnati Redlegs ace shortstop Roy McMillan Thursday signed his 1960 contract. Terms were not disclosed.

McMillan, injured twice during the last season when he broke his collar bone, recently was notified by physicians he was back in good health. Since then the shortstop has been working out daily in a downtown gym.

FUR REAL

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The script of Columbia's "Strangers When We Meet" called for a scene to be filmed in famed Romanoff's Restaurant.

Producer director Richard Quine insisted that the 39 women appearing in the scene dress to fit the location. Each was draped in a genuine mink or chinchilla wrap.

CATALOGUES BOOKS

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Italian writer Alessandro Cervellati has completed a catalogue of his world-famed collection of circus and music hall books.

He reports the most numerous authors of these types of books are the French, followed by the Germans, English, Italians and Americans.

GETS THE MESSAGE

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — Municipal messenger Mario Transini claims to have invented a new musical rhythm different from swing, bop, rock 'n' roll or any other kind known today.

Called "O. K. Pentatime," the three-two rhythm is one in which "the negative and positive have been united to form a melody," he explained.

TIME FOR A CHANGE

BOSTON (UPI) — Lettered on a strip of metal on a weathervane atop the State Street building is a campaign slogan that isn't likely to have much effect on this year's presidential election. It reads: "Vote For Hoover."

The words were inscribed back in 1928.

Mary Downey Advances At Palm Beach

Takes Two Matches, Makes Semi-Finals

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Ann Casey Johnstone, Curtis Cup star from Mason City, Iowa, won revenge Thursday as she defeated national amateur champion Barbara McIntire of Lake Park, Fla., en route to the semifinals of the Palm Beach Women's golf tournament.

Mrs. Johnstone lost 5 and 4 to Miss McIntire in the finals of the tourney last year. But this time the Iowa housewife turned the tables with a 3 and 1 victory in the morning's third round.

She went on to defeat Joanne Goodwin, Havermill, Mass., in the afternoon quarterfinals, 2 and 1.

That will put Mrs. Johnstone into Friday's semi-finals against Mrs. Barbara Fitton, Hamilton, Ohio, school teacher and dark horse of the tournament.

The other semi-final match pits Judy Bell, Wichita, Kan., coed, against the veteran Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore.

Mrs. Fitton advanced with a 20-hole upset of Mrs. Peter Dye, Indianapolis, Ind., in the morning round and a 1-up victory over Pat Hahn, Wilmington, Del., in the afternoon.

Miss Bell, playing near-par golf all the way, eliminated Marge Burns, Greensboro, N. C., 3 and 2, and Shirley Lindsay, Decatur, Ill., 2-up.

Miss Downey, playing some of the steadiest golf of the tournament, turned back Nancy Roth, Hollywood, Fla., 2 and 1, and Mrs. Maurice Glick, Baltimore, by the same margin.

Villanova Wins

NEW YORK (AP)—Little Jim Huggard set a victory pattern with a basket in the opening seconds and helped kill a late Manhattan rally Thursday night as Villanova defeated the Jaspers 62-55.

Villanova, which Thursday was selected for next month's National Invitation Tournament, led all the way. The eighth-ranked Wildcats lifted their season record to 15-1. Their only setback was by fifth-rated West Virginia.

Old Foes To Meet

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina State and West Virginia have renewed basketball rivalry for the 1961 and 1962 campaigns. The teams last met in 1957. Their 1961 meeting is set for Feb. 4 at Charleston, W. Va. Their 1962 game is listed for Feb. 3 in Greensboro, N. C. North Carolina State holds a 4-2 edge in the series which started 14 years ago.

Winter Rivalry

Jets File Suit To Nullify Felix, Garmaker Trade

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A suit was filed in Federal Court Thursday to nullify the recent trade of Ray Felix of the New York Knickerbockers for Dick Garmaker of the Minneapolis Lakers.

The Allentown (Pa.) Jets of the Eastern Basketball League claimed that Felix, after being dropped by New York, signed a contract with them for exclusive right to his basketball services. The Jets also said the contract gave them an option on Felix' future services.

The Allentown club asked U. S. District Judge Thomas C. Egan to keep the Lakers from using the services of Felix. He set next Tuesday to hear argument on the petition.

Final Rites Held For Mary Casey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The widow of baseball's "Mighty Casey at the Bat" was buried Thursday.

Mrs. Mary E. Casey, 96, was interred in a nearby Maryland suburb following funeral services here. She died Monday of pneumonia.

In 1897, Mrs. Casey celebrated her 24th birthday on the legendary day that her husband Daniel M. Casey a long-ago pitcher for the Philadelphia Phillies, struck out with two on and two out in the ninth inning of a battle with the New York Giants.

It was this that prompted sportswriter Ernest L. Thayer to immortalize Casey with a poem that ended:

"But there is no joy in Mudville
"Mighty Casey has struck out."

Dayton, Villanova, Detroit Enter NIT

NEW YORK (AP)—Dayton, Villanova and Detroit will play in the 12-team National Invitation Tournament in Madison Square Garden starting March 10.

The selection of Dayton and Villanova, the first two schools named, was announced Thursday by Ken Norton, chairman of the selection committee.

In Detroit, John Mulroy, vice president in charge of athletics, said the Titans had accepted a bid to the Garden tourney.

Norton said that more than a dozen other colleges were under consideration. He listed either Bradley or Cincinnati from the Missouri Valley Conference, Utah or Utah State from the Skyline Conference, Depaul, Holy Cross, Memphis State, Miami, Fla., and Toledo.

Dayton has won 16 and lost 3. Villanova is 14-1 and Detroit 15-2.

Cobey, Faber Terp Athletic Leaders, Fined

Used Live Birds As Geese Decoys

BALTIMORE (AP) — Two University of Maryland athletic officials were fined $25 and costs in Federal District Court Thursday for violating federal game laws.

William W. Cobey, 51, athletic director, and John E. (Jack) Faber, 57, lacrosse coach, were fined by Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen after pleading guilty to the charges.

They were accused of using live birds as decoys to hunt geese.

The two men told Judge Thomsen they did not put five white Muscovy ducks in a pond near where they were shooting near Cambridge in Dorchester County last Nov. 10. They said they did not know the birds were in the pond.

William F. Chew, Owings Mills contractor, host for the hunting party, was fined $125 on similar charges.

Burgess Set Record

A check of the record books shows that Smoky Burgess set a Pittsburgh club record last year and that Dick Stuart tied another. Smoky's 11 homeruns are an all-time high in that department for Pirate catchers. The old mark was nine set in 1957 by Hank Foiles. Stu's 27 homers tied Dale Long's 27 hit in 1956, the homerun high for Pirate basemen.

Ginsberg, Rookies Signed By Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Veteran Joe Ginsberg and rookies Fred Valentine and Bob Saverine have signed contracts for the 1960 baseball season, the Baltimore Orioles said Thursday.

Saverine, from Norwalk, Conn., signed a Miami contract last June. A switch-hitter, the 19-year-old rookie plays both at shortstop and centerfield. While playing with Bluefield in the Appalachian League last summer he led the circuit in hitting, with a .353 average.

Ancient rivals will tangle tonight when the clawing Catamounts of Potomac State, winners of 14 consecutive games, will attempt to add Shepherd College to their growing list of victims for the second time this season.

Ellis Paces Palm Springs Golf Tourney

By JAMES BACON

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Wes Ellis Jr., poker faced Texan, Thursday scored a sizzling 65 over the tough Tamarisk course to grab an early second round lead in the world's richest golf tournament.

Ellis, winner of the 1958 Canadian Open and the 1959 Texas Open, coupled his 65 with a first round 70 for 135, one stroke better than John McMullin of Fair-Oaks, Calif., and Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah.

The 28-year-old Ellis has signed as resident pro at West Caldwell N.J., a job that probably will take him off the tour. His 65 is the lowest card yet in the $100,000 Palm Springs Desert Classic.

Johnston shot a 67 at Thunderbird to compare with his first round 69.

McMullin shot his second 68 in a row.

Their total of 136 put them one stroke ahead of Al Besselink, rangy pro from Grossinger, N.Y., who shot a 69 to go with a first round 68.

Dutch Harrison shot a sizzling 32 on his first nine Thursday but bogeyed himself into a 38 for the back nine. His 70, coupled with a 68 Wednesday, gave him a 36-hole total of 138.

Bunched at 139 were Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., whose first-round 67 made him one of five opening day leaders; Earl Stewart Jr., of Dallas, 68-71; and Tommy Jacobs of Palm Springs, 71-68.

All the pros were firing away for that $50,000 hole-in-one money.

The 132 pros are teamed with 396 amateurs for the first four rounds of the 90-hole tournament.

For the fifth round Sunday, the low 60 pros fight it out alone over the Thunderbird Country Club layout.

Seventh and eighth grade cheerleaders will be cheering at this girls intramural playoff game after school on February 5.

McMillan Signs

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—Cincinnati Redlegs ace shortstop Roy McMillan Thursday signed his 1960 contract. Terms were not disclosed.

McMillan, injured twice during the last season when he broke his collar bone, recently was notified by physicians he was back in good health. Since then the shortstop has been working out daily in a downtown gym.

FUR REAL

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The script of Columbia's "Strangers When We Meet" called for a scene to be filmed in famed Romanoff's Restaurant.

CATALOGUES BOOKS

He reports the most numerous authors of these types of books are the French, followed by the Germans, English, Italians and Americans.

GETS THE MESSAGE

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — Municipal messenger Mario Transini claims to have invented a new musical rhythm different from swing, bop, rock 'n' roll or any other kind known today.

Called "O. K. Pentatime," the three-two rhythm is one in which "the negative and positive have been united to form a melody," he explained.

TIME FOR A CHANGE

BOSTON (UPI) — Lettered on a strip of metal on a weathervane atop the State Street building is a campaign slogan that isn't likely to have much effect on this year's presidential election. It reads: "Vote For Hoover."

The words were inscribed back in 1928.

Mary Downey Advances At Palm Beach

Takes Two Matches, Makes Semi-Finals

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Ann Casey Johnstone, Curtis Cup star from Mason City, Iowa, won revenge Thursday as she defeated national amateur champion Barbara McIntire of Lake Park, Fla., en route to the semifinals of the Palm Beach Women's golf tournament.

Mrs. Johnstone lost 5 and 4 to Miss McIntire in the finals of the tourney last year. But this time the Iowa housewife turned the tables with a 3 and 1 victory in the morning's third round.

She went on to defeat Joanne Goodwin, Havermill, Mass., in the afternoon quarterfinals, 2 and 1.

That will put Mrs. Johnstone into Friday's semi-finals against Mrs. Barbara Fitton, Hamilton, Ohio, school teacher and dark horse of the tournament.

The other semi-final match pits Judy Bell, Wichita, Kan., coed, against the veteran Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore.

Mrs. Fitton advanced with a 20-hole upset of Mrs. Peter Dye, Indianapolis, Ind., in the morning round and a 1-up victory over Pat Hahn, Wilmington, Del., in the afternoon.

Miss Bell, playing near-par golf all the way, eliminated Marge Burns, Greensboro, N. C., 3 and 2, and Shirley Lindsay, Decatur, Ill., 2-up.

Miss Downey, playing some of the steadiest golf of the tournament, turned back Nancy Roth, Hollywood, Fla., 2 and 1, and Mrs. Maurice Glick, Baltimore, by the same margin.

Villanova Wins

NEW YORK (AP)—Little Jim Huggard set a victory pattern with a basket in the opening seconds and helped kill a late Manhattan rally Thursday night as Villanova defeated the Jaspers 62-55.

Villanova, which Thursday was selected for next month's National Invitation Tournament, led all the way. The eighth-ranked Wildcats lifted their season record to 15-1. Their only setback was by fifth-rated West Virginia.

Old Foes To Meet

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina State and West Virginia have renewed basketball rivalry for the 1961 and 1962 campaigns. The teams last met in 1957. Their 1961 meeting is set for Feb. 4 at Charleston, W. Va. Their 1962 game is listed for Feb. 3 in Greensboro, N. C. North Carolina State holds a 4-2 edge in the series which started 14 years ago.

Winter Rivalry

Razing Of Liberty Those 1922 Fights

Chief Stops Bout First Talkies There

By C. V. BURNS

Fay Keiser

Chris Himmler

RAZING of the Liberty Theater to make way for a parking lot on North Liberty Street brings back memories of the days when boxing flourished at Thomas H. Burke's movie house.

That was almost 40 years ago when Pete Shaw, proprietor of the Queen City Pool Room, on the opposite side of Liberty Street, decided to go into the fight promotion business under the name of the Queen City Athletic Club.

Albert "Bobby" Greene beat Henry (K.O.) Yutzy there in 12 rounds October 14, 1922. Fay Keiser decisioned Jimmy Darcey, of New York, in another 12-rounder, and Patsy Gainer, local middleweight, won four straight bouts on the stage of that theater.

Bobby Greene

K. O. Yutzy

Early in 1922, Greene had whipped Gainer at the Maryland Theater in a sizzling 8-round scrap promoted by John W. Snyder. It was decreed by Greene's managers that before Gainer got a return scrap with Bobby he must dispose of three other local contenders, namely, John Griffin, Calvin Shipes, better known as Bill Cretchley, and Glyn Davis, local police officer.

Gainer stopped all three of his opponents in short order in bouts at the Liberty.

Buck Griffith

Joey Cifala

On December 22, 1922, Gainer got his return bout with Greene at the Liberty and grabbed the decision after 12 rounds of fighting. Chris Himmler was the referee and the judges were Somerville Nicholson, now supervisor of assessments for Allegany County, and W. E. Ambrose.

Ray McCall of Altoona decisioned Tommy Kabosky, local featherweight star, in one of the prelims.

These bouts were staged in the days when the stars of the silent screen were Wally Reid, Bebe Daniels, Conrad Nagel, Elaine Hammerstein, William S. Hart, Fatty Arbuckle, William Farnum, Tom Moore, Harold Lloyd, Ethen Clayton, etc.

It was at the Liberty Theater that Oscar Eyerman, chief of police, set a precedent when he jumped into the ring and stopped a main bout between "Red" Mack of Albany, N.Y., who was on the canvas claiming a foul at the hands of Frankie Rice, of Baltimore. In fact, Eyerman declared Mack the winner.

Referee Chris Himmler refused to allow Mack's claim of foul after the latter had slipped to the floor, holding his groin. Himmler had tolled off the count of nine when Eyerman came barging into the ring, helped Mack to his feet and hoisted the boxer's hand in the air, signifying Mack as the victor on a foul.

Bedlam broke loose at the Chief's action and the fans were on their feet yelling.

James K. Ford, founder of the Ford Drug Stores, represented the State Boxing Commission, and he got into the act by questioning Eyerman's authority to stop the fight.

An examination of Mack by Dr. Edward Harris failed to show any signs of injury. Many of the fans, however, upheld the action of the chief of police and contended Rice had landed at least five low blows.

The fight was continued and a draw verdict given at the end of 12 rounds. Rice was warned about hitting low and he did little fighting after the fourth round.

Eyerman told the writer the fight didn't look good to him so he decided to stop it. The Chief, a keen judge of boxing, died in Los Angeles at the age of 74 in March, 1955.

Penner won on a foul over K. O. Circus, of Pittsburgh, at the Liberty on the night of August 31, 1922. At 5 a. m., the following morning he died in an automobile mishap on Martin's Mountain.

Thomas H. Burke owned the Empire Theater on Baltimore street and he purchased the Liberty from Charles Charuhas, uncle of Christ Charuhas.

It is said the Liberty Theater originally was a church and it was at that spot that the great fire of 1893 was finally brought under control. The fire broke out on North Mechanic street near the Maryland Theater and wiped out the entire block on Baltimore Street.

The Liberty was badly damaged by fire one Sunday afternoon in the early 1940s. In 1944 Thomas Burke sold the theater to the Schine chain. Mr. Burke died on April 1, 1954.

The Liberty also was the first theater to show sound and talking pictures in Cumberland.

The name of the first sound movie was "The Jazz Singer," featuring Al Jolson and was by Vitaphone.

It opened at the Liberty Monday, December 24, 1928, and played to packed houses for a solid week.

Buffalo GM Offers Plan For Indemnity

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A plan under which the Continental Baseball League would indemnify the minor leagues for lost territory on the basis of the actual attendance loss over a five-year period was suggested Thursday.

Don Labbruzzo, general manager of the International League's Buffalo Bisons, advanced the plan and said it struck him as "very fair to the International League."

The International League's loss to the Continental includes Buffalo and Toronto.

Ralph Lumenti, rookie pitcher with Washington, struck out 141 Sally League batters in 166 innings with Charlotte last season.

Record Crowd To See Bouts In California

Los Angeles Scene Of Two Title Scraps

By ALEX KAHN

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The biggest crowd in California boxing history Thursday descended on the vast Coliseum for a twin championship fight program on which the bantamweight and junior welterweight titles were at stake.

With all four principals having weighed in at noon, the fighters awaited the start of action. This pits bantamweight champion Jose Becerra of Mexico against Alphonse Halimi of France in the first of the title bouts.

The other fight for the junior welterweight crown could be a slugfest between champion Carlos Ortiz and Raymundo (Battling) Torres of Mexico.

More Spanish than English was heard both at the weigh - in at noon and among the early arrivals at the Coliseum from an estimated 15,000 Mexican nationals and thousands more of Mexican descent who poured in the biggest advance sale in California history for the fight.

The old California gate record of $236,521 was broken Wednesday and the sponsoring Olympic Boxing Club's ticket offices opened Thursday with $243,000 in the till. By noon the advance had increased to $257,030 and promoter Cal Eaton said he expected better than $300,000 by the time the fight starts and a crowd of more than 36,000.

Hillsdale Scratched

Will Miss Rich Santa Anita 'Cap

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI)—Hillsdale, the Indiana - bred star of western racing last season, Thursday was declared from the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 27 because of an ankle injury but an effort will be made to race him later in the year.

C. W. Smith, Detroit sportsman-industrialst, made the announcement that his five-year-old could not get into racing condition in time for the big handicap that highlights the Santa Anita meeting.

Smith said he made the announcement reluctantly because he had hoped Hillsdale could take the big handicap in which he finished second to Terrang last year.

Hillsdale won 10 out of 13 races last year including such classics as the Santa Anita Maturity, the Hollywood Gold Cup, the Californian and the Aqueduct Handicap under 132 pounds. He was a top contender for "Horse of the year" honors but Sword Dancer beat him in the Woodward Stakes to take that award.

But during his big season, Hillsdale earned $502,090 and came west for more gold and glory, being assigned 132 pounds for the Santa Anita handicap. Hillsdale suffered the ankle injury just prior to the $50,000 San Carlos Handicap early last month. The race was to have been his first start of the year.

Risque Song Returns $105

Cops Second Race At Hialeah Park

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI)—Risque Song, who finished in the money only once in 10 previous starts, paid $105.00 for $2 Thursday while winning the second race at Hialeah.

The combination of Risque Song and Colonel Art ($5.90) in the first race resulted in a $436.00 daily double.

In the featured seventh, Estival was declared the winner by stewards when Whirlbeater was disqualified.

Whirlbeater had finished two lengths in front of Estival in the mile and one-sixteenth race. A foul claim was lodged, however, accusing Whirlbeater of ducking in sharply toward the other horse about an eighth of a mile from the wire.

Madam Regel, third place finisher, was made runner-up and Whirlbeater was dropped to third money.

Bill Hartack III, Cancels Mounts

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP) — Bill Hartack, leading rider at Hialeah Park, cancelled all his mounts after the first race today, complaining of an upset stomach. Hartack said he would take tomorrow off, as well.

He has been in a mild slump. After riding 17 winners in the first nine days at Hialeah, he has won only five races in the last eight days.

Chief Stops Bout First Talkies There

By C. V. BURNS

Fay Keiser

Chris Himmler

RAZING of the Liberty Theater to make way for a parking lot on North Liberty Street brings back memories of the days when boxing flourished at Thomas H. Burke's movie house.

That was almost 40 years ago when Pete Shaw, proprietor of the Queen City Pool Room, on the opposite side of Liberty Street, decided to go into the fight promotion business under the name of the Queen City Athletic Club.

Albert "Bobby" Greene beat Henry (K.O.) Yutzy there in 12 rounds October 14, 1922. Fay Keiser decisioned Jimmy Darcey, of New York, in another 12-rounder, and Patsy Gainer, local middleweight, won four straight bouts on the stage of that theater.

Bobby Greene

K. O. Yutzy

Early in 1922, Greene had whipped Gainer at the Maryland Theater in a sizzling 8-round scrap promoted by John W. Snyder. It was decreed by Greene's managers that before Gainer got a return scrap with Bobby he must dispose of three other local contenders, namely, John Griffin, Calvin Shipes, better known as Bill Cretchley, and Glyn Davis, local police officer.

Gainer stopped all three of his opponents in short order in bouts at the Liberty.

Buck Griffith

Joey Cifala

On December 22, 1922, Gainer got his return bout with Greene at the Liberty and grabbed the decision after 12 rounds of fighting. Chris Himmler was the referee and the judges were Somerville Nicholson, now supervisor of assessments for Allegany County, and W. E. Ambrose.

These bouts were staged in the days when the stars of the silent screen were Wally Reid, Bebe Daniels, Conrad Nagel, Elaine Hammerstein, William S. Hart, Fatty Arbuckle, William Farnum, Tom Moore, Harold Lloyd, Ethen Clayton, etc.

It was at the Liberty Theater that Oscar Eyerman, chief of police, set a precedent when he jumped into the ring and stopped a main bout between "Red" Mack of Albany, N.Y., who was on the canvas claiming a foul at the hands of Frankie Rice, of Baltimore. In fact, Eyerman declared Mack the winner.

Referee Chris Himmler refused to allow Mack's claim of foul after the latter had slipped to the floor, holding his groin. Himmler had tolled off the count of nine when Eyerman came barging into the ring, helped Mack to his feet and hoisted the boxer's hand in the air, signifying Mack as the victor on a foul.

Bedlam broke loose at the Chief's action and the fans were on their feet yelling.

James K. Ford, founder of the Ford Drug Stores, represented the State Boxing Commission, and he got into the act by questioning Eyerman's authority to stop the fight.

An examination of Mack by Dr. Edward Harris failed to show any signs of injury. Many of the fans, however, upheld the action of the chief of police and contended Rice had landed at least five low blows.

The fight was continued and a draw verdict given at the end of 12 rounds. Rice was warned about hitting low and he did little fighting after the fourth round.

Eyerman told the writer the fight didn't look good to him so he decided to stop it. The Chief, a keen judge of boxing, died in Los Angeles at the age of 74 in March, 1955.

Penner won on a foul over K. O. Circus, of Pittsburgh, at the Liberty on the night of August 31, 1922. At 5 a. m., the following morning he died in an automobile mishap on Martin's Mountain.

Thomas H. Burke owned the Empire Theater on Baltimore street and he purchased the Liberty from Charles Charuhas, uncle of Christ Charuhas.

It is said the Liberty Theater originally was a church and it was at that spot that the great fire of 1893 was finally brought under control. The fire broke out on North Mechanic street near the Maryland Theater and wiped out the entire block on Baltimore Street.

The Liberty was badly damaged by fire one Sunday afternoon in the early 1940s. In 1944 Thomas Burke sold the theater to the Schine chain. Mr. Burke died on April 1, 1954.

The Liberty also was the first theater to show sound and talking pictures in Cumberland.

The name of the first sound movie was "The Jazz Singer," featuring Al Jolson and was by Vitaphone.

It opened at the Liberty Monday, December 24, 1928, and played to packed houses for a solid week.

Record Crowd To See Bouts In California

Los Angeles Scene Of Two Title Scraps

By ALEX KAHN

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The biggest crowd in California boxing history Thursday descended on the vast Coliseum for a twin championship fight program on which the bantamweight and junior welterweight titles were at stake.

With all four principals having weighed in at noon, the fighters awaited the start of action. This pits bantamweight champion Jose Becerra of Mexico against Alphonse Halimi of France in the first of the title bouts.

More Spanish than English was heard both at the weigh - in at noon and among the early arrivals at the Coliseum from an estimated 15,000 Mexican nationals and thousands more of Mexican descent who poured in the biggest advance sale in California history for the fight.

The old California gate record of $236,521 was broken Wednesday and the sponsoring Olympic Boxing Club's ticket offices opened Thursday with $243,000 in the till. By noon the advance had increased to $257,030 and promoter Cal Eaton said he expected better than $300,000 by the time the fight starts and a crowd of more than 36,000.

Buffalo GM Offers Plan For Indemnity

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A plan under which the Continental Baseball League would indemnify the minor leagues for lost territory on the basis of the actual attendance loss over a five-year period was suggested Thursday.

Don Labbruzzo, general manager of the International League's Buffalo Bisons, advanced the plan and said it struck him as "very fair to the International League."

Hillsdale Scratched

Will Miss Rich Santa Anita 'Cap

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI)—Hillsdale, the Indiana - bred star of western racing last season, Thursday was declared from the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 27 because of an ankle injury but an effort will be made to race him later in the year.

C. W. Smith, Detroit sportsman-industrialist, made the announcement that his five-year-old could not get into racing condition in time for the big handicap that highlights the Santa Anita meeting.

Smith said he made the announcement reluctantly because he had hoped Hillsdale could take the big handicap in which he finished second to Terrang last year.

Hillsdale won 10 out of 13 races last year including such classics as the Santa Anita Maturity, the Hollywood Gold Cup, the Californian and the Aqueduct Handicap under 132 pounds. He was a top contender for "Horse of the year" honors but Sword Dancer beat him in the Woodward Stakes to take that award.

But during his big season, Hillsdale earned $502,090 and came west for more gold and glory, being assigned 132 pounds for the Santa Anita handicap. Hillsdale suffered the ankle injury just prior to the $50,000 San Carlos Handicap early last month. The race was to have been his first start of the year.

Risque Song Returns $105

Cops Second Race At Hialeah Park

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI)—Risque Song, who finished in the money only once in 10 previous starts, paid $105.00 for $2 Thursday while winning the second race at Hialeah.

The combination of Risque Song and Colonel Art ($5.90) in the first race resulted in a $436.00 daily double.

Whirlbeater had finished two lengths in front of Estival in the mile and one-sixteenth race. A foul claim was lodged, however, accusing Whirlbeater of ducking in sharply toward the other horse about an eighth of a mile from the wire.

Bill Hartack III, Cancels Mounts

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP) — Bill Hartack, leading rider at Hialeah Park, cancelled all his mounts after the first race today, complaining of an upset stomach. Hartack said he would take tomorrow off, as well.

He has been in a mild slump. After riding 17 winners in the first nine days at Hialeah, he has won only five races in the last eight days.

'What The People Want'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. Frank Stanton's argument before the Federal Communications Commission that the nation would be turning its back on government democracy if the government should decree what is good for the people to see on television rather misses the crux of the problem. Theoretically, government is the people. At least in a democracy it is.

Also, Dr. Stanton is raising a standard that I don't think his industry is entitled to. He is saying, if I understand him correctly, that imperfections are part not only of his industry but of every other one. He is saying that the government doesn't step into other industries when the trains don't run on time. He is saying that this is a matter that should be ironed out between the broadcaster and his public without government dictation.

The reasoning is superficially appealing but, I think, false. It is this sort of thinking to which the industry is so wedded that it cannot lift its eyes up to higher ground and that has got it so deeply into trouble. In the first place, broadcasting is not like any other private industry. The broadcaster is operating on frequencies that belong to the public, and, therefore, the public through its government, is entitled to some accounting. The accounting is so seldom made and so long overdue that the broadcaster gets the idea he is being unfairly put upon when finally his time comes. But the fact is there is nothing unjust or at all autocratic in asking him to explain himself to his true owners.

But the real flaw in Dr. Stanton's reasoning lies much deeper—it is a flaw in philosophy, you might say, of the business. That is the idea that "me and the public" are getting along just fine if "you critics and you government people" would just let us alone. It's very smart of the broadcasters, when choosing up sides, to arraign the people on their side, and a rather shadowy government and critics on the other side.

But the government is the people and so are the critics. The real flaw in reasoning is that the broadcasters have always tried to let the people run their business when they should have run it themselves. The whole quiz mess would not have erupted if the broadcaster had not simply abdicated by saying it's what the people want. What people? I'm people and I didn't want it.

The government, says Frank Stanton, shouldn't decree what is good for the people. It sounds terribly dictatorial and forebidding. "Freedom of the air" sounds like the very essence of democracy. But in the long run, practically speaking, doesn't every industry to some extent decree what is good for the people and what is not? The sparkplug industry doesn't come to me and ask me what kind of sparkplugs I want. The sparkplug people assume they know more about sparkplugs than I do. And when they turn out a good sparkplug, they jolly well know it and they look you square in the eye and say: "I defy you to find a better one."

Contrast this to the sort of talk you get from any broadcaster, including Dr. Stanton. The argument runs like this: "We know there are too many Westerns. We know it ain't art. But it's what the people want." You may set it down as one of Crosby's Laws that whenever anyone starts talking about what the people want you have a product that nobody wants and nobody is willing to defend. Conversely, when you hear any broadcaster—or any one else for that matter—stand up and say: "The hell with what anyone else thinks, I think that's a great show"—then you've got something worth fighting for.

At the heart of this matter is an absence of leadership that various elected officials and a few appointed officials are talking with extreme vagueness about filling, simply because nature abhors a vacuum. It would be far better if the broadcaster filled the vacuum himself, but he cannot fill it by invoking an imaginary public to indorse shoddy shows that pander to the worst instincts of the public and say, "I don't want it but he wants it"—he being somebody that none of us will admit to being.

If there is to be government dictation, it should be on a level far higher than that provided by the Federal Communications Commission, whose record has been anything but good and whose tradition is totally foreign to such thinking. I'd like to see a new commission with a name like Broadcast Program Commission and with a membership composed of perhaps Herbert Hoover, Harry Truman, Walter Lippmann, Henry Ford, Henry R. Luce — people of such eminence that no political considerations could touch them.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Seems all the "gentlemen" of the underworld are getting an airing in motion pictures. The latest is "Bugsy" Siegel, gang lord, who was mysteriously slain in 1946 in the heart of Beverly Hills. His murder was never officially solved—although the script writer may decide to come up with an ending identifying his slayer.

Under the title of "Two Faces of Bugsy Siegel," Barry Sullivan will emote as the handsome gangster who tried his best to fraternize with the Hollywood celebs.

Bugsy loved celebrities more than illicit profits. Irwin Gielgud and his wife, Gwen, officers of the Repetoire Company, are writing the story (Sullivan is also an executive.)

I always think of poor Countess De Frasso every time I hear Bugsy's name. When her friends begged Dorothy not to see him she said, "I don't know any Bugsy Siegel. His name is Benjamin." So one of her intimates got a book; "The Gangsters of New York" and showed her the front and profile of the good-looking underworld charmer.

The last time Jan Sterling and her husband, the late Paul Douglas, were in Europe they ran into Gene Kelly who told Jan that he wanted her to do a TV series for him. Gene didn't forget. He has cabled Jan, now in Florida appearing in "Once More With Feeling" that she has the lead with Van Johnson in the half-hour TV show Gene is producing and directing for General Electric Theater in France. If the series has a title, Gene isn't tipping it yet.

Gia Scala no more than arrived from Munich where she had been appearing in the Wernher von Braun story, "I Aim at the Stars," when she was told that she was to leave for Greece. Carl Foreman wants her for "Guns of Navarone." Her role is a very demanding one. She plays a dumb mute girl who was stricken when she was taken prisoner by the enemy during the war.

Gia and a Greek actress, to be chosen later, play the important feminine roles. Gia joins the male cast of Gregory Peck, David Niven and Anthony Quinn, and leaves very shortly for Athens.

When Ernie Borgnine reported to the studio makeup department for his role in "Go Naked in the World" co-starring Gina Lollobrigida; he found he was to be "aged" 15 years. Ernie rebelled, saying that for the first time he gets to play opposite a glamour girl, and remarked: "I don't want to look like her father!" But Ernie lost out, and he'll play an aging; rough and rugged Greek contractor who tries to woo the luscious Lolo.

On Sunday, Mrs. Kate Crosby will reign as queen of her entire family, when all her sons, their wives, her two daughters and grandchildren gather to wish her happy birthday. Kathryn, Bing's wife, who is hostess of the affair, calls it "Mother's coming out party."

Everett and his wife are coming from New York, June and Bob recently reconciled; Larry and his Elaine, Catherine and Mary, "Mom" Crosby's two daughters; and of course Bing, who flew down from Stockton for Linny's wedding; will help blow out the candles. This will be the first time in many a day that Bing and his brothers and sisters have all been together.

When Debbie Reynolds was in Wichita, Kans., about 10 days ago the audience set up a cry for Debbie to do another "Tammy" story; and Ross Hunter; who is planning on filming "Tammy Tell Me True," says he's received many letters protesting no other girl will do."

South overcalled East's one diamond opening with a bid of one heart. West's free bid of two diamonds was based on distributional rather than high card values. North raised hearts and East trotted out his second suit. South's four heart bid went unchallenged by either opponent, tho it will be noted that the defenders had a cheap one trick save available at five diamonds.

West opened the deuce of clubs. East cashed the ace and returned the four. Declarer had no trouble diagnosing West's lead as a singleton, so he inserted the ten of clubs which was trumped. West attempted to put his partner in with a diamond but South ruffed away East's king.

It now appeared that declarer was faced with the loss of two spade tricks, but he observed that there was a chance for success if East held the singleton king of spades. Under these circumstances, it might be possible to strip out the hand and then throw East in for an end play.

Declarer proceeded to draw trump in two rounds winding up in the dummy and, when East followed both times, it became apparent that he had no more than one spade since the bidding and play had marked him with possession of at least 10 cards in the minor suits. A club was now led from the dummy and successfully finessed when East played low. The queen of diamonds was then discarded on the king of clubs.

With both hands stripped of diamonds and clubs, declarer exited with a low spade. West inserted the ten which East was forced return was trumped in forced to overtake with the king dummy as declarer shed a losing when Dummy played low. The spade.

Television and Radio

by John Crosby

'What The People Want'

SACRAMENTO, Calif.

Frank Stanton's argument before the Federal Communications Commission that the nation would be turning its back on government democracy if the government should decree what is good for the people to see on television rather misses the crux of the problem. Theoretically, government is the people. At least in a democracy it is.

Also, Dr. Stanton is raising a standard that I don't think his industry is entitled to. He is saying, if I understand him correctly, that imperfections are part not only of his industry but of every other one. He is saying that the government doesn't step into other industries when the trains don't run on time. He is saying that this is a matter that should be ironed out between the broadcaster and his public without government dictation.

The reasoning is superficially appealing but, I think, false. It is this sort of thinking to which the industry is so wedded that it cannot lift its eyes up to higher ground and that has got it so deeply into trouble. In the first place, broadcasting is not like any other private industry. The broadcaster is operating on frequencies that belong to the public, and, therefore, the public through its government, is entitled to some accounting. The accounting is so seldom made and so long overdue that the broadcaster gets the idea he is being unfairly put upon when finally his time comes. But the fact is there is nothing unjust or at all autocratic in asking him to explain himself to his true owners.

But the real flaw in Dr. Stanton's reasoning lies much deeper—it is a flaw in philosophy, you might say, of the business. That is the idea that "me and the public" are getting along just fine if "you critics and you government people" would just let us alone. It's very smart of the broadcasters, when choosing up sides, to arraign the people on their side, and a rather shadowy government and critics on the other side.

But the government is the people and so are the critics. The real flaw in reasoning is that the broadcasters have always tried to let the people run their business when they should have run it themselves. The whole quiz mess would not have erupted if the broadcaster had not simply abdicated by saying it's what the people want. What people? I'm people and I didn't want it.

The government, says Frank Stanton, shouldn't decree what is good for the people. It sounds terribly dictatorial and forebidding. "Freedom of the air" sounds like the very essence of democracy. But in the long run, practically speaking, doesn't every industry to some extent decree what is good for the people and what is not? The sparkplug industry doesn't come to me and ask me what kind of sparkplugs I want. The sparkplug people assume they know more about sparkplugs than I do. And when they turn out a good sparkplug, they jolly well know it and they look you square in the eye and say: "I defy you to find a better one."

Contrast this to the sort of talk you get from any broadcaster, including Dr. Stanton. The argument runs like this: "We know there are too many Westerns. We know it ain't art. But it's what the people want." You may set it down as one of Crosby's Laws that whenever anyone starts talking about what the people want you have a product that nobody wants and nobody is willing to defend. Conversely, when you hear any broadcaster—or any one else for that matter—stand up and say: "The hell with what anyone else thinks, I think that's a great show"—then you've got something worth fighting for.

At the heart of this matter is an absence of leadership that various elected officials and a few appointed officials are talking with extreme vagueness about filling, simply because nature abhors a vacuum. It would be far better if the broadcaster filled the vacuum himself, but he cannot fill it by invoking an imaginary public to indorse shoddy shows that pander to the worst instincts of the public and say, "I don't want it but he wants it"—he be-

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Seems all the "gentlemen" of the underworld are getting an airing in motion pictures. The latest is "Bugsy" Siegel, gang lord, who was mysteriously slain in 1946 in the heart of Beverly Hills. His murder was never officially solved—although the script writer may decide to come up with an ending identifying his slayer.

Under the title of "Two Faces of Bugsy Siegel," Barry Sullivan will emote as the handsome gangster who tried his best to fraternize with the Hollywood celebs.

Bugsy loved celebrities more than illicit profits. Irwin Gielgud and his wife, Gwen, officers of the Repetoire Company, are writing the story (Sullivan is also an executive.)

I always think of poor Countess De Frasso every time I hear Bugsy's name. When her friends begged Dorothy not to see him she said, "I don't know any Bugsy Siegel. His name is Benjamin." So one of her intimates got a book: "The Gangsters of New York" and showed her the front and profile of the good-looking underworld charmer.

The last time Jan Sterling and her husband, the late Paul Douglas, were in Europe they ran into Gene Kelly who told Jan that he wanted her to do a TV series for him. Gene didn't forget. He has cabled Jan, now in Florida appearing in "Once More With Feeling" that she has the lead with Van Johnson in the half-hour TV show Gene is producing and directing for General Electric Theater in France. If the series has a title, Gene isn't tipping it yet.

Jan planes to Paris Feb. 17 taking along her young son, Adam, and his nurse. She just won't be parted from the baby since Paul's death.

Gia Scala no more than arrived from Munich where she had been appearing in the Wernher von Braun story, "I Aim at the Stars," when she was told that she was to leave for Greece. Carl Foreman wants her for "Guns of Navarone." Her role is a very demanding one. She plays a dumb mute girl who was stricken when she was taken prisoner by the enemy during the war.

Gia and a Greek actress, to be chosen later, play the important feminine roles. Gia joins the male cast of Gregory Peck, David Niven and Anthony Quinn, and leaves very shortly for Athens.

When Ernie Borgnine reported to the studio makeup department for his role in "Go Naked in the World" co-starring Gina Lollobrigida; he found he was to be "aged" 15 years. Ernie rebelled, saying that for the first time he gets to play opposite a glamour girl, and remarked: "I don't want to look like her father!" But Ernie lost out, and he'll play an aging; rough and rugged Greek contractor who tries to woo the luscious Lolo.

Speaking of Ernie, his ex-wife Rhoda, sporting a new hair-do pounds thinner; and looking very happy, entertained a group of friends at the Open House Restaurant.

On Sunday, Mrs. Kate Crosby will reign as queen of her entire family, when all her sons, their wives, her two daughters and grandchildren gather to wish her happy birthday. Kathryn, Bing's wife, who is hostess of the affair, calls it "Mother's coming out party."

Everett and his wife are coming from New York, June and Bob recently reconciled; Larry and his Elaine, Catherine and Mary, "Mom" Crosby's two daughters; and of course Bing, who flew down from Stockton for Linny's wedding; will help blow out the candles. This will be the first time in many a day that Bing and his brothers and sisters have all been together.

When Debbie Reynolds was in Wichita, Kans., about 10 days ago the audience set up a cry for Debbie to do another "Tammy" story; and Ross Hunter; who is planning on filming "Tammy Tell Me True," says he's received many letters protesting no other girl will do."

Declarer combined some shrewd card reading with a bit of good luck to land a vulnerable game contract today.

South overcalled East's one diamond opening with a bid of one heart. West's free bid of two diamonds was based on distributional rather than high card values. North raised hearts and East trotted out his second suit. South's four heart bid went unchallenged by either opponent, tho it will be noted that the defenders had a cheap one trick save available at five diamonds.

West opened the deuce of clubs. East cashed the ace and returned the four. Declarer had no trouble diagnosing West's lead as a singleton, so he inserted the ten of clubs which was trumped. West attempted to put his partner in with a diamond but South ruffed away East's king.

A club was now led from the dummy and successfully finessed when East played low. The queen of diamonds was then discarded on the king of clubs.

With both hands stripped of diamonds and clubs, declarer exited with a low spade. West inserted the ten which East was forced return was trumped in forced to overtake with the king dummy as declarer shed a losing when Dummy played low. The spade.

Scout Rocket To Play Big Role In Space Research

By ALVIN B. WEBB Jr.
United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — America plans to flood space and its fringes with a vast assortment of men and animals, balloons, television cameras, radio transmitters and complicated machinery during 1960.

These experiments fall into a wide variety of projects, some with civilian applications, others of definite interest to the military, all designed to increase man's knowledge of space.

But while the satellites and space probes will be more elaborate than ever, the rockets that will have to do the job are, for the most part, the "old reliables" upon which America put its space-race burden in 1958 and 1959 — the military missiles.

One exception is Scout, sometimes dubbed the "poor man's rocket" because of its estimated cost of "only" about $500,000 each. Scout, a four-stage vehicle, is expected to be ready sometime in the spring as the first U.S. rocket since Vanguard to be designed purely for space research.

Otherwise, the U.S. will have to fall back on space rockets based on the military's Atlas, Thor and Jupiter missiles, including the time-tested Thor-Atlas and Juno IIs.

More Atlas - Ables, like the one that made last Thanksgiving Day's unsuccessful moonshot try, are on the agenda. Another Atlas-Able lunar probe may be forthcoming within the next few months.

Later, larger upper stages will be placed on the Atlas for advanced satellite shots such as projects Midas and Sanos this year and Centaur in 1961.

During 1960, Thore-Able will be succeeded by Thor-Delta, which will employ an altitude control system during a coasting period that will follow its launching. The other stand-by, Juno II, is being phased out of service but at least five more shots are planned for this rocket.

One of the first shots set for 1960 is a Thor - Able deep-space probe toward the orbit of the planet Venus. The satellite, carrying a radio transmitter with a range of more than 50 million miles, was supposed to have gone in December, 1959, but difficulties in the payload forced a postponement.

Meanwhile, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will have eight Redstone Rockets on hand at Cape Canaveral to send its Mercury Astronauts on short-range hops over the Atlantic. The first Redstone will be a simple test shot, the second will carry animals and the last six will hold men, sources said.

These shots will be followed later this year by Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles carrying the Astronauts on longer trips down the Atlantic missile range. The build-up is for the launching of America's first man into space sometime in 1961.

For the benefit of the new Ridgeley School Band, the minstrel will be presented in the high school auditorium at 7:30. Tickets are on sale from members of the PTA and students. Anyone interested in taking part will be welcome.

Allegany Juniors Sponsoring Record Hop

Three girls chosen by the Junior class will have dinner with the TV star, who will choose one to be queen of the Junior-Senior prom in May. Records, autographs and pictures of Mr. Bell will be given away at the hop.

The hop will be in Allegany gymnasium from 8 until 11 o'clock.

Capital's 'Downtown' Staging A Comeback

By E. A. PRITCHARD
Written for UPI

The trend in shopping habits which once threatened the future of downtown merchants has been completely reversed. In the words of one local realtor, we are now experiencing "a flight from the suburbs and back to the city."

This is not a mere impression. It is documented by police figures on the number of cars coming into the central business district . . . by the sales figures of downtown stores . . . and by the number of cars parked in downtown lots during shopping hours.

We believe that the "Downtown Park & Shop" plan is largely responsible for giving Washington's central business district a new lease on life. This plan, which has been in effect since 1955, is a completely unique parking arrangement whereby customers can park in any parking facility in the entire downtown area and be given free parking by almost 250 leading firms.

All they have to do is to get their parking tickets stamped by participating merchants.

These firms pay for their customers' parking through a reduced rate from members of the Washington Parking Association. The participating firms also subscribe to a fund set up to advertise and promote the plan. The whole operation is suspervised by Downtown Park & Shop, Inc., a non-profit private organization.

The number of parking stamps issued under the plan increased 11 per cent in 1959 over the preceding a year —a direct result of a vigorous advertising program which made more shoppers aware of the possibility of parking free near the downtown stores.

A sure sign of the resurgence of the downtown area is the growing willingness of big national corporations to invest in central business district properties. These corporations see what is happening in Washington, and they are betting that downtown properties here will improve substantially in value rather than decline in the future.

Downtown Park & Shop will soon issue its 3,000,000th parking stamp—a positive indication that customers like the better values and selections, as well as the wealth of entertainment, good restaurants and excitement, which can be found only downtown.

Bill Would Clear Way For Williamsport Span

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The way was being cleared Thursday in the Maryland Legislature toward obtaining funds to build a new bridge across the Potomac River at Williamsport.

Del. Gordon Boone (D - Balto County) introduced, at the request of the State Roads Commission, a bill that would end an agreement by which Maryland and West Virginia are supposed to share equally the cost of constructing and maintaining toll bridges over the river.

This 50 - 50 agreement has blocked participation of the federal government in the financing of the proposed new bridge which will carry Maryland 81 across the river.

Visit To Cuba Set

HAVANA (AP)—Mexico's President Adolfo Lopez Mateos will visit Cuba sometime this year and will send a delegation here to a proposed conference of underdeveloped nations, the government announces. Officials also say Cuba's foreign minister, Raul Roa will visit Venezuela Feb. 19 for that country's national holiday.

Paris' First Meters

PARIS (AP)—Paris' first parking meters—of U.S., British and German make—are being installed at Le Bourget Airport. They take old 20-franc coins (about four cents) for 20 minutes parking but will be modified to take the new franc.

Scout Rocket To Play Big Role In Space Research

By ALVIN B. WEBB Jr.
United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — America plans to flood space and its fringes with a vast assortment of men and animals, balloons, television cameras, radio transmitters and complicated machinery during 1960.

These experiments fall into a wide variety of projects, some with civilian applications, others of definite interest to the military, all designed to increase man's knowledge of space.

But while the satellites and space probes will be more elaborate than ever, the rockets that will have to do the job are, for the most part, the "old reliables" upon which America put its space-race burden in 1958 and 1959 — the military missiles.

One exception is Scout, sometimes dubbed the "poor man's rocket" because of its estimated cost of "only" about $500,000 each. Scout, a four-stage vehicle, is expected to be ready sometime in the spring as the first U.S. rocket since Vanguard to be designed purely for space research.

Otherwise, the U.S. will have to fall back on space rockets based on the military's Atlas, Thor and Jupiter missiles, including the time-tested Thor-Atlas and Juno IIs.

More Atlas - Ables, like the one that made last Thanksgiving Day's unsuccessful moonshot try, are on the agenda. Another Atlas-Able lunar probe may be forthcoming within the next few months.

Later, larger upper stages will be placed on the Atlas for advanced satellite shots such as projects Midas and Sanos this year and Centaur in 1961.

During 1960, Thore-Able will be succeeded by Thor-Delta, which will employ an altitude control system during a coasting period that will follow its launching. The other stand-by, Juno II, is being phased out of service but at least five more shots are planned for this rocket.

One of the first shots set for 1960 is a Thor - Able deep-space probe toward the orbit of the planet Venus. The satellite, carrying a radio transmitter with a range of more than 50 million miles, was supposed to have gone in December, 1959, but difficulties in the payload forced a postponement.

Atlas - Ables and Thor - Deltas are expected to make lunar probes and sun satellite attempts during the first half of 1960.

Meanwhile, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will have eight Redstone Rockets on hand at Cape Canaveral to send its Mercury Astronauts on short-range hops over the Atlantic. The first Redstone will be a simple test shot, the second will carry animals and the last six will hold men, sources said.

These shots will be followed later this year by Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles carrying the Astronauts on longer trips down the Atlantic missile range. The build-up is for the launching of America's first man into space sometime in 1961.

For the benefit of the new Ridgeley School Band, the minstrel will be presented in the high school auditorium at 7:30. Tickets are on sale from members of the PTA and students. Anyone interested in taking part will be welcome.

Allegany Juniors Sponsoring Record Hop

The winner of the "Date with Dennis Bell contest" will be his personal guest at the record hop sponsored by the Junior Class of Allegany High School tomorrow evening.

Three girls chosen by the Junior class will have dinner with the TV star, who will choose one to be queen of the Junior-Senior prom in May. Records, autographs and pictures of Mr. Bell will be given away at the hop.

The hop will be in Allegany gymnasium from 8 until 11 o'clock.

Capital's 'Downtown' Staging A Comeback

By E. A. PRITCHARD
Written for UPI

The trend in shopping habits which once threatened the future of downtown merchants has been completely reversed. In the words of one local realtor, we are now experiencing "a flight from the suburbs and back to the city."

This is not a mere impression. It is documented by police figures on the number of cars coming into the central business district . . . by the sales figures of downtown stores . . . and by the number of cars parked in downtown lots during shopping hours.

We believe that the "Downtown Park & Shop" plan is largely responsible for giving Washington's central business district a new lease on life. This plan, which has been in effect since 1955, is a completely unique parking arrangement whereby customers can park in any parking facility in the entire downtown area and be given free parking by almost 250 leading firms.

All they have to do is to get their parking tickets stamped by participating merchants.

These firms pay for their customers' parking through a reduced rate from members of the Washington Parking Association. The participating firms also subscribe to a fund set up to advertise and promote the plan. The whole operation is suspervised by Downtown Park & Shop, Inc., a non-profit private organization.

The number of parking stamps issued under the plan increased 11 per cent in 1959 over the preceding a year —a direct result of a vigorous advertising program which made more shoppers aware of the possibility of parking free near the downtown stores.

A sure sign of the resurgence of the downtown area is the growing willingness of big national corporations to invest in central business district properties. These corporations see what is happening in Washington, and they are betting that downtown properties here will improve substantially in value rather than decline in the future.

Downtown Park & Shop will soon issue its 3,000,000th parking stamp—a positive indication that customers like the better values and selections, as well as the wealth of entertainment, good restaurants and excitement, which can be found only downtown.

Bill Would Clear Way For Williamsport Span

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The way was being cleared Thursday in the Maryland Legislature toward obtaining funds to build a new bridge across the Potomac River at Williamsport.

Del. Gordon Boone (D - Balto County) introduced, at the request of the State Roads Commission, a bill that would end an agreement by which Maryland and West Virginia are supposed to share equally the cost of constructing and maintaining toll bridges over the river.

This 50 - 50 agreement has blocked participation of the federal government in the financing of the proposed new bridge which will carry Maryland 81 across the river.

Visit To Cuba Set

HAVANA (AP)—Mexico's President Adolfo Lopez Mateos will visit Cuba sometime this year and will send a delegation here to a proposed conference of underdeveloped nations, the government announces. Officials also say Cuba's foreign minister, Raul Roa will visit Venezuela Feb. 19 for that country's national holiday.

Paris' First Meters

PARIS (AP)—Paris' first parking meters—of U.S., British and German make—are being installed at Le Bourget Airport. They take old 20-franc coins (about four cents) for 20 minutes parking but will be modified to take the new franc.

Market Finishes Slightly Ahead In Erratic Session

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market finished with a modest gain Thursday after a session of erratic and mostly narrow price movements.

The advance, although slight, was the third this week and the eighth thus far in the new year.

Market experts note that the continuing rush of good corporate news, largely ignored during the past month, must eventually have a favorable impact on investor sentiment.

Some brokers feel there now must be a further test of last week's lows before any turnaround in the market can develop. They note the list as yet has failed to produce any sort of a "selling climax."

The market was a bit narrower than the previous session with only 1,192 issues crossing the tape. While the list displayed an overall firmness, declines outnumbered advances 519 to 423. New highs were set by 4 and new lows by 39.

American Motors, reporting both a dividend boost and that January Rambler sales nearly doubled those of a year ago, spurted more than 2, while its when - issued, up part of the day, closed unchanged. Ford trading ex-dividend tacked on a large fraction, Chrysler a small one.

Steels were dull for the most part. Continental rose more than 1, as did American Steel Foundries, while Youngstown dropped ¾.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D I L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Old crop wheat futures rallied near the close, but other grains were mostly easy Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was off ⅜ to up ⅛; corn off ¼ to ⅜; oats unchanged to off ⅜; rye off ⅜ to up ¼; soybeans off ¼ to up ⅜, and lard off to 10 points.

Long liquidation and profit-taking depressed old crop wheat more than a cent in early trading. But a late recovery was staged, based partly on short covering, reports of scarcity of cash wheat in the Southwest and hope for export sales. New crop deliveries finished easy.

Corn eased as offerings more than offset buying by some elevators and cash houses. A commercial house sold May. Carlot receipts were larger. An exporter bought March corn. Export subsidies were granted on 130,000 bushels of corn and 65,000 bushels of oats.

Oats ranged from steady to easy. Cash and local houses were early buyers of March. Spreaders sold March and bought May.

Rye was mixed on some liquidation and stop-loss selling.

Old crop soybean futures eased as meals and oils turned lower. Cash soybean meal was reported at the lowest level in two months. March, May and July oil futures sold at new crop lows. In the soybean pit, commission houses and local traders sold, and a small demand came on resting orders and from processors.

Outside markets were mostly lower.

Market Finishes Slightly Ahead In Erratic Session

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market finished with a modest gain Thursday after a session of erratic and mostly narrow price movements.

The advance, although slight, was the third this week and the eighth thus far in the new year.

Market experts note that the continuing rush of good corporate news, largely ignored during the past month, must eventually have a favorable impact on investor sentiment.

Some brokers feel there now must be a further test of last week's lows before any turnaround in the market can develop. They note the list as yet has failed to produce any sort of a "selling climax."

The market was a bit narrower than the previous session with only 1,192 issues crossing the tape. While the list displayed an overall firmness, declines outnumbered advances 519 to 423. New highs were set by 4 and new lows by 39.

American Motors, reporting both a dividend boost and that January Rambler sales nearly doubled those of a year ago, spurted more than 2, while its when - issued, up part of the day, closed unchanged. Ford trading ex-dividend tacked on a large fraction. Chrysler a small one.

Steels were dull for the most part. Continental rose more than 1, as did American Steel Foundries, while Youngstown dropped ¾.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D I L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Old crop wheat futures rallied near the close, but other grains were mostly easy Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was off ⅝ to up ⅛; corn off ¼ to ⅜; oats unchanged to off ⅛; rye off ⅜ to up ¼; soybeans off ¼ to up ⅜, and lard off to 10 points.

Long liquidation and profit-taking depressed old crop wheat more than a cent in early trading. But a late recovery was staged, based partly on short covering, reports of scarcity of cash wheat in the Southwest and hope for export sales. New crop deliveries finished easy.

Wheat and flour clearances since July were estimated at 229 million bushels compared with 241 million in the same period last year.

Corn eased as offerings more than offset buying by some elevators and cash houses. A commercial house sold May. Carlot receipts were larger. An exporter bought March corn. Export subsidies were granted on 130,000 bushels of corn and 65,000 bushels of oats.

Oats ranged from steady to easy. Cash and local houses were early buyers of March. Spreaders sold March and bought May.

Rye was mixed on some liquidation and stop loss selling.

Old crop soybean futures eased as meals and oils turned lower. Cash soybean meal was reported at the lowest level in two months. March, May and July oil futures sold at new crop lows. In the soybean pit, commission houses and local traders sold, and a small demand came on resting orders and from processors.

Outside markets were mostly lower.

Four Die In Wellersburg Fire

Blaze Levels Frame House

Two Women, Two Small Girls Trapped By Flames, Perish

Four persons, including two small girls, perished in a fire last night which swept through a small, story and a half frame dwelling in Wellersburg, Pa., about ten miles northwest of Cumberland.

The victims of the blaze were tentatively identified as Sara Preston, about 65; her aunt, Sara Sturtz, about 80; and the two little girls, Gail Ann Smith, four and her younger sister, Barbara Ellen, three, daughters of Robert and Jacquelyn Smith, all of whom resided at the dwelling located next to the Wellersburg School.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and their young son, James, about six, were reported to have been away at the time of the fire, which apparently started about 6:45 p.m.

Volunteer firemen from Mt. Savage and Corriganville fought the blaze and were on the scene about three hours.

Bodies Recovered

The four bodies were reported to have been found in a front bedroom of the three-room house.

The two women were found on two of the beds, and the two girls were also found dead in the bedroom.

A neighbor who was on the scene said another neighbor detected smoke coming from the home, ran to the front of the house, smashed a window and called into the dwelling, but received no answer.

Immediately, heavy smoke billowed from the front room, which burst into flames. The rear of the house already was in flames.

It was reported that there was no outside entrance to the bedroom and the victims apparently were unable to get to the rear of the burning structure.

Trapped In Bedroom

The two older women "could not get about" very well, according to the neighbor who said they were found on the bed. The children apparently ran to the room in fright.

The victims apparently were overcome by the thick smoke before the flames reached the bedroom.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined last night. A cook stove was located in the kitchen of the home and a heating stove was in the middle room which adjoined the bedroom.

Mt. Savage volunteers and firemen from Corriganville arrived on the scene about the same time.

City Firemen Called

Firemen from Central station here said they were asked to notify Pennsylvania authorities about the fire, since one of the victim's bodies had been removed from the dwelling.

The local firemen said they received a radio message from volunteer firemen of Frostburg, who had received a radio call from Mt. Savage firemen at the scene of the blaze.

The two older women were reported to have lived at the house for several years, and the Smith family had moved in about three years ago.

Repeal Of Bill Ending Hospital Aid Is Urged

Merit Status Sought For SRC Laborers

Identical bills were introduced in the Maryland Senate and House of Delegates yesterday to repeal an act of the 1959 Assembly which halted direct state aid to Miners Hospital in Frostburg on July 1.

The bills were introduced simultaneously by three Allegany County legislators, State Senator Charles M. See and Delegate Lester B. Reed and Estel C. Kelley.

Senator See said both bills specify that it is the legislative intent that the hospital would become the Western Maryland branch of the University of Maryland Hospital in Baltimore.

He said it is the intent that the University of Maryland would operate the Frostburg institution as a general hospital.

Aid Will End

Under the 1959 law, direct state aid would end this year and the institution would be taken over by Allegany County if a local or private group in Frostburg did not do so.

The state appropriated $334,658 during the current fiscal year toward the operation of the hospital, built in Frostburg 38 years ago.

Senator See said that under proposals, workers at Miners Hospital would retain their rights under the state merit system.

Senator See and Delegate Reed and Kelley also sponsored identical bills in the Senate and House yesterday to blanket hourly paid workers of the State Roads Commission into the state merit system.

Would Benefit

Senator See said the bill provided that the workers, mostly laborers, would be taken into the classified system without examination.

Such action, he said, would make the workers eligible for such fringe benefits as pensions, paid holidays and the right to a hearing.

Both bills will go to the rules committees of the House and Senate, which must clear all legislation introduced during 30-day sessions.

Trial Enters Second Day

The jury trial of Stanley D. Bonney of Keyser, who is charged with breaking and entering Weese's Appliance Store in that community last November, goes into its second day today and testimony in the case is expected to be completed this morning.

Six witnesses took the stand yesterday. They included West Virginia State Trooper C. C. Oliver and Robert Noechel; Harry Stewart, Keyser policeman; and Assistant Police Chief John Sherry, Officer Royce Clayton and Detective Kenneth Morrissey of the local police department.

Prosecuting Attorney Donald Hott is presenting the state's case and Howard Rogers and Joseph Blundon, Keyser attorneys, are the court-appointed lawyers for the defendant.

Wilford J. Mahoney of Beryl, who was arrested with Bonney in Cumberland in connection with th breaking and entering, will go on trial after the completion of the Bonney trial.

Judge Reverses Zoning Board In Garage Case

Garbage Contractor Wins His Appeal

An order declaring that a decision of the City Board of Zoning Appeals was "capricious, unreasonable and arbitrary," reversing it and directing the city engineer to issue building and occupancy permits to Emmett A. Dougherty, the city garbage contractor, was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris along with a five-page opinion explaining the decision.

Mr. Dougherty had appealed the Zoning Board decision of September 17, which denied his application for an occupancy permit.

The appellant applied to the city engineer on September 10 for a building permit to construct a garage building on the southwest corner of Fourth Street and Memorial Avenue in Southview Addition for the purpose of storing his garbage trucks. This site is located in a "business zone" although the property on the northerly side of Fourth Street is zoned "residential A."

The proposed cost of the garage building was $6,000 and upon payment of a $12 fee, Mr. Dougherty was issued a building permit. Before purchasing the property, the garbage contractor called at the city engineer's office and was told that Lots 42 and 43 in Southview Addition were in a business zone which was available for use as a warehouse and garage. City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum went to the scene and confirmed his statement there.

After the building permit was issued September 10, Mr. Dougherty concluded his purchase of the property. At a meeting September 14 of the Mayor and City Council, a petition in opposition to the granting of a building permit was read, whereupon the Mayor and Council ordered the city engineer to revoke the previously granted permit because it was "in the interest of health and fire protection."

The following day, Mr. Dougherty applied for an occupancy permit which was disapproved by the building engineer and he appealed to the Board of Zoning Appeals. Two days later, the Board of Zoning Appeals denied the application for an occupancy permit.

Judge Harris notes in his opinion that across Fourth Street and almost opposite the site in question is a large warehouse-garage of the Potomac Edison Company. Also across the street and within the same block the Salvation Army is planning to construct an outpost. The nearest dwelling is located facing near Wempe Drive about 200 feet from the site in question and located in a business district.

Mr. Dougherty's plans call for six garbage trucks in the garage. They would leave between 10 and 11 p.m. and would return between 7 and 8 a.m. Upon their return,

Strep Infections, Flu, Mumps Are On Increase Here

Increases instreptococcal throat infections, influenza-type illness and mumps were reported yesterday by Dr. Ton van Strien, county health officer.

He said many of the influenza infections are being reported in the younger age groups and that the illness could be caused by a variety of viruses.

The Health Department, he added, has no definite report of any case that, on clinical grounds, could be called Asian influenza.

There has also been a slight increase he said, adding that officials in Baltimore have advised 1960 may be a mumps year.

He said reports indicate that attacks by all of the above illnesses are "still spotty" and have not appeared in epidemic proportions.

County Liquor Tax Yield Up 5.7 Per Cent

Allegany County's share of the excise tax on distilled spirits for the most recent nine months is $49,896.54, which is 5.7 per cent more than the $47,225.37 received from this source during the corresponding nine months a year ago.

Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, the county auditor, receives a check each quarter from the office of State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein from this excise tax. There is an excise tax of $1.50 collected from each gallon of liquor delivered by wholesalers to retail stores within their jurisdiction.

The state keeps $1 of each $1.50 collected and gives 50 cents to the county or Baltimore City. Every county except Garrett, where the sale of distilled spirits is not licensed, and Baltimore City share in this revenue.

Each of the three checks received by Mrs. Sills since last July 1 has been larger than the one for the corresponding quarter a year earlier. The July check, on liquor delivered in April, May and June was $14,717.96, some 9.5 per cent higher than the $13,442.14 received in July 1958. The October check, on liquor delivered in July, August and September, was $15,068.08, up 5.7 per cent above the $14,249.77 of October 1958. Last month, Mrs. Sills got the highest check yet from this source, $20,110.50, which was 2.9 per cent more than the $19,533.46 of January 1959.

Last year the final check in April was for $12,639.76, bringing this fiscal year yield to $59,862.13. If the April 1960 check should be 5.7 per cent above that April 1959 total, the county could realize $13,360.23, bringing the annual yield to $63,256.77. Only $9,965.59 is needed in April to match the past year's total of $59,862.13.

The county commissioners had anticipated $60,000 from this source in the year when setting the levy last April. That represents the tax on 120,000 gallons of liquor.

Potomac's Water May Acquire 'Pigpen' Taste

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility that drinking water from the Potomac River may some day have a "pigpen taste" was forecast Thursday by a Johns Hopkins University professor of sanitary engineering.

"The problem of increased algae growth which causes bad taste and an odor to water, is not serious yet, but it could become critical as population in the metropolitan (Washington) area increases," Prof. John C. Geyer said.

He brought up the problem as a study topic for the water committee of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, which is holding its two-day winter meeting here.

Geyer said the tiny plants thrive in the Potomac because it carries more minerals than most other Eastern rivers.

It is collecting minerals from fertilizer on farm lands and the lime content of the Shenandoah River, which empties into it, Geyer said.

Ironically, as better methods are devised to rid the Potomac of silt, more sunlight will penetrate the river and stimulate algae growth, he added.

Although experts do not know the amount of algae now in the Potomac, their increase could be a problem in the next 5 years and is almost certain to be one in 10 or 20 years," Geyer told a reporter.

"Ultimately we may have to take treated sewage, which fertilizes the estuary, from the Potomac to the Chesapeake Bay."

Earlier, commission members heard Francis A. Pitkin, director of the Pennsylvania State Planning Commission, recommend that the federal government aid regions in securing adequate water supplies.

The government should not limit itself to aid in flood control, navigation and reclamation, Pitkin said. He suggested Congress approved federal long-term, low-interest loans to regions for construction of reservoirs and dams.

Irving K. Fox, associate director of Resources for the Future Inc., said an intelligent decision on dealing with Potomac problems cannot be made until the public is given more facts on costs of purifying water, cost of ground water supply, and how much water needs to be stored to meet various demands.

The legislators decided to discuss the laboratory plan with legislators from Garrett, Washington and Frederick counties, asking them to participate in a joint appeal to Governor Tawes to place the needed funds in the supplemental budget.

Disputed Bills Are Introduced In Legislature

Include Scholarship, Reapportionment

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Revisions of the state scholarship program and the Constitution were proposed Thursday despite earlier rejection by the Maryland Legislative Council.

The constitutional convention called for in 1961 by Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th) would have reapportionment of the House of Delegates as its main target.

Del. Blair Lee (D-Montgomery) and two others introduced the scholarship bill that could cut the individual grants generally, but provide a greater total number.

The council voted 10-7 against the scholarship report and 10-7 against the convention last Nov. 4. The same day, it balloted 10-7 against a proposal to increase the number of delegates in the House.

But the reapportionment commission headed by William C. Walsh of Cumberland modified its original proposal and sent it to Gov. Millard Tawes. The governor endorsed it and has promised to fight for it when it is introduced.

May Be Showdown

This could be one of the major showdowns between the governor and the Democratic majorities in the General Assembly. The Walsh proposal would benefit largely only the counties of Baltimore, Prince Georges, Montgomery and Anne Arundel.

The smaller counties have always resisted any move to revise legislative representation and this time even Baltimore City delegates are unhappy.

Delegates to the convention would be elected in September 1961, and two weeks later they would assemble in Annapolis to consider changes in the Constitution. Any changes would be subject to voting by the public.

Lee was chairman of a commission authorized by the 1959 Legislature to go over the state's scholarship system which has been described as a hodgepodge.

Cost $1,069,103

The state provides for 1,527 scholarships at 11 colleges and two private secondary schools. They cost $1,069,103 this year.

The methods of awarding the scholarships and the amounts vary greatly as they grew through the years.

The Lee commission proposed that the state pay only the listed tuition fee for scholarship students. Some now cover the entire cost, including room, board, and books.

The estimated total cost under the Lee plan would be $1,060,853, but would provide for 452 more scholarships. A commission of seven members would supervise the scholarship program which now lacks any state central supervision.

The scholarship and constitution bills were among 29 introduced in the House Thursday afternoon, raising the number of the second day of the month-long session to 56. The Senate bills reached 43.

Is Major Issue

Coming in Friday will be another on one of the major issues of the session—school teacher salaries. Representatives of the teachers will have introduced their proposed raises that would cost about 16 million dollars over a two-year period.

Gov. Tawes already has recommended that about one third of that amount be given teachers next year. A flock of other teacher pay proposals are being prepared by individual legislators.

The House assembled for only 26 minutes Thursday to receive the new bills and for the rules committee to clear out the 27 it received Wednesday.

In a 20-minute session the Senate disposed of its only remaining vetoed 1959 bill, upholding Gov. Tawes in his rejection of an oyster bill which duplicated one enacted by the House. It authorizes fisheries officials to prohibit the importation of infected or diseased shellfish.

Hearings Set

The senators also approved the creation of a standing committee to handle legislation dealing with motor vehicles and highway safety. President George W. Della named Sen. George B. Rasin (D-Kent) chairman of the new unit, which is similar to one which has operated in the House for several years.

Sen. Fred Malkus (D-Dorchester) announced a heavy schedule of public hearings by his Judiciary Committee for next week. The committee will hear evidence Tuesday on a proposal to expand the membership of the Court of Appeals, Wednesday on a measure to revise the laws governing certified public accountants, and Thursday on eight measures involving workmen's compensation.

Prof. Parker B. Wagnild will be celebrating his 25th season as founder and director of the famed Gettysburg College choir when it presents a sacred music concert on Monday at 8:30 p. m. in the auditorium of Fort Hill High School.

The concert is being sponsored by the United Lutheran Men of Allegany County. W. Edward Eichner of St. Luke's Lutheran Church is chairman of the project. Tickets are available from Lutheran men or may be purchased at the door the evening of the concert.

Chairman of the Gettysburg College music department since its inception in 1952, Prof. Wagnild formed the 60-voice choral group following his apponitment to the faculty in 1935.

A native of Jackson, Minn., he was the son of a Lutheran minister. As a boy he moved with his parents to Saskatchewan, Canada, where he toured the province with instrumental and choral groups from Outlook Academy. Later he entered St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., where for four years he sang as a member of the world-famous St. Olaf choir which toured Europe in 1930.

Prof. Wagnild earned a master of sacred music degree at Union Theological Seminary, bachelor of divinity degree at Gettysburg Theological Seminary, and a master of arts at New York University.

He has been invited to serve as guest director of many choral festivals and clinics. Prof Wagnild was a choral director for several seasons at the Lutheridge School of Church Music in Arden, N. Judge Reverses Zoning Board In Garage Case

Garbage Contractor Wins His Appeal

An order declaring that a decision of the City Board of Zoning Appeals was "capricious, unreasonable and arbitrary," reversing it and directing the city engineer to issue building and occupancy permits to Emmett A. Dougherty, the city garbage contractor, was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris along with a five-page opinion explaining the decision.

Mr. Dougherty had appealed the Zoning Board decision of September 17, which denied his application for an occupancy permit.

The appellant applied to the city engineer on September 10 for a building permit to construct a garage building on the southwest corner of Fourth Street and Memorial Avenue in Southview Addition for the purpose of storing his garbage trucks. This site is located in a "business zone" although the property on the northerly side of Fourth Street is zoned "residential A."

The proposed cost of the garage building was $6,000 and upon payment of a $12 fee, Mr. Dougherty was issued a building permit. Before purchasing the property, the garbage contractor called at the city engineer's office and was told that Lots 42 and 43 in Southview Addition were in a business zone which was available for use as a warehouse and garage. City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum went to the scene and confirmed his statement there.

After the building permit was issued September 10, Mr. Dougherty concluded his purchase of the property. At a meeting September 14 of the Mayor and City Council, a petition in opposition to the granting of a building permit was read, whereupon the Mayor and Council ordered the city engineer to revoke the previously granted permit because it was "in the interest of health and fire protection."

The following day, Mr. Dougherty applied for an occupancy permit which was disapproved by the building engineer and he appealed to the Board of Zoning Appeals. Two days later, the Board of Zoning Appeals denied the application for an occupancy permit.

Judge Harris notes in his opinion that across Fourth Street and almost opposite the site in question is a large warehouse-garage of the Potomac Edison Company. Also across the street and within the same block the Salvation Army is planning to construct an outpost. The nearest dwelling is located facing near Wempe Drive about 200 feet from the site in question and located in a business district.

Mr. Dougherty's plans call for six garbage trucks in the garage. They would leave between 10 and 11 p.m. and would return between 7 and 8 a.m. Upon their return.

Strep Infections, Flu, Mumps Are On Increase Here

Increases instreptococcal throat infections, influenza-type illness and mumps were reported yesterday by Dr. Ton van Strien, county health officer.

He said many of the influenza infections are being reported in the younger age groups and that the illness could be caused by a variety of viruses.

The Health Department, he added, has no definite report of any case that, on clinical grounds, could be called Asian influenza.

There has also been a slight increase he said, adding that officials in Baltimore have advised 1960 may be a mumps year.

He said reports indicate that attacks by all of the above illnesses are "still spotty" and have not appeared in epidemic proportions.

County Liquor Tax Yield Up 5.7 Per Cent

Allegany County's share of the excise tax on distilled spirits for the most recent nine months is $49,896.54, which is 5.7 per cent more than the $47,225.37 received from this source during the corresponding nine months a year ago.

Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, the county auditor, receives a check each quarter from the office of State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein from this excise tax. There is an excise tax of $1.50 collected from each gallon of liquor delivered by wholesalers to retail stores within their jurisdiction.

The state keeps $1 of each $1.50 collected and gives 50 cents to the county or Baltimore City. Every county except Garrett, where the sale of distilled spirits is not licensed, and Baltimore City share in this revenue.

Each of the three checks received by Mrs. Sills since last July 1 has been larger than the one for the corresponding quarter a year earlier. The July check, on liquor delivered in April, May and June was $14,717.96, some 9.5 per cent higher than the $13,442.14 received in July 1958. The October check, on liquor delivered in July, August and September, was $15,068.08, up 5.7 per cent above the $14,249.77 of October 1958. Last month, Mrs. Sills got the highest check yet from this source, $20,110.50, which was 2.9 per cent more than the $19,533.46 of January 1959.

Last year the final check in April was for $12,639.76, bringing this fiscal year yield to $59,862.13. If the April 1960 check should be 5.7 per cent above that April 1959 total, the county could realize $13,360.23, bringing the annual yield to $63,256.77. Only $9,965.59 is needed in April to match the past year's total of $59,862.13.

The county commissioners had anticipated $60,000 from this source in the year when setting the levy last April. That represents the tax on 120,000 gallons of liquor.

Equity Suits Filed

Potomac's Water May Acquire 'Pigpen' Taste

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility that drinking water from the Potomac River may some day have a "pigpen taste" was forecast Thursday by a Johns Hopkins University professor of sanitary engineering.

"The problem of increased algae growth which causes bad taste and an odor to water, is not serious yet, but it could become critical as population in the metropolitan (Washington) area increases," Prof. John C. Geyer said.

He brought up the problem as a study topic for the water committee of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, which is holding its two-day winter meeting here.

Geyer said the tiny plants thrive in the Potomac because it carries more minerals than most other Eastern rivers.

It is collecting minerals from fertilizer on farm lands and the lime content of the Shenandoah River, which empties into it, Geyer said.

Ironically, as better methods are devised to rid the Potomac of silt, more sunlight will penetrate the river and stimulate algae growth, he added.

Although experts do not know the amount of algae now in the Potomac, their increase could be a problem in the next 5 years and is almost certain to be one in 10 or 20 years," Geyer told a reporter.

"Ultimately we may have to take treated sewage, which fertilizes the estuary, from the Potomac to the Chesapeake Bay."

Earlier, commission members heard Francis A. Pitkin, director of the Pennsylvania State Planning Commission, recommend that the federal government aid regions in securing adequate water supplies.

The government should not limit itself to aid in flood control, navigation and reclamation, Pitkin said. He suggested Congress approved federal long-term, low-interest loans to regions for construction of reservoirs and dams.

Irving K. Fox, associate director of Resources for the Future Inc., said an intelligent decision on dealing with Potomac problems cannot be made until the public is given more facts on costs of purifying water, cost of ground water supply, and how much water needs to be stored to meet various demands.

Failure to include in the budget the $63,000 needed to establish the laboratory as a branch of the Department of Research and Education was discussed at a meeting of Senator See and the Allegany County Delegation yesterday.

The legislators decided to discuss the laboratory plan with legislators from Garrett, Washington and Frederick counties, asking them to participate in a joint appeal to Governor Tawes to place the needed funds in the supplemental budget.

Disputed Bills Are Introduced In Legislature

Include Scholarship, Reapportionment

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Revisions of the state scholarship program and the Constitution were proposed Thursday despite earlier rejection by the Maryland Legislative Council.

The constitutional convention called for in 1961 by Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th) would have reapportionment of the House of Delegates as its main target.

Del. Blair Lee (D-Montgomery) and two others introduced the scholarship bill that could cut the individual grants generally, but provide a greater total number.

The council voted 10-7 against the scholarship report and 10-7 against the convention last Nov. 4. The same day, it balloted 10-7 against a proposal to increase the number of delegates in the House.

But the reapportionment commission headed by William C. Walsh of Cumberland modified its original proposal and sent it to Gov. Millard Tawes. The governor endorsed it and has promised to fight for it when it is introduced.

May Be Showdown

This could be one of the major showdowns between the governor and the Democratic majorities in the General Assembly. The Walsh proposal would benefit largely only the counties of Baltimore, Prince Georges, Montgomery and Anne Arundel.

The smaller counties have always resisted any move to revise legislative representation and this time even Baltimore City delegates are unhappy.

In the Legislative Council, Robinson proposed the constitutional convention instead of the Walsh commission's plan, which he called a "compromise that will only perpetuate inequality."

Delegates to the convention would be elected in September 1961, and two weeks later they would assemble in Annapolis to consider changes in the Constitution. Any changes would be subject to voting by the public.

Lee was chairman of a commission authorized by the 1959 Legislature to go over the state's scholarship system which has been described as a hodgepodge.

Cost $1,069,103

The state provides for 1,527 scholarships at 11 colleges and two private secondary schools. They cost $1,069,103 this year.

The methods of awarding the scholarships and the amounts vary greatly as they grew through the years.

The Lee commission proposed that the state pay only the listed tuition fee for scholarship students. Some now cover the entire cost, including room, board, and books.

The estimated total cost under the Lee plan would be $1,060,853, but would provide for 452 more scholarships. A commission of seven members would supervise the scholarship program which now lacks any state central supervision.

The scholarship and constitution bills were among 29 introduced in the House Thursday afternoon, raising the number of the second day of the month-long session to 56. The Senate bills reached 43.

Is Major Issue

Coming in Friday will be another on one of the major issues of the session—school teacher salaries. Representatives of the teachers will have introduced their proposed raises that would cost about 16 million dollars over a two-year period.

Gov. Tawes already has recommended that about one third of that amount be given teachers next year. A flock of other teacher pay proposals are being prepared by individual legislators.

The House assembled for only 26 minutes Thursday to receive the new bills and for the rules committee to clear out the 27 it received Wednesday.

In a 20-minute session the Senate disposed of its only remaining vetoed 1959 bill, upholding Gov. Tawes in his rejection of an oyster bill which duplicated one enacted by the House. It authorizes fisheries officials to prohibit the importation of infected or diseased shellfish.

Hearings Set

The senators also approved the creation of a standing committee to handle legislation dealing with motor vehicles and highway safety. President George W. Della named Sen. George B. Rasin (D-Kent) chairman of the new unit, which is similar to one which has operated in the House for several years.

Sen. Fred Malkus (D-Dorchester) announced a heavy schedule of public hearings by his Judiciary Committee for next week. The committee will hear evidence Tuesday on a proposal to expand the membership of the Court of Appeals, Wednesday on a measure to revise the laws governing certified public accountants, and Thursday on eight measures involving workmen's compensation.
